WIDOW RESCUED IN FOURTH BLAZE

Today

— By ARTHUR BRISBANE —

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 5.

YESTERDAY was Col. Lindbergh's twenty-eighth birthday, reminding us that early success is still possible, if you are able to say, as Napoleon said after crossing the Alps in winter, "I deserve credit only for not believing fools who said it could not be done."

COL. LINDBERGH "cooked a batch of flapjacks" and went up in a glider, an airplane with no engine, paying little attention to the glider's physical condition apparently. One aileron dropped off. Spectators thought Lindbergh would be killed. He came down safely.

The public will be much obliged if he will at least examine the wings of his gliders.

WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT resigns as chief justice of the United States, and, for the time, retires to private life taking with him public appreciation of his fine qualities. He was a good judge and, what is more important, a good man, one that has helped many, and never knowingly injured anybody. May good health return to him soon.

CHARLES EVANS HUGHES returns to the Supreme Court as chief justice, at President Hoover's request. In him the people have a brilliantly able man, worthy to take Mr. Taft's place.

And from Mr. Hughes' acceptance of the position you learn that honor and opportunity to be useful are more important than financial profit.

Mr. Hughes gives up a private law practice worth more than $500,000 a year for the small salary and great opportunity of the Supreme bench.

DOVES played at the feet of Venus, fluttered about her head. Doves coo on the roof tree of the rustic bride. The dove appears in beautiful religious pictures, and in Chaucer "she sang ful 'oude and cleere."

"DOVE" as a rhyme for "love" represents first aid to young poets.

And now the gentle creature, sad to say, appears as assistant to the bootlegger. Capt. Benton, head of the Los Angeles sheriff's liquor squad, found on the beach an exhausted carrier pigeon, and, tied to its leg, a message, obviously intended for some bootlegger—"Be ready to receive cargo at appointed place off Topanga at 2 a. m."

CHICAGO'S Retail Advertising Institute is told that American women spend every year $53,000,000,000.

A million is a great deal. A thousand millions is a very great deal. Fifty-three thousand millions, spent by the women in this country is an EXTRAORDINARY amount of money.

THEY spend it wisely, as a rule, because they know enough to read advertising carefully, realizing that he who invests millions in his good name, through advertising, will do nothing to jeopardize that name.

Women are said to buy 41 per cent of all automobiles, and 96 per cent of drygoods. They really buy 96 per cent of automobiles also, because men buy what women want or admire.

MR. EDWARD CANTOR, who drops into literature as Mr. Wegg dropped into poetry, says "Four hundred and ninety-six people pay on incomes of $1,000,000 or over. There would be four hundred and ninety-seven if I had listened to my wife instead of my broker."

MANY will smile a sad smile, reading that.

But in a few months, ninety per cent of the many, on slight encouragement, will resume gambling, listening to the dictates of fancy, rather than to common sense.

MRS. RUTH OLSEN, 27, died. A towel 26 inches long, 16 inches wide, left in her body after an operation caused death.

The nurse said she had failed to count the towels, and a jury exonerated the physicians.

Fortunately there are doctors that would not rely on any nurse to count towels, blankets, arm chairs or other articles that might be left in an open wound.

DR. LEVINSTEIN, president of the Society of British Chemical Industries, warns Britain not to be caught napping in knowledge of chemical warfare. Poison gas, he says, will be the main weapon in the next war, regardless of treaties.

THE British chemist warns wisely. Poison gas in the last war shared the honors with airplanes and submarines. In the next war it would make life in cities impossible, and fill the streets with thousands of dead bodies, the moment hostile planes began operations overhead.

MR. DORAN, prohibition commissioner, is said to approve making beer in your own home. To sell it would be illegal.

The result will be much very bad beer, improperly made, drunk too soon, fermenting in the stomach of the foolish drinker.

The wise and prosperous will engage for their private brewery retired brewmasters, of Milwaukee, New York, Cincinnati or St. Louis.

Stevensons Lose Death Air Race

REALTY MAN DIES AS KIN FLY EAST

Wife, Sister, Brother Fail To Arrive From California To See Developer Alive

A race by airplane from Hollywood, Cal., to Pittsburgh was won by death today when A. W. Stevenson, prominent realtor and football coach, died at 11:05 a. m. at his home at 50 Woodhaven drive, Mt. Lebanon.

His wife, his sister, Mrs. W. C. Beall, of Hollywood, and his brother, L. T. Stevenson, of Pittsburgh, were in a plane speeding eastward over the praries toward Columbus.

A. W. Stevenson

The party was visiting the sister in Hollywood when word was wired of Mr. Stevenson's serious condition. They immediately started eastward by airplane. Mrs. A. W. Stevenson had accompanied her husband to California for the Tournament of Roses game on New Years Day, but remained there while he hurried East to care for business affairs. Mr. Stevenson was associate football coach of the University of Pittsburgh.

REALTY LEADER

Mr. Stevenson was general real estate agent of the Philadelphia Company and affiliated corporations. He was also vice president of the Stevenson-Williams Company, well-known Mt. Lebanon realty firm.

His illness began with a mild attack of ptomaine poisoning last Friday. Pneumonia developed later.

Mr. Stevenson was born May 6, 1878, in Eldersville, Washington County, Pa. He graduated from the University of West Virginia, where he gained renown as a football player. He had been a member of the University of Pittsburgh coaching staff since

SEE PINCHOT IN RACE FOR SENATE

Announcement of Candidacy Expected to Be Made by Brookhart on Sunday

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—Ex-Gov. Gifford Pinchot, Pennsylvania's most noted independent Republican, will run for the Republican nomination for United States Senator at the May primaries, it was reported heer this afternoon.

Announcement of Pinchot's candidacy will be made here Sunday by Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Iowa Independent, it is understood, when he speaks before a meeting sponsored by the American Federation of Hosiery Workers.

Schall Calls on Women To Support Vare

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—United States Senator Thomas D. Schall, of Minnesota, told the Republican women of Pennsylvania at a banquet last night that if they did not force William S. Vare to remain in the race for the nomination to the Senate they were "not worth fighting for."

"I have no quarrel with Senator Joseph R. Grundy," Senator Schall said. "I like his frankness and believe he has considerable ability. Nevertheless, you were the people struck at when Vare was rejected by the Senate. His fight is your fight."

It was indicated here that members of the Philadelphia Republican organization's "war board" who urged Senator Grundy to indorse former Attorney General Francis Shunk Brown for the gubernatorial nomination, would meet the Senator again later in the week for another discussion of the situation.

Meanwhile, it was explained, James M. Haslett, chairman of the Republican city committee, and State Senator Samuel W. Salus had deferred their visit to Florida to lay the situation before William S. Vare, opponent of Grundy for the senatorial nomination. It was said to be their hope to induce Vare to withdraw from the race if given assurance that Brown will be accepted by the state leaders.

FIRE PERILS SICK BED OF THUG VICTIM

$15,000 Turtle Creek Loss Follows Three Previous Arson Attempts and Attack

Mrs. Mary Shaner, 34, widow, recuperating from a mysterious attack by a masked man Sunday night, today was rescued by police and firemen when the fourth fire in a week swept her third-floor apartment at 612 Penn avenue, Turtle Creek.

Fire, which evidently started in the bathroom, was discovered at 9 a. m. and when firemen and police arrived, they carried Mrs. Shaner to safety. Chief of Police W. J. Whalen, Fire Chief E. D. Kenyon and Fireman Stewart Freshwater carrier Mrs. Shaner through smoke-filled halls to the home of a neighbor.

Louis Tate, chef in a nearby restaurant, discovered the fire and sounded an alarm.

The building, a four-story brick apartment, was damaged from $15,000 to $25,000, firemen estimated. The first floor is occupied by storerooms of Mrs. Reuben Jaikofsky and Mathew Dornin; the second floor by Drs. W. H. Wangaman and Charles Schmidt and the living apartment of a new tenant; the third floor by apartments and the fourth by a lodge hall. The apartment of Mrs. Shaner on the third floor and the lodge hall were badly damaged.

Last Thursday the first attempt to fire the home occurred. By Friday night two other attempts had been made to destroy the building.

Sunday night, Mrs. Shaner, alone in her home, was attacked and beaten by a man. The intruder wielded a butcher knife wrapped in a bath towel, Mrs. Shaner told police. Then he attempted to strangle her, she said, and fled after taking a diamond ring, which later was recovered.

Since the Sunday night attack Mrs. Shaner has been under the care of a physician. Police and firemen have been investigating the fires and the attack, but have made no headway. They planned to interrogate Mrs. Shaner again as soon as she recovers.

W. Va. Killer Of Three Guilty

ROMNEY, W. Va., Feb. 5.—(INS.)—After deliberating 17 hours, a jury today found Walter Crabtree, who shot and killed Magistrate H. Carter Inskeep and two constables on December 18, guilty of first-degree murder.

The verdict, which the defendant took calmly, carried no recommendation for mercy and the death penalty automatically follows. Crabtree's family was not in the courtroom.

Lindy to Continue Glider Experiments

SANDBERG, Cal., Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Unperturbed by his recent narrow escape when a part of his glider fell off while he was 300 feet in the air, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, in his camp near here today prepared to make further experiments with a motorless plane. The famous airman celebrated his twenty-eighth birthday quietly at Los Angeles yesterday and motored here later in the day.

KLINE CHANGES TRAFFIC GROUP

Mayor Charles H. Kline announced today the reappointment of 26 members of the Better Traffic Committee to serve during his present term, named six new members and dropped one former member.

The name of John A. Staley, Jr., former Traffic Court magistrate, was dropped. The new appointees are Patsy Massarelli, Salvatore Sunseri, Magistrate W. J. P. Soost, of Traffic Court; Stanley Nowicki, Dr. James P. Kerr, Frank Bozic, Somon Carapellucci.

BAR QUIZ OPENS, CALVERT ILL

Attorney George H. Calvert is ill in a New York sanitarium, a committee of the Pennsylvania State Bar was informed today as it began a closed hearing on disbarment proceedings against Calvert and former Judge Henry G. Wasson.

Because of Calvert's illness it was decided to postpone his hearing, but to proceed with that of Judge Wasson. Audit evidence used in the recent court action in the case was accepted as evidence at the disbarment hearing.

Calvert and Wasson are charged, before the Board of Governance of the State Bar, with mismanagement of the $3,000,000 estate of Mrs. Eleanor H. Davidson, widow of Frederick Davidson, former president of the Union Drawn Steel Company, of Beaver Falls. She was adjudged mentally incompetent in 1921.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The Wood resolution to appropriate $5,386,000 to finance the pilgrimage of Gold Star mothers to European battle fields and cemeteries was adopted unanimously today by the House and sent to the Senate.

Plane Drops Food For Birds, Game In State

HARRISBURG, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—An airplane was used today by the state game commission to drop food to wild turkeys and deer in the mountainous sections of Cumberland county, near here.

Three hundred pounds of corn and apples were dropped in sacks over various parts of the area by Harry H. Gibb, a game protector. Game in this and other sections of the state are facing possible starvation from the severe winter and lack of food and the commission recently issued an appeal for feeding the animals.

The plane, a five-passenger cabin model, was lent to the commission by a Harrisburg aviation school.

House Favors More Guards for Hoover

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Additional police protection for the President was indorsed today by the House buildings committee, which recommended passage of the Elliott bill increasing the White House police force from 35 to 43 privates with one additional officer. The force would be transferred to the secret service.

HOOVER TO CALL AS TAFT GAINS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—A slight improvement in the condition of William Howard Taft today prompted Herbert Hoover to take advantage of this opportunity to call on his old friend who nearly a score of years ago held the office of president of the United States.

Hardly had Mr. Taft's physicians issued a bulletin at 11:30 a. m., saying the former chief justice was "slightly better" after a "quiet night" and a "comfortable" morning, than Mr. Hoover announced at the White House that he would call at the Taft home on Wyoming avenue during the afternoon.

SITS IN CHAIR

Ever since Mr. Taft returned here yesterday from Asheville, N. C., Mr. Hoover has kept in close touch with the condition of the patient. About the time the physician's bulletin was made public—and it was given to the press both at the white House and the Taft home—word reached the Chief Executive that Mr. Taft was able to leave his bed and sit

PENNINGTON IN WASHINGTON

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington, of Pittsburgh, was in Washington today conferring with officials of the President's special Crime Commission.

While officials confirmed the fact that Commander Pennington had been a caller at the Crime Commission headquarters, no information was forthcoming as to the nature of the conference.

Later it was learned that the Pittsburgh administrator had called also at the office of Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran.

BERKEY THREAT CHARGED

Burgess Wilbur Beachy, of Somerset, testified in Federal Court today that former Judge John A. Berkey, who is on trial with 14 others on charges of conspiring to violate the liquor laws, called him to Berkey's office and made this accusation:

"You are one of my enemies. You are associating with prohibition agents and permitting them to use your office. You are trying to ruin me and my family. I'm going to have your association with the agents stopped."

A parade of confessed bootleggers followed Beachey to the stand. They linked other defendants to the alleged conspiracy. One told of John E. Custer, a defendant, promising to "fix things up" with Judge Berkey in case of raid. A woman, Mrs. Mazie Henderson, testified she bought liquor from Foster Ziegler. A roadhouse proprietor said William Dittman

Planes, Boats Seek Youths On Ice Nearing Niagara

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Rivermen along the Upper Niagara were preparing early this afternoon to effect a rescue of two youths, eported to be caught in an ice floe and being borne rapidly down stream towards the falls. Residents along the river shore, scanning the river with field glasses, said that two dark objects sighted on the floe appeared to be human beings.

A. J. Campaigne, in charge of the Niagara Falls Power Company's tug, told police that it would be impossible for him to reach the crew of the tug either by boat or signal as the tug was far beyond an outer ice boom. Anxious to effect a rescue, police appealed to boatmen along the Upper Niagara waterfront and several men responded to the call and set out in boats.

Police said that a surveyor, working with a United States Army surveying crew on the upper river shore, told them that he viewed the floe through a surveyor's instrument and that the object on the floe looked like a "cross-arm" on which a coat had been placed.

Several airplanes from the Buffalo airport joined in the rescue efforts this afternoon. One plane flew low over the ice floe.

Loretta Young Vanishes As Kin Fight Marriage

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Further intimation that Grant Withers and Loretta Young, film players, will not calmly submit to an amicable annulment of their recent Arizona airplane wedding appeared in an announcement today by George U. Belzer, stepfather of Miss Young, that the girl was missing from her mother's home.

Belzer said Miss Young had been away two nights and had not communicated with her mother.

The annulment suit was filed by Mrs. Belzer, and at that time it was reported the newly-weds had agreed to the separation plan and would wait until the bride had reached the age of 18.

The bride's parents revealed yesterday, however, that Withers apparently looked with disfavor upon the annulment and had countered with a demurrer to the action.

"The apparent friendliness of Withers and Loretta toward the annulment proceedings," Belzer said, "was nothing but an attempt to fool Mrs. Belzer. They took that friendly attitude so they could disappear, as they have done now."

NAVAL SLASH PACT NEAR IN LONDON

American Proposal Limits U. S. and Britain to 15 Battleships, Japan to Nine

LONDON, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—An international disarmament conference dealing with land as well as sea forces after the five-power conference has been completed was predicted by Prime Minister MacDonald today.

The Prime Minister, replying to a question as to whether he would consider calling a conference of the great powers with a view to a reduction of military forces, pointed out that the disarmament problem, including land forces, had been under careful consideration by the League of Nations for some time. He said:

"I hope that at the conclusion of the five-power conference a further meeting of the preparatory commission on disarmament will be held which will enable the next assembly of the league to arrange for summoning an international disarmament conference."

The highest authority stated today that America, Great Britain and Japan expected to reach a tentative agreement within a few days for reduction of capital ships or battleships contained in those countries' navies.

This source stated that the Americans had submitted definite proposals to Great Britain and Japan. While the details were withheld it was understood the proposed reduction would follow the 5-5-3 capital ship ratio established at the Washington conference. In other words, if Britain and the United States each retained 15 battleships, Japan would retain 9.

DORAN REJECTS BORAH'S DRY CHARGES

Chief Absolves Accused Aide And Denies Wide Diversion Of Industrial Alcohol

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—John F. J. Herbert, whose appointment as prohibition administrator for Montana and Idaho caused attacks by Senators Borah and Wheeler, has been ordered to return to his post by Prohibition Commissioner Doran, who asserted today that no charges of any kind were pending against Herbert.

Doran also answered recent charges of wide diversion of denatured alcohol to bootleg channels by saying diversion last year did not amount to more than 3 per cent of the total production.

Senator Borah and others in congressional circles have asserted recently the diversion of alcohol for illegal purposes was a major prohibition problem.

'LEAK CLOSED'

Doran made no mention of the attacks but he said agents of the Prohibition Bureau in co-operation with United States attorneys have been investigating the situation for the last seven or eight months and have "practically closed this leak."

He added that "appropriate court action may follow" as a result of the inquiry.

The commission said there were 52,405,000 gallons of completely denatured alcohol produced last year, most of which was used as an anti-freeze solution for automobiles.

Doran gave the production of specially denatured alcohol as 54,550,000 gallons. He gave a list of 117 firms, which he described as undoubtedly reputable, who used 44,000,000 gallons, but added that concerns in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, whose permits were revoked by prohibition administrators, only to have them restored by district courts, used 735,000 gallons. He did not name the New Jersey and Pennsylvania firms.

TELLS OF DIVERSION

The commissioner said the principal diversion problem centered in lacquer, thinners, solvents and low grade toilet waters, but asserted diversion from this source was not one-fourth of what it was three years ago.

"The skilled technician will always be able to recover alcohol from a mixture," he said. "The problem consists of making it as difficult and uneconomical as possible."

As for the Herbert case, Doran said all complaints against the administrator had "been thoroughly and painstakingly inquired into and found to be either frivolous or without basis in fact and the matter has been closed."

Herbert, formerly prohibition administrator at Baltimore, was summoned here from the West after Senators Borah and Wheeler had assailed him on the floor of the Senate. Borah, who represents Idaho, said if reports to him about Herbert were true the latter should be in the penitentiary instead of enforcing the dry laws. In summoning Herbert here Doran made it plain it was because of the attacks made by the senators and not from charges pending in the prohibition department.

CAB STRIKER HURT, HOLD 2 DEPUTIES

Guards Fired by Sheriff's Aide After Attack on Man; Taxis Are Stoned Again

Three taxicabs were stoned and two deputy sheriffs suspected of beating up a striking driver were fired today.

These were the latest developments in the strike of 1,400 taxicab drivers who walked out 24 days ago with demands for more pay and recognition of their union.

The deputy sheriffs, Daniel MacGilvry and Robert Stivers, of Charles street, were fired by Chief Deputy B. V. Coffey as they languished in a North Side cell after having been arrested at the scene of the bating.

SKULL MAY BE FRACTURED

The victim was Harry Little, 30, found in front of his home at 15 Isabella street, with a possible fracture of the skull.

The two prisoners were held pending developments in Little's condition. They denied the charge.

DRIVER HIT, 2 ARRESTED

All three stoned cabs were the targets for bricks in Grant street. The windshields of two were smashed, the windows of three were shattered and a driver was hit on the arm with a brick.

Two men were arrested as brick-tossers. They were listed as Ray Biddle, 28, of East Robinson street, and Louis Bresky, 26, of Progress street. Bresky was held for court on an assault and battery charge after his hearing in Central Police Court. Biddle was discharged.

Other developments today were the announcement of a meeting of the strikers in Moose Temple tonight and the return to work of repairmen in the Yellow Cab garage. Two crews which walked out still were absent today.

SHOOTS AT ATTACKERS

Shortly before midnight, police report, several men hurled bottles through the windows of the Yellow Cab Garage, First avenue and Ross street. Patrolman Jesse Delaney on duty in the garage, fired several shots at the men who scattered and fled. Three were arrested.

A riot call was sent to police at the Central station. The officers found Patrolman Delaney holding three men, whom he charges with throwing the bottles. They identified themselves as Frank Stinger, 29, of 1037 Forbes street, Joseph DeRocco, 25, of 1614 Edna street and Joseph O'connor, 32, of 5317 Hillcrest street. Police impounded an automobile in which the men were riding. It is owned by Stinger, police said. Magistrate Leo Rothenberg held the trio over for further investigation at a hearing today in Central Police Court.

When the bottles were hurled into the garage, several men in the place ran to the street where they were met by another barrage of missiles. No one was injured, police stated, and the only damage was several broken windows.

Although a meeting was held yesterday by the striking drivers' executive committee, no statements were given out after the parley. Officials of the Yellow and Green Cab companies had no comment to make on the meeting of drivers scheduled for tonight, not having been advised officially of the meeting.

CURTIS LATE TO BREAK TIE VOTE

Due to his absence, the Senate finally slashed in half the tariff rate on acetic anhydride, used in aspirin manufacture, in the chemical schedule.

If Curtis had been in his chair [illegible] d have broken a tie vote [illegible] ained the higher duty. As [illegible] he came in—just like [illegible] did—a few minutes too late.

The first vote ended 39 to 39 with Curtis missing, on a motion to slash the rate. Senator Harrison, (Dem.), of Mississippi, who voted for the reduction, changed his vote and moved a reconsideration. The Senate agreed, 41 to 38, to vote again, just as Curtis rushed into the chamber. On the second ballot the rate was slashed by a vote of 41 to 39.

tee, Attorneys Thomas C. Hare, of Altoona; Arthur W. Mitchell, of Erie, and C. F. C. Arensberg, of this city, chairman of the committee on hearing masters of the state bar, conducted the hearing in rooms of the Allegheny County Bar Association. A fourth member of the committee, Attorney Francis B. Bracken, of Philadelphia, was not present.

Brief cases filled with papers in the case were taken into the room before the hearing began. Attorney W. B. McFall, Jr., was special prosecutor. Mrs. Catherine Hibbert, mother of Mrs. Davidson, was represented by Attorney W. C. Grubbs. Attorney O. K. Eaton was present as counsel for Wasson. Calvert will be represented by Attorney W. W. Stoner.

The hearing is the first under the board of governance, created by the State Supreme Court in 1928.

Wasson and Calvert resigned as a committee in charge of the estate of Mrs. Davidson and $402,000 in assets of her estate which are said to have been mishandled by them were recovered.

Attorney W. Clyde Grubbs, in behalf of relatives of Mrs. Davidson, filed the disbarment proceedings.

House Chaplain Prays Taft Be Spared

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—The Rev. Dr. James Shera Montgomery asked in his prayer today that opened sessions of the House of Representatives that the life of William Howard Taft be spared. The prayer read in part:

"That most lovable man, gentle jurist and great statesman is ill. In victory and defeat his fellow countrymen take him to the altar of their hearts.

"O, Father of sympathy and consolation, be about yonder heartstone, as it is overcast by heavy grief."

LIQUID SEIZURE UPHELD

Legality of the seizure of 58 drums of alleged tree spraying liquid from the Consolidated warehouse at Thirteenth and Pike streets by prohibition agents several months ago, was upheld in an opinion handed down in Federal Court today by Judge Nelson McVicar.

On January 23 last a libel proceeding was brought by the government for the condemnation of the liquid, on the allegation that it was to be used for manufacturing intoxicating liquors. Counsel for the Agricultural and Chemical Company, of Kearney, N. J., shippers of the liquid to the warehouse, where it was to be consigned to the J. C. Dilworth Company, of Pittsburgh, contended that it was to be used as a spraying liquid.

in an easy chair. The President was highly pleased by the news.

Mrs Taft also informed the President that Mr. Taft would be glad to see him.

Although the physician's still regard Mr. Taft as a seriously ill man, the morning bulletin was the most encouraging word since he tendered his resignation Monday as chief justice of the United States and returned to his home here.

ENCOURAGING BULLETIN

The bulletin read:

"The Chief Justice is slightly better than yesterday. He spent a quiet night and is comfortable this morning."

An indication that apprehensino had lightened a little was seen in the decision of Mrs. Taft to take a short automobile ride.

Numerous cars stopped at the entrance to the Taft home while their chauffeurs delivered messages of greeting to the stricken former President, but few persons were admitted to the household.

There was no police guard because the quietness of the neighborhood made that an unnecessary precaution.

DU PONT'S RUM POLL ASSAILED

WILMINGTON, Del., Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Methodist and Presbyterian ministers throughout the state called upon their congregations today asking them not to sign or return the liquor questionnaires mailed them by Pierre S. du Pont, wealthy Delawarean yesterday.

Du Pont sent out 112,000 of the questionnaires, mailing one to every adult voter of the state in an effort to learn the sentiment of the voters on the repeal of the Klair law of the state for enforcement of prohibition.

Each person was asked to vote yes or no on the question: "Do you favor repeal of the Klair law?"

The voter was also asked whether he would be willing to have his name attached to a petition to the 1931 legislature for or against repeal of the Klair law.

Mailing of the questionnaires aroused the wrath of the clergymen and ministerial associations. The Methodists and Presbyterians especially were incensed and immediately called upon their congregations not to return the questionnaires. Denunciations also were hurled against du Pont.

HOOVER BOOSTS CHARITY CHEST

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—President Hoover, speaking to a group of community chest workers in the East room of the White House today, declared that community chests represent "our greatest advance in the administration of charity."

"The great purpose," he said, "is the handling with large vision of the obligations of a whole city to its less fortunate residents."

The development of the community chest, Mr. Hoover added, had assured skill in the administration of charities as well as freedom from prejudice. The community chest also assures support to charities of vital necessity, but of little emotional appeal.

Warm Spell Yields To Colder Weather

The spell of warm weather prevailing for several days was replaced by colder weather today. Weather Forecaster W. S. Brotzman predicted that temperatures of between 35 and 40 degrees would prevail, and that rain probably would fall.

Protest Withdrawn To Senator Norris

LINCOLN, Neb., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Willard Clapp, of Elmwood, today withdrew a protest he filed January 18 against the certification of Senator George W. Norris, as a candidate for re-election on the Republican ticket in the state primaries.

In his communication to Secretary of State Marsh, Clapp explained he had made the protest to challenge Norris' attention to the statutory provision covering affiliation with a political party and to give Norris an opportunity to demonstrate his "much heralded political honesty" by withdrawing from the Republican party and filing as an independent candidate.

Prosperous Year Seen by J. N. Willys

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Within 30 to 60 days, the effects of the stock market crash of last November will be entirely overcome, John N. Willys, Toledo automobile magnate, predicted today, following a conference in the White House with President Hoover.

Because of great savings in overhead expenses through the use of efficient methods, Willys said he expected 1930 profits in the automobile industry to be as large as those of last year.

Michigan Bandits Rob Bus Passengers

Chemical Chief Commends Mustard Gas for War

"Mustard gas, at present, is probably the most important weapon in modern gas warfare," according to Maj. Gen. Harry L. Gilchrist, chief of the Chemical Warfare Service of the United States Army.

"I have never been able to find any more effective gas. While the mortality rate from mustard gas as from other such vapors, is not high, and permanent disability doesn't often follow, it does have a high rate of temporary disability."

General Gilchrist is in Pittsburgh with his assistant, Maj. Paul X. English, to inspect the resources of the Pittsburgh district in case of war. He will spend two days seeing the manufacturing and producing facilities in this region.

"Gas is not as horrible a weapon as the high explosive shell," he maintained. "Deaths are compared [illegible] and permanent disability is low. I have yet to see that much-talked-of new chemical, a few drops of which are said to be enough to destroy a city."

Boy Escapes Jail, Goes Back in Governor's Car

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Dave Garcia escaped from the Mesa (Ariz.) jail, but as a result of an interview with Gov. John G. Phillips he was back behind the bars today, having returned in the chief executive's automobile.

Garcia, a minor, was arrested on a bad check charge and may be returned to the state penitentiary at Florence, Ariz., as a parole violator. He dug his way out of jail yesterday by chipping the mortar from between bricks in the wall with a spoon and came straight to Phoenix to call on Gov. Phillips.

The Governor said the boy asked his advice about going to California and he advised that he return to jail. As the youngster seemed anxious to follow the suggestion and had no means o transportation the Governor sen him back in his car.

WILKINS' RADIO SILENCED SEVEN DAYS, CAUSE IS MYSTERY

SHE FIRED HER CLERK

JUNE E. WERNER

had threatened him when he refused to put slot machine in his place. Still another told of buying rum from Constable Victor Glassner.

Burgess Beachy was described by James (Duke) Turnbull, alleged bootlegger, testifying for the government, as the official who arrested and fined him for operating slot machines in spite of Berkey's alleged promise of "protection."

RAIDED AND FINED

"Beachy had me raided and fined me," Turnbull testified. "He told me he would have the ordinance changed so that he could fine me more if I persisted in keeping the slot machines in my place.

"After the raid, the machines were removed to my back room and I did not operate them any more."

Turnbull also testified that Peter Hanlon and William Dittman, whom he identified as the men who placed the machines in his restaurant, went to see Beachy to "fix things up," but that they were unable to do anything.

On cross-examination Turnbull admitted that he had been raided after his hearing on the slot machine charge, and that when he pleaded guilty to bootlegging before Judge Berkey he was sentenced to from one to two years in the Allegheny County Workhouse, and to pay a fine of $1,500.

SLOT MACHINE LINK

Claude A. M. Welsh, Berkey's former political lieutenant, who is testifying for the government, said yesterday on the stand that bootleggers who refused to operate slot machines were not allowed to sell liquor and that they had been raided.

Miss June E. Werner, prothonotary of Somerset county, today made clear that Welsh was discharged yesterday as a clerk in her office not because he testified against Berkey, but because his testimony of dealings with bootleggers clearly showed a violation of his oath of office, in Miss Werner's opinion.

Aside from Berkey, Hanlon and Dittman, the others on trial are Foster Ziegler, Ed Darr, Emmet Buckman, Victor Glassner, Harry S Sellers, James McIntyre, John Clark, J. C. Tucker, Ed Sheeler, John Griffith, John Sherman and John Gross.

2 DRUG STORES FACE FEDERAL PADLOCKS

St. Clair Street, Beechview Affected by Injunctions; Four Others Also Named

Two drug stores were among six Pittsburgh places named in preliminary liquor padlock injunctions granted in Federal Court today by Judge R. M. Gibson.

The St. Clair Pharmacy, 901 North St. Clair street, Harry D. Strauss, proprietor, and Johnson's pharmacy, 1665 Broadway, Beechview, Edward W. Johnson, proprietor, were the drug stores named.

Prohibition agents told of also nding whisky and gin in Edward Johnson's home on January 11 and filing a charge of violating the liquor laws against him.

The preliminary padlock injunctions do not entail closing the stores. Final hearings will be held March 4.

Final hearings were set for March 4.

DRESSMAKERS SEE VICTORY

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Gov. Roosevelt's calling of a conference in Albany Friday to discuss the dressmakers' strike, which was launched yesterday, was stamped as a preliminary victory for the strikers by their officials today.

The Governor summoned the strikers' chieftains and their employes to a conference at which it was hoped, he said, a settlement might be reached.

About 25,000 strikers are involved. They have asked the elimination of the sweat shop and better hours and pay.

ILEANA'S COUNT GETS NEW RANK

BUCHAREST, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—The Rumanian government today proclaimed Count Alexander of Hochberg, to whom Princess Ileana is engaged to be married, equal in rank with the Rumanian princes of blood to enable Princess Ileana to keep her rank after marriage.

This measure was taken in the face of protests from various quarters against the forthcoming marriage on the grounds it will not benefit the country politically.

Jail Hunger Striker Keeps Fast 22 Days

ASK CURB ON U.S. COURTS IN N.Y.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The New York telephone rate controversy came up in the Senate today with an appeal by Senator Wagner, (Dem.), New York, for early action on his bill to limit the jurisdiction of Federal courts in questions involving public utilities within the state.

Senator Wagner presented a memorial of the New York state legislature protesting against the assumption for jurisdiction by Federal courts in New York rate cases coming before the Public Utilities Commission.

"Because of this assumption of jurisdiction," Wagner said, "the Federal courts have practically ousted the state courts and regulatory bodies in the control of rates charged by the public utilities of the state."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Assertion that "the average citizen" who takes exchange telephone service "stands to lose" and "cannot gain" through enactment of legislation to provide federal regulation of interstate rates was made today before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee by John E. Benton, attorney for the National Association of Railroad and Utilities commissioners.

The witness opposed the Couzens bill to set up a federal commission to regulate interstate business of all communications companies — Radio, Telephone, Cable and Telegraph.

Eight state utilities and railroad commissioners appeared with Benton, opposing the regulation of telephone service provided by the bill.

Weather Conditions.

Low barometer continues to dominate the weather over much the greater portion of the country, with centers of disturbance over the Canadian Northwest, over the central Mississippi valley and off the New England coast. A high pressure area is centered over Utah and covers the Southwest, and a ridge of relatively high pressure extends northeastward from this high to another high pressure area north of the lakes. It is raining or snowing this morning at widely scattered places, but generous rains occurred over the Middle Atlantic states and the upper Ohio valley during the last 24 hours. The temperature changes were unimportant.

River Conditions.

Moderately heavy rains over the Monongahela River basin started a rise in the Monongahela and the Youghiogheny rivers. The rise in the Youghiogheny was moving this morning at Confluence and West Newton, but it is doubtful if there is sufficient water to bring it out. Stage at Franklin is 2.3 feet. Lock No. 7, 17.1; Pittsburgh, 12.1; Dam No. 4, 9.6; Dam No. 5, 8.9; Dam No. 8, 9.1, and Dam No. 13, 5.5. The dams will be lowered today. About 15.0 feet expected at Pittsburgh Thursday morning.

ALL EFFORTS FAIL TO PICK UP SIGNAL

Fear Felt for Expedition in Antarctic; Breakdown of Wireless Not Considered

DECEPTION ISLAND, Antarctica, Feb. 5. — (Via KUP, San Francisco Examiner wireless station.)—The Antarctic has drawn a mysterious curtain of silence about Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins.

For seven days, both day and night, we have been striving to get in touch with the S. S. William Scoresby without success. Today we tried vainly for seven hours to get word to or from the ship.

The Scoresby, with Capt. Wilkins and his entire personnel aboard, is somewhere in the vast sea of broken ice to the south of us, searching for a runway for the take-off of the proposed Ross Sea flight across the Polar cap.

We are unable to account for the sudden mysterious silence. The Scoresby is equipped with a short wave radio set and should have no trouble in communicating with us. We have even tried using long wave length in hopes that they will hear our signals.

We are worried because we can't imagine a radio breakdown which would keep their set in silence this long. It seems improbable that it could not have been repaired if a breakdown occurred.

LEEDS DENIES PLAN TO WED

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(Universal.)—Reports that William B. Leeds was contemplating another marriage were definitely set at rest when it was learned he may fly the Atlantic before spring in the giant Dornier seaplane.

Leeds, who was divorced Saturday by the Princess Xenia, was reached at his Oyster Bay home in the midst of packing.

He admitted that he had received a tentative offer to make the trip.

The sportsman, who delights in speedboats—he is a licensed pilot—had made plans before his divorce to visit friends and relatives in the Far East. He would not state definitely which of these two trips he would make first.

Asked again regarding the reports that he is planning to remarry, he laughed and said:

"First of all, who would spend a honeymoon flying the Atlantic? Secondly, who would enjoy one in the fever-infested Far East? Thirdly, I am sorry, but I have neither the time nor the inclinations."

He was asked regarding reports of another girl, and said:

"I have made a statement, and anything else you hear, please credit to journalistic hysteria."

GUNMEN LOOT CHICAGO BANK

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Two robbers held up the Hubbard Woods Trust and Savings Bank as it was opened for business today, terrorized employes and customers by firing sawed-off shotguns into the floor, and fled with cash and currency estimated at $3,000. A third waited in an automobile to aid in the escape.

The robbers overlooked $10,000 in the vault, where they herded the employes. Three women who arrived at the bank during the robbery were placed in the vault also.

Officers of the bank, in Hubbard Woods, North Shore suburb, said the two robbers appeared to be brothers. One entered and rounded up the bank force and stood guard while the other came in a moment later and scooped the money into a bag.

TOLEDO, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Five daring bandits today lined 10 employes and customers against the wall of the Farmers and Merchants Bank at Sylvania, a Toledo suburb on the Ohio-Michigan line, robbed the bank of $5,000 and escaped.

The robbers overlooked a $20,000 payroll in the bank vault.

CHAMP JURORS DISAGREE

A jury in Federal Court today disagreed in the case of Moody Champ, Wilmerding police officer, tried on the charge of interfering with prohibition agents in their raid on the store of Theodore Uzelac, Wilmerding, April 16, 1929. The jury was discharged at 12:10 today.

The case was placed in the hands of the jury at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Champ, on the witness stand, denied the allegations. One of the principal witnesses for the police officer was Daisy Uzelac, 15, daughter of the storekeeper.

Immediately after the case was placed in the hands of the jury, Uzelac and his wife were placed on trial before Judge Nelson McVicor on a charge of violating the national prohibition law.

5 Injured as Storm Cripples Big Liner

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 5.—(INS.)—The Holland American liner, Veendam, bound from Rotterdam to New York, put in here today battered by what the captain described as "the worst storm he had ever experienced."

Five members of the crew of the liner were in the sick bay of the vessel from injuries suffered when the decks were swept by giant waves.

The deck house of the liner was damaged and a number of life boats were smashed by the heavy seas. The liner put into port here to make repairs before proceeding to New York.

New York Opens War On Hit-Run Drivers

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Reduction in the number of hit-and-run automobile accidents in New York was looked for today following announcement of the New York Automobile Club that $100 would be paid to any person for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a hit-and-run driver. Only 25 per cent of such drivers are now arrested, it was stated.

BILL PROVIDES $511,225,000 FOR VETS

Supply Measure Reported in House; Hospitalization Service to Be Improved

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Carrying $511,225,000 for the Veterans' Bureau, the 1931 annual supply bill providing $562,172,213 for 28 independent government offices and agencies was reported today to the House by its appropriations committee.

The total is $141,687,627 less than the outlay for the current fiscal year. It is $11,825 below the budget estimates.

OUTLAY INCREASED

The outlay for the Veterans Bureau represented an increase of $11,250,000 over the current appropriation. It is to be taken up largely in compensation to emergency naval and army officers, improving hospital services, adding personnel and in settling insurance claims. Veterans hospitals are allowed $2,000,000 for construction, of $4,000,000 less than for 1930.

The permanent appropriation of $78,530,000, made automatically, also was also included for the Veterans' Bureau.

The outlay for the executive office was placed at $422,320, a reduction of $4,900.

Having reduced its deficit to $6,000,000 compared with $11,000,000 for last year, the shipping board was allowed $6,346,000, a reduction of $5,148,000 and the lowest requested since it began functioning.

RADIO FUND BOOSTED

The Federal Radio Commission was given $450,000, an increase of $285,560 over the current year and $15,000 more than the budget estimate. Broadening of the powers of the commission and the growing difficulty of controlling radio facilities necessitate increased personnel.

The American Battle Monuments Commission of which Gen. John J. Pershing is chairman, was allowed $1,000,000, bringing the total outlay for monuments and cemetery chapels in Europe and England to more than $4,000,000. A total of $4,500,000 has been authorized for the work, which probably will be completed late in 1931.

WAR VETERANS' CLAIMS RISE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The government has expended approximately $1,200,000,000 to date in providing term insurance for members of the naval and military forces engaged in the World War, $750,000,000 more than has been collected in premiums.

These figures were cited by Director Hines of the Veterans' Bureau, in justification for the $11,250,000 increase provided for the bureau. The bill as reported provides $511,250,000 for the bureau, of which $120,000,000 would be expended for this insurance.

In addition, Director Hines said $1,330,000,000 must be met by government appropriations in years to come.

The present rate of compensation applications, Hines told a House committee, indicated that by June 30, 1930, there would be 274,188 active awards of disability compensation, with an average monthly payment of $46.98. More than 10,000 applications for compensation were filed in the first four months of the fiscal year 1930, he added. Records show about 30 per cent of the applications are granted.

To meet increasing demands of veterans for medical and hospital treatment, the bill carries $196,000,000, an increase of $3,950,000 over last year.

Prosperity Claimed True Dry Law Test

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Prohibition is an overwhelming success, judged on "its proper basis"—that the country is prosperous, was the claim advanced in a book by Samuel Crowther, published here today.

In his volume, "Prohibition and Prosperity," the author states that prosperity is the sole basis on which the success of the amendment should be judged.

Alden Kin's Balm Suit Nearing Jury

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—The case of Alden S. Condict, descendant of the famous John Alden, the Puritan, against Dr. and Mrs. Fenton B. Turck, was expected to go to the jury today. Condict seeks $150,000 from the Turcks for supposedly alienating the affections of their daughter and his former wife, Katherine Turck Condict.

Flier Forced Down, Held in Theft Of Plane

CLARKSVILLE, Ga., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Miles E. O'Connor was in jail here accused of larceny of an airplane from Fairfax, Virginia.

O'Connor was arrested near Cornelia, Ga., Sunday, where he was forced to land last week because of motor trouble. He brought the plane down in a cotton field with only minor damage.

Cornelia officers investigated the landing of the plane and arrested O'Connor when he returned for it Sunday.

Sheriff C. P. Wilbanks, of Habersham county, said O'Connor was being held pending word from Virginia authorities. O'Connor has not discussed the acquisition of the plane with the sheriff, the latter said.

$325,000 ASKED IN BLAST

Two suits growing out of the Munhall postoffice explosion December 5 last, seeking to recover an aggregate of $325,000 damages, were filed in Common Pleas Court with the Equitable Gas Company and Arthur E. Braun and the Colonial Trust Company, executors and trustees of the estate of John Munhall, deceased, named as defendants.

John and Mary Lipay, of Munhall, in behalf of their daughter Mary, aged 13, asked $250,000 damages for injuries to the girl alleged to have been hurled from the postoffice by the explosion. Both arms were broken and she suffered serious burns and injuries to her legs and body, permanently crippling her, the suit alleged.

Martin King asked $75,000 damages for injuries from the blast which he claimed resulted in a fractured skull, necessitating removal of a portion of his brain and destroyed the hearing of one ear. He stated he was in a passing street car at the time of the explosion.

The suits averred that the main and service lines were defective ad worn, that gas had escaped for a long period and that repairs had been negligently made, with failure of proper inspection.

All Robber Did Was Walk In, Take Cash

The robber who stole $320 from the dry goods store of J. H. Ebs at 7 Arlington avenue had things pretty much his own way, according to a report to city detectives today. Sleuths were told the robber entered through an open rear door into a hallway beside the store. A door into the store also was left open. The safe containing $500 had been left open and all the robber had to do to take from the cash register was to ring up a sale and remove the money.

Nationalists Rout Rebels in China

LONDON, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Nationalist Cantonese troops have routed the rebels at every turn in numerous clashes in the Province of Kwangsi, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Hong Kong stated today.

The Nationalist forces are now making every effort to capture Nanning, a stronghold, in Kwangsi held jointly by rebels and Communists.

Wilmerding Police Chief Lowest Paid on Force

It doesn't pay for a police officer to become ambitious in Wilmerding. Chief H. L. Snyder found that to be true last night when Borough Council made him the lowest paid member of his department.

At the same time Moody Champ, long a police storm center, was told to "pound a beat," being forced to relinquish his captaincy to Richard Butler, a patrolman of one month's service.

Former Chief James B. Maguire, fired a month ago, was rehired, this time as a patrolman. He is also health officer and now the highest paid man.

Chief Snyder asked for a monthly salary of $225, the same as that paid Maguire as police head. He was given $175. His patrolmen receive $192 and his captain $210. Maguire from his two jobs draws $242.

The vote on Chief Snyder's salary was split four to three. Councilmen J. W. Carthew, W. J. Boyle and W. F. Pugsley favored the chief. President Frank Kukurin and Councilmen James Volpe, M. J. Dempster and Charles H. Ray voted nay. The majority members pointed out the chief's salary was fixed by ordinance at $175 a month, but the chief could also be health officer at $50 per if he could get the job.

But Maguire acquired unto himself that position early in January by appointment of the health board, and now has a healthier salary income than when he was saluted as chief.

MEXICO SWEARS ORTIZ RUBIO AS PRESIDENT

'Good Relations' With U. S. Noted; He Pledges Five Years' Work for People

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Stressing the "particularly good realtions" existing between Mexico and the United States, and pledging his government to five years of hard work in the interest of the common people, Pascual Ortiz Rubio took office today as president of Mexico.

It was the second time in recent history that a civilian took over the reins of power in Mexico peaceably, President Portes Gil, who retired today, being the first.

At least 40,000 persons had jammed their way into the National Stadium for the inaugural and in the crowd were perhaps 2,000 Americans.

BRIEF, COLORFUL

Deputy Melchor Ortega, president of the joint session of Congress meeting on a wooden platform in the center of the field, administered the oath.

The ambassadors of 15 nations and the entire diplomatic corps accredited to Mexico were assembled in formal dress on the platform, which also seated all of the high military commanders, the state governors, the Supreme Court magistrates and other important officials.

The ceremony, which took place at noon, was brief but was accompanied by the same colorful military display that characterized the inauguration of President Portes Gil on December 1, 1928.

PRESIDENT GUARDED

Retiring and incoming presidents passed from the National Palace through lanes of troops into the gates of the stadium, cavalry detachments in dress uniforms acting as escorts.

Reuben Clark, legal counsellor of the embassy, headed the diplomatic representatives of the United States at the inauguration as a special ambassador appointed by President Hoover.

Extreme precautions were taken to avert disorders. Available troops were kept ready for call in garrisons and on the line of march from the palace to the stadium.

Federal district authorities recently uncovered an alleged plot by followers of Jose Vasconcelos, defeated candidate, to assassinate Ortiz Rubio and the retiring president, Emilio Portes Gil, terrorize the city and seize the reins of government. It was believed 19 arrests made at the time frustrated the plot.

Ohio County May Sue In Hospital Fraud

CANTON, O., Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Court action may be invoked to recover $7,500 lost by the Stark County treasury through alleged bribery transactions in the construction of the Molly Stark Tuberculosis Sanitarium, which have already resulted in the conviction of Albert L. Thayer, New Castle, Pa., architect for the hospital. Prosecutor James M. Aungst indicated today. Evidence in Thayer's trial showed that the Melbourne Construction Company had collected an amount similar to the original bid on linoleum, although the floor covering was supplied by another firm.

Man Jailed for Driving Horse Recklessly

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Oh, Mr. Ripley will you just listen to this.

Thomas Downey, 26, decided today to serve two days in jail rather than pay a fine of $25 assessed for driving a horse and wagon in a reckless manner and it happened right here on the streets of New York.

Downey was in court to face the charge and admitted he "might have been wrong."

Young Will Speak At Crafton Dinner

Charles H. Young, of the Public Service Commission, will be the principal speaker at a dinner to be given under the auspices of the Crafton Business Men's Association in the First United Presbyterian Church, Crafton, at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow. Members of borough council, school board and civic organizations have been invited.

Commissioner Young will explain why the Public Service Commission was originated, its duties relative to corporations and municipalities, and the rights granted to each to take exceptions to its findings. H. Scott Schweinsberg will preside.

2 CAUGHT AFTER AUTO CRASHES

Captured after a chase in Mt. Lebanon following the wrecking of an automobile, said by police to have been stolen, Elmer Volzer, 19, of 116 Laclede street, Mt. Washington, and Earl Gedeon, 20, of 411 Chalfant street, Beltzhoover, were in the county jail today. They will be arraigned before Justice of the Peace Ira Edmundson, of Mt. Lebanon, Friday.

Patrolman William Smith, of Mt. Lebanon, apprehended the youths in Washington road near the Mt. Lebanon Cemetery last night when the pair abandoned the car after it crashed into a pole at Shady and Alfred streets, he said.

Questioned at the Mt. Lebanon Police Station by Acting Lieut. John Kauper, Volzer admitted police reported, having taken the car from in front of the Capitol Theater, Belthoover and Warrington avenues. The automobile was the property of Morris M. Finkel, of 6524 Dalzell place, manager of the theater.

BURKE TO TALK AT P. R. R. FEAST

E. W. Armstrong, president of the banquet association, announced today that James Francis Burke, counsel for the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, and Frank W. Geiger, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio and a former Common Pleas Court judge, will speak at the ninth annual banquet of the transportation department employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad, central region, in the William Penn Hotel Saturday night.

E. W. Armstrong

W. R. Triem, superintendent of freight transportation, will be toastmaster, and the Rev. W. H. Hanna, pastor of the Knoxville Christian Church, will officiate as chaplain.

M. W. Clement, vice president in charge of operation, will head a delegation of system officers from Philadelphia, and E. W. Smith, vice president, of Pittsburgh, will head the list of local officials. Mayor Charles E. Kline and other city officials will attend as the guests of E. T. Whiter, vice president.

Justice Goldstein Makes Goldstein Stay Goldstein

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—One Louis Goldstein sought judicial permission to change his name to Golding on the ground that Goldstein was not an authentic American name. The court said that the only authentic American names were those of Indians; that the petitioner was seeking by subterfuge to conceal his religion and racial identity. The decision was delivered by Justice Louis Goldstein.

Pittsburgher Freed Of Forgery Charge

Samuel Scott, 24, of 1802 Morningside avenue, Pittsburgh, was released from custody of the State Highway Patrol at Parnassus last night after he had cleared himself of complicity in connection with the alleged forging of checks. Canfield Sutton, 45, of near Butler, who was arrested with Scott, was held for further questioning.

Sutton and Scott were placed under arrest by Privates Robert Clark and J. M. Burnsworth on Monday.

MAROONED GIRL TO FLY OFF SHIP

POINT BARROW, Alaska, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Provided the weather permits, Miss Marion Swenson, her father, Olaf Swanson, and Capt. Milovzorov, master of the fur-trading ship, Nanuk, will take off today from North Cape, Siberia, for Teller, Alaska, in a plane piloted by Capt. Pat Reid, Canadian.

The Swensons and Capt. Milovzorov have been aboard the ice-marooned fur trading ship Nanuk at North Cape since early last autumn.

Miss Swenson radioed announcement of the flight plans from the Nanuk. She said that after reaching the Alaskan mainland Captain Reid planned to return to the ship with a plane load of gasoline for aircraft operating near the Nanuk in the search for the bodies of Pilot Carl Ben Eielson and Mechanic Earl Borland, whose wrecked plane was found 90 miles southeast of North Cape several days ago.

Eielson and Borland were lost November 9.

FLIERS TO RACE AROUND WORLD

CLEVELAND, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—An airplane race around the world is in prospect this year, it was learned today, following the announcement here of John Henry Mears, New York show producer and globe trotter, that he has contracted for a Lockheed Vega plane and will attempt to better the Graf Zeppelin's mark of 21 days 7 hours and 34 minutes.

Harry A. Hunter, Cleveland manufacturer and aviation enthusiast, already has contracted for a Fokker plane and announced his intention of contesting the Graf's round-the-world record.

Mears hopes to circumnavigate the globe in 12 days. He will be accompanied, he said, by Bernt Balchen, pilot of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's south pole flight.

Mears and Balchen will hop off from New York on June 1. Their itinerary from there will include Harbor Grace, Newfoundland; Valentia Island, Ireland; Moscow; Kurgan, Novo-Sibirsk, Chita and Vladivostok, Siberia; Tokio; Petropavlovsk, Siberia, and Seward, Alaska, to Seattle and thence to New York.

Mears in 1913 and again in 1928 held the round-the-world record. He captured the title in 1928 with the late Capt. C. B. D. Collyer.

Steck Announces Senate Candidacy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Senator Steck, Dem., of Iowa, announced today his candidacy for renomination at the Iowa primary in June with the promise of an "aggressive" campaign if selected by his party.

Steck won his seat in the Senate after a long contest with Senator Brookhart (Rep.) of Iowa. The Senate voted in April, 1926, that Steck had defeated Brookhart in the bitterly contested 1924 election. Brookhart then was elected in the 1926 election for the seat held by the late Senator Cummins.

'Quadrumvir' Buried By Fascist in Rome

ROME, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Every activity in Rome was stilled this afternoon for the funeral of Michele Bianchi, minister of public works. Only the roar of an aerial escort and the roll of drums heralded the funeral procession up Via Nazionale to the Piazza Dell' Esedra.

Highest officials of the Fascist state followed the simple bier of Bianchi, the first to die of the "Quadrumvirs" who led the Fascist march on Rome in 1922.

Woman Indorsed For U. S. Tax Board

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Miss Annabelle Matthews, of Washington and Atlanta, was favorably reported today by the Senate finance commission for appointment to the U. S. Board of Tax and Customs Appeals. She was indorsed by the committee in December but her nomination was re-committed when some objections were raised on the floor of the Senate.

Death Reveals Aged Mendicant Rich Doctor

CLARENDON, Ark., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—A 63 year-old man, supplied with food and medicine by neighbors during his last illness here, has been identified through a Baylor University diploma as Dr. B. C. Chamness, wealthy physician, who left Ross, Tex., 20 years ago.

The diploma was found upon his death yesterday. Miss Ruby Wiggins, a telephone company employe here, then succeeded in locating Dr. Chamness' four children. They are H. T. and Addie Chamness, of Dallas, Tex., Merritt Chamness, of Mexico City, and Mrs. L. I. Terry, of Daytona Beach, Fla.

Miss Wiggins said a cousin, A. H. Chamness, of Paris, Tex., had informed her of the doctor's large Texas holdings. The relative was quoted as saying that Dr. Chamness and his first wife separated before he left Texas but that he remarried in Little Rock, Ark. He came here seven years ago.

PHYSICIAN SUES OVER PERMITS

Dr. Delano C. Thomas, Edgewood physician with offices in the oForbes Building, Oakland, today filed suit in Federal Court asking that John D. Pennington, prohibition administrator, and James M. Doran, commissioner, be ordered to return to him his right to issue liquor prescriptions for medicinal purposes.

The suit asks the court to review the proceedings of January 10 when the physician's permit was revoked.

Dr. Thomas' permit was revoked following an alleged seizure of liquor in his home by Edgewood police and the subsequent turning over of the case to prohibition authorities. The case is pending before the United States commissioner.

Dinner to Honor Syria Temple Chief

C. H. Landefeld of Monongahela City, potentate of Syria Temple, will be honored Friday night at a testimonial dinner in the William Penn Hotel. About 1,500 are expected to attend. Louis Huck is general chairman in charge of arrangements. Oakley W. Heselbarth is chairman of the speakers' committee.

LYONS LAUDS CHAIN STORES

The chain store will never drive the independent merchant out of business; in fact, the chain store has been a blessing in disguise to the independent retailer because it has caused him to clean house and to study his consumer's needs with great profit to himself.

These views were expressed last night by R. W. Lyons, executive vice president of the National Chain Store Association, in a lecture before the Retailing Advertising Institute at the Hotel William Penn.

R. W. Lyons

"The chain store will never drive the independent out of business," Mr. Lyons said, "because it is increasingly recognized that retailing success, like that of manufacturing, results from the application of definite principles which are not vague or mysterious, but rather scientific and well recognized.

"The chain store has been a blessing in disguise to the alert independent merchant. The chain store example has caused the independent merchant to clean up his store and dress up his show window. It has taught him that retailing is a selling business and not a buying business—that hours wasted in interviewing too many salesmen may be better employed in studying the needs of the consumer."

Hearing Set for New Appeal by Pantages

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The Appellate Court has set February 13 for hearing an appeal by Alexander Pantages, wealthy theater operator, convicted of criminal assault, from two recent Superior Court denials of his applications for release on bail on account of ill health.

Three justices of the Court of Appeals signed the order, which allowed eight days in which to notify District Attorney Buron Fitts and Attorney General U. S. Webb of the hearing. Pantages was sentenced to serve one to 50 years in San Quentin prison for attacking Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer.

Mystery of Baby's Birth Starts City Investigation

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—City health authorities today launched an investigation into mystifying circumstances surrounding the reported birth of an infant daughter of Mrs. George X. Schaefer at a Portland hospital two weeks ago.

While Mrs. Schaefer asserted that the child, named Georgietta Jane, was born at Portland Maternity Hospital by a Caesarian operation performed by Dr. Daniel Meyers on January 21, the doctor last night denied he had attended the woman, the hospital denied the birth occurred there and a nurse who examined Mrs. Schaefer declared she found no evidence of such an operation or any indication of accouchement.

Schaefer was at work when he received a telephone call from a friend who informed him that he had become a father. Because the informant failed to name the hospital in which the birth was reported to have taken place, Schaefer located his wife only after searching for a week.

Schaefer last night said that, although some of the aspects of the case puzzled him, he had implicit faith in his wife's assertions. He asserted that the city should "keep its records straight."

As for the records, Dr. John C. Abele, city health officer, said he was told by Dr. Meyers that the latter's signature on the birth certificate was a forgery.

To add to the mystery, the nurse who examined Mrs. Schaefer declared the baby was at least six weeks old.

Court Nullifies Code Denying Jury Trials

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—The United States Supreme Court will be asked to review a decision of the District Court of Appeals upholding the right of trial by jury in minor cases.

Justice Robb in the highest tribunal of the District of Columbia judiciary, overruled a decision of a police court judge in denying a jury trial to W. H. Colts on a charge of reckless driving. Colts' sentence of 30 days in jail was set aside. Robb's decision in effect nullified a section of the District code denying jury trial for offenses where the penalty on conviction is less than 90 days in jail and the fine less than $300.

Robb's decision attracted considerable attention here because of the recent proposal of the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission to have minor prohibition cases tried before a United States commissioner without a jury.

ALLEGED THIEF HELD TO TRIAL

Accused of having committed a series of robberies in Springdale, Cheswick, New Kensington and Erie, George Baughman, 22, of Parnassus, was held for court by Justice of the Peace Lawrence Sutton, of Springdale, last night. His loot amounted to $1,500, Springdale police say.

The prisoner confessed, it was testified, to the holdup of a filling station, a building and loan office, a barbecue stand, robbing of a private residepce and the theft of automobiles.

Motorcycle Policeman Harry Lloyd, of Springdale, arrested Baughman. A sweater said to have been stolen in Erie, was found in the automobile in which he was riding at the time of arrest, police say.

National Anthem Bill Reported Favorably

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The House judiciary committee today favorably reported the Linthicum bill to make the "Star Spangled Banner" the national anthem. The measure was reported out without giving the author of the words, Francis Scott Key, credit. It merely stated that the composition known as the Star Spangled Banner be adopted as the national anthem.

WASHINGTON ON KNEES SCORED

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Rupert Hughes' attack on the character of George Washington as handed down by some historians was again under discussion today. Speaking at a fraternity meeting here the author belabored government officials for permitting the issuance of a stamp showing the first President in a kneeling posture.

"In issuing a series of two-cent stamps to commemorate Valley Forge with a picture of George Washington kneeling in prayer in the snow, an extravagant government is issuing 2,000,000 indorsements of what all historians know to be a downright lie," the author said.

He added that Washington was in no sense a religious man.

Picture Director's Wife Asks Divorce

NICE, France, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Mrs. Frederick Alan Crosland, wife of the motion picture director, has applied for divorce here. Mrs. Crosland, who was born Juanita Fletcher, was married to Alan Crosland in New York in April, 1917. She has been living in Cannes recently.

31 HELD AT BAY, $3,000 STOLEN

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—While other members of their gang stood guard in strategic positions outside, two robbers last night held up the main office of the Western Union Telegraph Company in the heart of the financial district here.

Witnesses placed the number of men in the gang at 10 and said that one of the number carried a sub-machine gun, while others were armed with revolvers. Police in a report made public early today denied that a machine gun had been used. The company estimated the amount of loot at $3,000.

Eleven employes were forced to a corner of the office by one of the robbers, who warned them to keep away from the police alarm "buzzers." Twenty customers were ordered into another corner. One of the robbers went to the safe, but found it locked. He then scooped up all of hte money in the cash drawers.

The robbers fled in two automobiles, witnesses said.

Fine Fur Coats

Special $245

A group of fine fur coats, all of them reduced from prices originally much higher, are to go at this very moderate figure. They include both women's and misses' coats, of the following furs:

Gray Caracul	Muskrat
Black Caracul	Hudson Seal*
Tan Caracul	Raccoon

In some cases there is just one coat of a kind, so the group should be seen early.

*Dyed Muskrat.

. . . Horne's, Second Floor . . .

Black Coats, $55

NEW coats priced on the basis of reduced ones—that is what is making this group so popular that we can scarcely keep the coats in stock . . . Just now we have received another order of them, making a full size range again, 34 to 44.

All are of handsome black cloths, with generous collars and cuffs of black caracul, skunk or gray kit fox.

. . . Horne's, Second Floor . . .

Now— Lounging Jewelry

It was bound to happen . . . now that smart women are wearing pajama ensembles for so many occasions . . . women who know that an ensemble just isn't worthy of the name unless the proper jewelry accompanies it.

These new necklaces are large pastel-colored beads of prystal (simulated) or of bakelite—extremely light in weight. Two and three colored beads are strung on the same strand, and some of the necklaces are in mottled effects. Priced $1.75 to $6.00.

. . . Horne's, Main Floor . . .

A Valentine for Baby

Even the most precocious infant would probably be quite unimpressed by one of the lacy, flower-bedecked valentines that some of the rest of us like. But he'd be more than pleased with a quaint new rattle with bells and streamers, or a water ball or rubber toy.

In the Infants' Section are hundreds of new novelties of every description . . . alphabet rattles, sets of tiny military brushes for infant gentlemen, high chair pads—and too many others to enumerate. Ranging in price from 25c for rattles to $22.50 for elaborate clothes trees.

. . . Horne's, Third Floor . . .

Pique Neckwear

Continues to Be Smartest

Smart because the styles are new and flattering . . . because pique emphasizes the luster of all dress materials . . . because it launders beautifully.

The newest types are a tie variation of that becoming "petal" collar created by Chanel . . . a Grecian border design . . . and a demure Peter Pan style with dainty ruffled edges. Each style has matching cuffs . . . and comes in white or ecru. At the surprisingly low price of $1.00.

. . . Horne's, Main Floor . . .

Shoes for Tap Dancing

Tap dancing has become the fashion . . . girls and women everywhere are becoming quite expert performers. And they're coming here, to the Girls' Shoe Section for the shoes they need.

February Furniture Sale

A Remarkable Group of Bedroom Suites

24 Suites Marked Far Less Than Regular

In order to prove emphatically, convincingly, and conclusively that families with modest incomes CAN afford Horne furniture, we will bring forward tomorrow morning twenty-four beautiful four-piece suites from our regular stock at a price that is nowhere near the level at which such quality is usually sold.

It is not often, even in one of our semi-annual sales, that bedroom suites of this character are to be had for so little. The very unusual nature of the values will be recognized quickly.

There are five different designs . . . and only a few suites of each design. As the quantity is limited—and the savings are so great—we cannot believe that the opportunity to buy them will last more than a day or two.

Convenient Terms May Be Arranged

. . . Horne's, Sixth Floor . . .

In the group are the following 4-piece suites: (All comprise bed, dresser, chest and vanity unless otherwise mentioned).

Duncan Phyfe, all-mahogany—Louis XVI, satinwood-and-mahogany — Sheraton, all-mahogany, with rosewood inlays—Early American adaptation, all-mahogany — Hepplewhite, mahogany-and-gumwood (this suite with dressing table instead of vanity). Your choice at $165.00.

American "Oriental" Rugs

A Special Display During the February Furniture Sale

The soft, jewel-like colorings, the luster and life, the silky nap, the deep-pile and the lovely sheen of these American-made rugs combine with the new furniture to form a symphony of beauty. The newest Oriental reproductions are now being shown . . . duplicating the patterns and colors in Sarouks, Kermans, Ispahans, Bijars and others.

They are made of the same sturdy yarns as Oriental rugs, the finest dyes, and with the same finishing process. Yet they cost no more than ordinary domestic rugs.

9x12-Ft. Size, $150 and $185

In smaller sizes: 27x54 inches, $15.50; 36x63 inches, $25.00; 4.6x7.6 feet, $53.00; 6x9 feet, $96.00; 8.3x10.6 feet, $138.00.

BLONDE LOSING 'PEP' IN JAIL

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Feb. 5.—Irene Schroeder is losing some of her "pep," according to information emanating from the Lawrence County Jail, where she awaits trial with W. Glenn Dague, for the murder of Corp. Brady Paul, of the State Highway Patrol.

A letter received from her sister, Mrs. Martha Schoeman, takes cognizance of that fact, for the sister wrote Irene "a game fish swims upstream with the sunny-side up."

The letter also intimated that Dague is about to receive a suit to replace that which he has been wearing for some time, the sister telling Irene about "getting Glenn's suit and sending it on."

D. L. Cowles, ballistician of the Cleveland, O., police force, was in the city for the purpose, it is said, of investigating a possible linking of Dague with the shooting of a policeman there.

Former Judge W. P. Barnum, of Youngstown, O., chief of counsel for the defense, met his clients in the county jail for the first time yesterday. He was accompanied by Attorney Kedgewin Powell, also of Youngstown, Attorney Thomas W. Dickey, of New Castle, and Attorney Benjamin Jarrett, of Farrell, Pa., other members of the defense counsel.

The question of whether the two will stand trial jointly or separately will be determined in a short time by the prosecutor.

DRAFT N. Y. BILL FOR BEER, WINE

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Sale of light wines and beer by the state would be provided for under the terms of a legislative bill drafted by Assemblyman Langdon W. Post, New York Democrat. A maximum alcoholic content of 15 per cent for wine and 6 per cent for beer would be allowed, the legislator said in explaining his measure.

The measure would create a board of control in the State Department of Health, the board to possess the power "to buy, sell, import, store and transport within the boundaries of the State of New York light wines and beer."

Authorities on constitutional law, the Assemblyman said, had agreed with him that his plan would not be in violation of the Eighteenth Amendment, which, he said, "leaves to Congress and the several states the right to pass upon enforcement statutes, included in which is the right to establish the legal maximum alcoholic content."

CLAIM RECORD ON BROADCAST

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Feb. 5.—(INS.)—General Electric Company officials here today claimed a new radio broadcast record, following a program from W2XAF, an experimental short wave station. It was stated the program broadcast here was picked up by a short wave station in Sydney, Australia, and rebroadcast to Schenectady, where it was picked up and transferred to WGY, the company's regular station, and again broadcast.

The radio impulses traveled about 20,000 miles in time of about one eighth of a second, it was claimed.

Admits Mail Theft, Placed on Probation

Frank Brazinski, 37, was placed on probation for one year by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson when he pleaded guilty of stealing two letters from the mail in Homestead, December 10, 1929. When arrested two days later and taken to the office of the United States marshal, he tried to escape from the building by climbing out of a third-story window. Since then he has been in jail.

The letters he admitted stealing contained checks for $5.60 and $1.90 and was arrested after a tempting to have them cashed.

Ford Spends Day At Home of Lees

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—After spending most of the day at Stratford, ancestral home of the Virginia Lees, Henry Ford, Detroit automobile manufacturer, left here in his private railroad car for a vacation in Florida. He was accompanied by Mrs. Ford and his private secretary.

Swissvale Files School Bond Plan

A resolution calling for the issuance of $80,000 in bonds for completing and equipping the Dickson Public School, Swissvale, was filed in Quarter Sessions Court yesterday. The resolution was passed at a meeting of the Swissvale School Board Monday night.

SECOND MILLION TO DARTMOUTH

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The New York Times today says G. F. Baker, financier, has made a new donation of $1,000,000 to Dartmouth College for the maintenance and operation of the Baker Memorial Library there.

Mr. Baker provided $1,100,000 several years ago for the construction of the library, in Hanover, N. H., as a memorial to his uncle, Fisher Ames Baker, Dartmouth '59.

While efforts to reach Mr. Baker were unsuccessful, and Dr. Ernest Mark Hopkins, president of Dartmouth, declined to confirm or deny the gift, confirmation was obtained by the Times from an authoritative source.

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

SPEEDING DRUG BUREAU BILL

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—When a report from the Treasury Department relative to the Porter bill creating an independent narcotics bureau is received, the House Ways and Means Committee will immediately start hearings, it was announced today by Representative Hawley (Rep.), of Oregon, chairman of the committee.

The Treasury Department was called upon yesterday by Hawley to submit the report.

As the committee is anxious for early hearings, Hawley requested a prompt reply.

Treasury chiefs have already indicated they have no objection to the legislation. Representative Porter (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, author, has discussed the proposal with Secretary of Treasury Mellon, Under-Secretary Mills, Assistant Secretary Lowman and Prohibition Commissioner Doran.

Not only will the bill provide a separate narcotics bureau in the Treasury Department, under responsible leadership, but it will require a committee of medical men to pass on the country's annual legitimate requirements for drugs.

A companion bill, licensing all dispensers of narcotic drugs, is before the Foreign Affairs Committee, of which Porter is chairman. As soon as the Ways and Means Committee has reported the re-organization bill to the House for passage, Porter will hold hearings on the license measure. Prominent physicians all over the country have endorsed it.

Gandhi May Base Drive on Salt Tax

ALLAHABAD, India, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Reports were current here that civil disobedience in connection with the payment of the salt tax may be put forward by Mahatma Gandhi, Indian leader, as part of the nationalist movement for the independence of India.

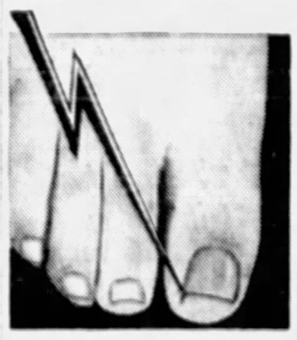
It was understood that Gandhi would put the plan before the working of the Indian National Congress committee, which will meet at Ahmadabad shortly.

GROUNDED 'SUB' SAFE IN PORT

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Feb. 5.—(INS.)—The U. S. submarine O-3 was to be inspected today for damage as a result of going aground last night on a ledge off the coast near Rye, N. H.

The submersible, with its three officers and crew of 32 men, was floated and brought to the Navy yard here by Navy tugs, while wireless messages were being flashed to ships at sea to aid in the rescue.

Lieut. William L. Ware, in charge of the submarine, said today he did not think the craft was damaged to any extent. The submarine went aground during a heavy snowstorm. The sub was built in 1913 and is known as a "baby sub," being only 172 feet long.



Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!
Pain Stops Instantly!

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

Police Seek Man In Second Holdup

GREENVILLE, Pa., Feb. 5.—Police are searching for a Negro who made a second holdup in less than a week here. He stopped Gardner Wells, 35, and relieved him of $10. Several days ago a Negro stopped Myron Young, who was walking along the Sharon road, but Young had no money with him.

NAVY PERFECTS SUB PHONE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP)—A system for two-way voice communication between surface vessels and submarines resting on the sea bottom has been developed by the Navy.

The device is similar to speech amplification units used in auditoriums, though more rugged and equipped for hydrostatic rather than atmospheric pressure. Watertight, it is designed for rough usage and is equipped with an electro-magnet to hold it against the hull of a submarine.

Tests have proved the apparatus satisfactory. With minor improvements, it will be installed as standard equipment on submarine rescue vessels.

All operating apparatus is carried on the surface ship, the Navy said, and nothing is required on the submarine. The hull of the submarine acts as a diaphragm and sound conductor. A simple switching device on the surface vessel permits either transmission or reception. Initial tests demonstrated that good modulation was obtained, and different voices could be distinguished.

PERU TO BUILD RAIL LINE

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 5.—(AP)—The Peruvian press has published the terms of a newly-enacted law authorizing the president to contract with a Peruvian or foreign concern for the construction of a railway from the Yurimaguas River to the coast.

The finance department has enacted congressional authorization to obtain a $2,500,000 loan from a Peruvian corporation. The funds will be used to purchase property rights at the old French mole and docks at Callao which are being replaced with port works now under construction.

Hectic Days... Sleepless Nights
"NERVES" All Tired Out
Every day, thousands of people drive themselves to the limit of endurance. Then their keyed-up, work-weary nervous systems refuse to relax and allow them to rest. Here is a safe, harmless way to quiet the "NERVES" and get refreshing relief—a pleasant Effervescent Drink. Try it. Your money back if it fails.

IN this fast moving, motoring, flying, radio crowded era, few people escape excess nerve strain. The ceaseless noise and din—the constant rush and speed of modern life, all put an extra strain on our nervous systems. How often have you gone through fretful, nerve-racked days—cancelled engagements the last minute—spent miserable evenings with friends or endured sleepless nights... because your "NERVES" were tense and refused to relax.
NOW—when your "NERVES" are fagged and frazzled...when they are tense and jumpy—when Nervous Headaches, Sleeplessness, Nervous Indigestion and similar nervous troubles beset you—
Quiet Your "NERVES" This Delightful Way
Whenever you are nervous, drop an Effervescent NERVINE Tablet into a glass of water. It bubbles up like sparkling spring water. You'll like the pleasant effervescent drink it makes. Drink it—and see how effectively it quiets your "NERVES"—relaxes the nervous tension and gives nature a chance to help you get the rest or sleep you need. Mr. Nate Wagner, the well-known actor and singer in the musical show "My Maryland" says:—

"In my profession 'Nerves' are cruelly unstrung at times. Dr. Miles' Effervescent NERVINE Tablets have been of inestimable help in bringing me calm and refreshing relief from Nervous tension without any distressing after effects."
For over 50 years Dr. Miles' NERVINE (in liquid form) had brought grateful relief to thousands of nervous people. Now this same time-tested formula is offered to you in handy Effervescent Tablet form. In the tablets the NERVINE formula is combined with bicarbonate of soda and citric acid tending to correct acidosis—a frequent cause of nervousness.
Get a package of Effervescent NERVINE Tablets at any Drug Store. Use them according to directions. If you are not satisfied with results, the druggist will refund your money. At All Drug Stores.

WITNESS GONE FROM STATE

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 5.—Reputed to be one of the important witnesses in Coroner S. A. Baltz' inquiry into the Donohue murder mystery, Jake Swaney, lumber dealer, who resides in the mountains near Uniontown, is reported to have disappeared. When Constable George Zemo went to the Swaney home to serve a subpena for today's inquest, he was told that the Swaney family had moved to Ohio.

Swaney had been quoted as saying he was on a lumber truck on the lonely road near the scene of the Donohue murder and could identify two men in a car which drove into the road from the direction of the scene of the killing.

FAT WOMAN LOSES HUSBAND'S LOVE

The above headlines appeared in a New York newspaper in connection with a divorce trial that has attracted wide attention.

"She was a beautiful woman," one witness testified, "but she got fat and is not attractive any more."

Thousands of women are getting fat and losing their beauty just because they do not know what to do.

If you are fat how would you like to lose it and at the same time gain in physical charm and acquire a clean, clear skin and eyes that sparkle with buoyant health?

And gain in energy and activity?

Why not do what thousands of women have done to get rid of pounds of unwanted fat? Take one-half a teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast and keep it up for thirty days. Then weigh yourself and see how many pounds you have lost.

You'll have the surprise of your life and best of all a bottle of Kruschen Salts that will last you for 4 weeks costs 85 cents—you'll probably say it's worth one hundred dollars after you take the first bottle.

I lost 19 pounds while taking my first bottle of Kruschen, writes a western woman, and I feel better than I have for years.

Kruschen Salts are a blend of 6 natural revitalizing salts your body, nerves and glands must have if you are to enjoy good health. Ask Mayo & Liggett's Drug Stores or any druggist for a bottle of Kruschen Salts and start to lose fat today.

Why?

You might think it unnecessary bother to raise tomatoes from special seed—to send experts to the Indian Ocean for spices—to age cider vinegar for months in wood . . . just to make Ketchup.

But how else could Heinz make a tomato ketchup so flavorful, so irresistible, that it outsells all others year in and year out?

RELIEF SOUGHT FOR SCHOOLS

The committee on finance and administration of the Board of Education, N. R. Criss, chairman today was formulating a program to recommend to the board as a means of eliminating the overcrowded conditions existing in several schools here. Board members yesterday discussed the enrollment situation and referred the matter to the committee with instructions to formulate a program which will result in early relief.

The committee will consider the postponing of the building of all special rooms such as auditoriums, swimming pools, gymnasiums and student society rooms as a means of keeping the board's financial resources in line with the desire to eliminate crowding. The committee also will consider reducing the size of the Knoxville Junior High School addition.

Board members agree that congestion in South Hills Junior-Senior High School and Knoxville Junior High School could be best remedied by an addition to the Knoxville school and the construction of a new junior high school in West Liberty avenue. The board's present financial ability would be exhausted by these two projects, plus necessary land purchases, it was stated.

GANG HOLDS UP OAKLAND STORE

Their faces hidden by black masks, three armed robbers this morning forced three men into a rear room of the Atwood Pharmacy, Dawson and Atwood streets, Oakland, and escaped with a case of whisky and $410 in cash.

Benjamin Leventon, proprietor of the store; his brother, Nathan, a clerk, and Harry Seigel, of 20 Oakland square, a customer, were the victims of the robbers. The whisky was removed from a safe in the rear of the pharmacy.

The robbers rushed the three men into the rear room. They took $33 from Nathan Leventon's pockets, $38 from Benjamin Leventon, $1 and a cigaret lighter from Seigel, $85 from the cash register and $253 and the whisky from the open safe.

After warning their victims against giving an alarm, the robbers loaded the whisky into an automobile and drove away.

Air in New York Purest at 4 A. M.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—If you insist on taking deep breaths of air and live in a big city, do it at 4 o'clock in the morning. At least, city authorities today announced a new apparatus, which "breathes" the air and registers dust and smoke content every 15 minutes, has shown that New York's air is most pure at 4 in the morning and carries the largest amount of impurities at 9 in the morning.

Bandits Stop Train, Load Loot in Auto

WIFE LEAVES, GETS DIVORCE

Mrs. Marie Shaner, 6907 Church avenue, Ben Avon, took her two daughters, aged 15 and 14, to Florida, and refused to return, according to the charges of Shirley S. Shaner, of Sixth street, Aspinwall, supervisor for the Gulf Refining Company, who was granted a divorce by Judge Joseph M. Swearingen in Common Pleas Court.

They were married January 10, 1912, and lived in Aspinwall and on Church avenue, Ben Avon. Household finances and mismanagement caused their differences, Shaner testified, expenses having consumed his income.

Mrs. Shaner went to Florida with the girls August 1, 1927, visiting an aunt there, and sent him a letter three weeks later informing him she did not intend to return, Shaner testified. He said she would not change her mind after her return here.

Judge Celebrates Golden Wedding

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Mr. and Mrs. Morgan J. O'Brien were the toast of New York today. Reporters beseiged their home; their pictures were in the papers and they received presents and congratulations from all parts of the state. For today they celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding.

Bank Failure Hits German Air Line

KASSEL, Germany, Feb. 5—(AP.)—The Raab - Katzenstein Airplane Construction Company suspended payments and proposed immediate adjustment of creditors' claims on a 50 per cent basis, with a moratorium for ultimate settlement of liabilities in full.

The company's embarrassment is the result of losses through the bankruptcy of a local banker and annulment of further credits from other banks.

2 Bandits Escape In Cleveland Police Car

CLEVELAND, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Two bandits had a jolly time (and a profitable one at that) at the expense of Cleveland police here early today.

Stealing a police car in front of Central Police Station shortly before 1 a. m., the two gunmen drove brazenly to a restaurant just off Public Square, herded seven patrons and employes into the basement and looted the cash drawer of $140. Then, they cooly drove away in the police car.

Several hours later the police car was found standing at a street curb in Southwest Cleveland. One of its tires was flat. There was no trace of the two daring gunmen.

BANDIT, VICTIM DUEL TO DEATH

CUMBERLAND, Md., Feb. 5.—A Walton Borror, 40, garage proprietor, of Ridgeley, W. Va., opposite here, shot it out with a supposed bandit last night.

Their bodies were found today in his garage, pierced with bullets.

The dead bandit has been unofficially identified as Carl Shook, 30, of Hampshire, W. Va. No one is known to have heard the shooting. The bodies were found by Edgar Borror, brother of the dead garage man.

Jurors Acquit Man In Slaying of Girl

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 5.—Harry Hatterick, 21, was acquitted of the slaying of Miss Alice Williams, 16, his sweetheart's sister, by a jury here. The jury deliberated 41 minutes.

Hatterick claimed the shooting was accidental.

LUMBER CHIEFS OPEN SESSIONS

The Retail Lumber Dealers' Association of Western Pennsylvania convened for their annual meeting in Pittsburgh today. The convention will last until tomorrow night, when the Wholesale Lumber Dealers' Association of Pittsburgh will entertain the retailers at a banquet in the Keystone Athletic Club.

The meeting is housed on the seventeenth floor of the William Penn Hotel, where many exhibits of choice wood are on display. Attracting special attention is a tiny house of Douglas fir, with animated toy workmen laboring on its "construction."

The California redwood is represented by a small log cabin of that timber, constructed especially for the meeting. Arkansas soft pine is used in a Colonial panelled interior on the speaker's stand in the ballroom. Knots are featured in the soft-textured wood, which is said to be more expensive and harder to work than the flawless variety.

Many other exhibits are attracting the attention of visiting lumber dealers and prospective home builders.

Masked Pair Robs Two in Gas Station

MASURY, O., Feb. 5. — Two masked men took $30 from the cash register of the Baxter gasoline station here after threatening to shoot Mr. and Mrs. Alex Baxter, who were in the station. Two youths have been arrested.

DOHENYS OFFER TO SETTLE TAX

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Assistant United States Attorney Doherty said today that the Doheny Pacific Petroleum Company, against which the government has a $1,100,000 suit for additional income tax, has offered to settle out of court.

Doherty asked the Federal Court to continue the case until February 11 to give time for consideration of the offer. If accepted, there probably will be no trial, he said.

The government's suit alleged that in 1919 and 1920 the Pan-American Petroleum Corporation transferred 55,000 shares of stock to the Doheny Pacific, owned by Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Doheny, their son, since deceased, and J. C. Anderson.

The company claims the transfer was a merger and not subject to tax, while the government declares it was a sale and subject to income tax from the company holding the stock.

Boats Rescue 20 From Wrecked Ship

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Finnish pilot boats today succeeded in rescuing all of the crew of 20 of the Danish freighter Nelly, wrecked Sunday during a storm in the Gulf of Finland. Storms and gales hitherto have prevented rescue boats approaching. The Nelly was covered with ice when they finally reached her.

For any BABY

We can never be sure just what makes an infant restless, but the remedy can always be the same. Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation, and not the slightest harm in its frequent use. As often as Baby has a fretful spell, is feverish, or cries and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Sometimes constipation. Or diarrhea—a condition that should always be checked without delay. Just keep Castoria handy, and give it promptly. Relief will follow very promptly; if it doesn't, you should call a physician.

All through babyhood, Castoria should be a mother's standby; and a wise mother does not change to stronger medicines as the child grows older. Castoria is readily obtained at any drugstore, and the genuine easily identified by the Chas. H. Fletcher signature that appears on every wrapper.

COAL SHORTAGE BALKS MAWSON

By SIR DOUGLAS MAWSON
Commander of the British, Australian and New Zealand Antarctic Research Expedition.
Radio via London.

S. S. Discovery, Antarctica, Feb 3—(Delayed)—The perfect weather of January came to a sudden end when the barometer fell an inch without warning on the twenty-eight.

A severe northeast gale followed, continuing for three days, since when we have had gradual improvement.

The Discovery has already depleted its coal reserves seriously, drawn upon in weathering the gale. No recourse now remains but to retreat to Kerguelen Island, where our bunkers can be replenished.

The season will doubtless then be too late to entertain further serious exploration within the pack ice before next summer. At this stage, however, it may be well to summarize the work already accomplished.

COAST MAPPED

By ship and airplane, the coast line of Antarctica extending between 44 and 66 degrees east longitude, has been outlined. This includes Enderby Land and the newly discovered, newly named MacRobertson Land.

The continental margin, also has been roughly indicated by sounding throughout much of the region intervening between 66 and 90 degrees east longitude.

The stretch of coast examined is for the most part outlined by ice cliffs ranging from 60 to 150 feet in height, which constitutes the seaboard face, and a great ice sheet capping and covering from view the major portion of the rocky land itself.

From the coast inland, this ice sheet rises everywhere rapidly to an elevation of several thousand feet. Tonguelike prolongations of the land ice were noted continuing far out into the water as floating extensions.

ISLETS UNCOMMON

The islets off the shore are less common than usual along the Antarctic coasts, but are well exemplified at Proclamation Harbor, where about 305 occur, crowded together in a small area.

The Nunataks and rocky ranges rising above the general ice flood, however, are conspicuously abundant, strikingly more so than is the case in King George, Adelie, Wilkes or Queen Mary lands.

In this respect, our present area is more keenly to Graham's Land or Victoria Land, though it is actually topographically distinct from either.

Several definite mountain ranges have been roughly charted, the principal one of which was named Scott range. In memory of the one who contributed so much to the elucidation of the Antarctic.

About 200 peaks, reaching elevations as great as 7,000 feet, have been observed.

(Sir Douglas will continue his summary in his next message.)

TWO GET TERMS IN DOPE CASES

Anthony La Marr, 31, of Covington, Ky., was sentenced by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson to serve 18 months in Atlanta Penitentiary when he pleaded guilty to violating the Harrison narcotic act by selling and possessing morphine.

The sale of the drug to a government informer on December 5, 1929, at Forbes and Pride streets, was witnessed by Government Narcotic Agent Joseph Cieslak. While trying to escape arrest, La Marr threw away a tin box containing that had been given him by the purchaser.

Afterwards the government officer searched the room of La Marr in a Sixth street hotel and found 20 grains of morphine.

Earl Beabout, 39, a taxicab driver, after pleading guilty before Judge Gibson to a charge of unlawful possession of morphine, was given his choice of a six months term in the Beaver County Jail or a year and a day term in the Atlanta Penitentiary.

Beabout chose the latter, but gave no reason for his preference. Last November he finished a 10-month sentence in the Allegheny County Jail, which was imposed by Federal Court because he violated a three-year parole in a previous case in which he was charged with violating the Harrison narcotic act.

While in jail a detainer in a new case was lodged against him. Upon completion of the jail term he was released under bond pending disposition of the new suit. He told the court he no longer used drugs.

BISHOP FIGHTS RADICAL BAN

NEW YORK, Feb. 5 (AP)—Bishop Francis J. McConnell, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, said that the church has a distinct place in industrial strife.

Declaring that "the church waits too much for ideas to be disinfected and made safe," the bishop, in an address to the national board of the Young Women's Christian Association, added that radical expressions of opinion awaken it from its tendency to become complacent. "No matter how radical individual expression by clergymen and social workers might be, it should be allowed," he said.

"The church is an organism which has a right to corporate utterance," he said. "It is more than the sum total of the opinions of the people who belong to it. It is vital and right for the church as well as the individual to stand for things they cannot always live up to. Such utterances help social justice."

Idle Four Months; Dies First Day At Work

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 5.—Employed for the first time in four months, David Stephens, 59, dropped dead yesterday at the Capstan Glass Company from a heart attack. He had obtained work with a construction company.

Stephens was with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for 15 years as a brakeman.

Driver Injured As Autos Collide

CHESTNUT, Pa., Feb. 5.—G. Gallaro, 34, of Rochester, N. Y., was injured and his automobile wrecked when it crashed head-on with a machine driven by D. R. Morrell of Brightwood, Allegheny County, on the Ohio-Perry Hill road in Monongahela.

Morrell, who was only slightly hurt, brought the Rochester man to Charleroi for medical attention. Gallaro was treated for cuts about the head.

Nurse Employed By Child Society

NEW BRIGHTON, Pa., Feb. 5.—Mrs. George Tew has been employed as county nurse by the Beaver County Crippled Children's Society. Mrs. Tew will assume her duties February 15, with offices in the Red Cross Chapter rooms.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful to keeping babies and children fine and happy every day, millions know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

This preparation is so effective in relieving these symptoms of acid indigestion because it is so similar to the digestive fluids that it helps correct, such as sour stomach, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colds, as a mild laxative. It acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of plain water to relieve acid indigestion. Get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

All Over MOHAIR COMBINED WITH FRIEZE $168

AS AN expression of the finer living room, we submit this suite! We doubt if its equal, in any way, has ever been presented at such a price. No words of praise would overstate its quality—its construction—its beauty and colorful dignity. It is a suite that will grace and glorify the finest home in the land.

IT IS most modern in style, combining comfort with character. Choice Mohair is its dominating upholstery, and that fabric is emphasized by the Frieze which is used on the loose cushions. Any color scheme you have in mind can be gratified as we show this suite in Burgundy, Rust, Rose-Taupe, Midnight Copper and Persian Blue.

the JOY of LIVING is founded on Good Health

Did you know that every cubic millimeter of the normal, healthy person's blood should contain about 5,000,000 red corpuscles?

Your joy may depend upon rich, red-blood-cells

A HEALTHY body is vigorous, strong and sound. It is man's and woman's greatest asset. It demands that the red-blood-cells shall not be decreased in number.

The red-blood-cells are its workers—5,000,000 to the cubic millimeter. They give to the blood its color and are carriers of nourishment to every part of the body. Rich, red blood wards off disease. It is very dangerous to let the blood count remain below normal. Even though you have allowed your blood count to get too low, with resulting ill health, you may still be strong and well again.

With an increase in the red-blood-cells, you will be on the right road to Health. This is Nature's way to body power and to clear skin. Naturally, with your strength restored, it is easier to fight disease and infection; to enjoy your food and to sleep soundly. When firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby, you will feel strong—your nerves will become steady—more happiness and friends will follow.

You owe it to yourself and family to give S. S. S. a trial. It promotes healthy body building. It helps Nature build rich, red blood. For more than 100 years S. S. S. has been helping people regain and retain their strength and charm. It is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and is easy to assimilate. Thousands of users have testified to its benefits in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

S.S.S.

You will be delighted with S.S.S. blood-building and tonic effects. Take at mealtime. At all drug stores in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

SHAW SCORES JAIL FLOGGING

LONDON, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Controversy over the flogging of prisoners has risen from the suicide of a prisoner named Spiers at Wadsworth jail yesterday. George Bernard Shaw and Lord Darling, formerly one of the most famous judges on the bench, have joined in it.

"No one is flogged except when he has been guilty of personal violence," Lord Darling told the Evening Star today. "In my opinion, a public opinion which approves of prize-fighting, including the knock-out blow, cannot logically condemn flogging. Men and women who flock to an exhibition between the 'Game Chicken' and the 'Battling Brown' would gladly see 'Burglar Bill' punished by the 'Wadsworth Walloper.' The chancellor of the exchequer might as well set an entertainment tax on this as on the former exhibition."

Shaw retorts that every judge imposing a sentence with flogging ought to have two or three doses himself to bring him to an understanding.

"It is difficult to speak without disgust of the state of society in which such a thing is allowed. The excuse for flogging is that certain offenders understand no other punishment. If there is anything in that, these men ought to be flogged and not imprisoned."

ROBS BANK FOR DIVORCE FUND

TORONTO, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—A man who said he turned bank robber to obtain funds to get a divorce was in jail today after being trapped as he tried to lock his victims in a vault.

Arnott Peters, 21, walked into a branch of the Dominion Bank yesterday and handed a note to the teller on which was written:

"I want $1,000 and no monkey business." He then displayed a pistol.

The teller picked up $811 and handed it to Peters, whereupon the robber jumped onto the counter, pointed his gun at the other employes and ordered them into the vault.

While he was trying to manipulate the lock of the outer vault door, W. C. Wells, a customer, entered the bank, took in the situation and rushed to the street, closing the bank door after him.

A policeman responded to Wells' call for help and arrested Peters, who offered no resistance.

German Mennonites Arrive in Brazil

RIO JANEIRO, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The first contingent of German Mennonites repatriates from Russia to Germany for settlement in Southern Brazil has arrived here. Their number was increased by the birth of two children during the voyage from Hamburg.

There are nearly 200 settlers in the party, which will travel to the state of Parana by steamer and rail.

Morgantown Has Youngest Mayor

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The election by City Council of Robert T. Donley, Morgantown lawyer, as mayor of Morgantown last night gave this city what is believed to be the youngest mayor of any city of its size in the country. Donley is 25.

Donley is beginning his second term as councilman from the business district of Morgantown, winning election after nomination by both major parties. He was chosen mayor under the commission form of government, in which the presiding officer of the council and the official head of the city is chosen by Council from its membership.

ITALY, AUSTRIA SIGN PACT

ROME, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Austria and Italy will sign a treaty of friendship and conciliation and a judicial pact on February 6 as the result of a meeting here between Chancellor Schober, of Austria, and Premier Mussolini.

The treaty and pact are expected to go far toward smoothing over the difficulties of the two countries since the post-war rearrangement of frontiers and the advent of Fascism to power in Italy.

Chancellor Schober thanked the Duce for the Italian support given Austria at The Hague reparations conference and gave him the Austrian grand cordon with the gold star of merit. He also made him a present of the first copy printed in Austria of a book of prayers by Galeazzo Maria Sforza.

Boston Man Named Palm Beach Mayor

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—John Shepard, Jr., department store magnate, of Boston, Mass., yesterday became mayor of Palm Beach without an opposing vote in the municipal election.

STATE U. S. TAX $237,977,687

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Pennsylvania paid the federal government a total of $237,977,687.85 in taxes last year, representing an increase of approximately $5,500,000 over similar payments for the year previous, according to a preliminary report on internal revenue receipts made public by the Treasury Department.

Of the total collections $214,275,811, or by far the greater amount, was derived from income taxes, including both corporate and individual. The residue came from miscellaneous levies.

While corporation taxes fell off from $116,749,496 in 1928 to $112,970,190 in 1929, individual returns increased from $88,923,413 to $101,305,620 over the same period.

Miscellaneous taxes also decreased from $26,745,001 to $23,701,876.

The Treasury Department report contains the first figures on state collections in 1929.

INSTANT RELIEF FOR NASAL INFECTIONS WITH ITS DELIGHTFUL VAPOR

VAPEX was discovered in England at the height of a terrible war-time epidemic of influenza. With new victims round them every day, chemists in a government laboratory were completely immune to the disease. Without doubt, the vapor from the ingredients now in Vapex kept them free from infection. . . . Physicians and scientists were amazed. For here was a swift, sure relief for colds. Highly concentrated, this new discovery was offered to the public as Vapex. . . . A drop of Vapex on your handkerchief gives a refreshing odor that instantly relieves colds. Breathed deeply, it clears the head, banishes congestion, limits the infection. Use it in the morning, Vapex keeps its strength all day. At night, a drop at each end of your pillow lets you sleep and fights the irritation then. . . . If you have a cold, use Vapex. See how simple, how convenient, how pleasant it is. Use it to prevent colds too. A bottle costs only $1 and contains fifty applications, an average of only 2c an application. The Vapex essence is imported directly from England. Ask for V-A-P-E-X in the trim, white box with the green triangle, and do not accept a cheaper imitation. . . . It is sold in all drug stores. . . . E. Fougera & Company, Incorporated, New York City.

TO START THE DAY . . .

TO LET YOU SLEEP . . .

PAPE'S COLD Compound

Acidity Slams More Doors than Temper!

"Touchy" and grouchy husbands are often only sick men. It's acid in their systems speaking when they bark and growl.

Excess acid formed in the stomach as a result of our unnatural eating habits causes acid-indigestion with gas, sourness and burning and sets up poisonous putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal that saps our strength and vitality and so taxes our nerves that we can't sleep at night or work efficiently during the day.

Magnesia tablets developed in Germany by a famous 18-year-old pharmaceutical house, correct acidity in the right way. Upon contact with the acid in the stomach, Magnesia Oxide generates masses of active oxygen. The "flue" oxygen stimulates the alkaline gastric mucus, checks putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal and stimulates the activities of the intestinal walls which aids the natural movement of the bowels. All three efforts are necessary to the true correction of acidity.

5-Day Acidity Test

To ascertain just how "acid" you are, make this 5-day test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxide at small cost from Jaw Drug Co. or any other good druggist. Take two after each meal for a few days and see how much better you feel—how much more soundly you sleep and how much more energy you have. If 5 days use doesn't tell you wonders, return the balance of the tablets to the druggist and he will cheerfully refund your money.

BERLIN STUDIES POLISH PACT

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—A German-Polish agreement "to liquidate the past" is before the German Reichsrath for consideration and ratification.

The three main points in the agreement, designed to settle bitterly contested land claims and indemnity demands in former German territory, now part of Poland, are as follows:

1. Poland releases tracts of land that can be proved not to have changed ownership before September 1, 1929. This affects about 37,500 acres.

2. Both countries drop their respective claims for social insurances, costs of popular referenda in various border districts, transportation of occupying troops and so on. This involves German claims of 538,700 marks and Polish claims of 830,000,000 marks.

3. Poland waives the right of buying in land in 450 disputed cases, except in the event of neglectful administration by the owners thereof or of conviction of the owners for crime.

By the last of these three provisos German settlers in Poland to the number of 80,000, holding 125,000 acres of farms, are saved from threats of expropriation by their new Polish landlords.

German authorities believe that by having kept the Polish claims and the German counter-claims separate from the work of The Hague reparations conferences Germany has obtained more favorable terms.

URGES UNIFORM AIR LAWS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Uniform state aeronautical legislation throughout the country to curb accidents was urged here by Clarence M. Young, assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics.

Maj. Young pointed out that under the present law if a pilot is rejected in his application for a federal licens, because his craft is not airworthy or because of personal unfitness, he may engage in intrastate commerce without restriction from the government.

"And, unfortunately," he said, "it is this class of aircraft and airmen which have been contributing in a large measure to the recent aircraft accidents with their resultant injuries, fatal and otherwise, to both passengers and pilots.

"The remedy, under existing federal law," the secretary continued, "requires suitable state legislation—legislation which, among other things, must take into consideration the imperative need for uniformity throughout the United States in the matter of airworthiness of aircraft, and most particularly, in the operation of aircraft in the air.

"Once an aircraft is in the air there can be no distinction between its interstate or intrastate character. It must be equally airworthy, the pilot must be equally competent, and the same rules as to passing, crossing, signaling and landing must be rigidly observed. Inasmuch as there can be but one standard of airworthiness, only a limited range of piloting ability, and no variation in rules, then it would seem obvious that the state laws dealing with regulations should provide requirements identical with those of the federal law."

Beautiful Complexion Without Rouge

Do you want a beautiful complexion? Without the use of rouge? And color that is all your own? If you suffer from constipation give your system just a tiny calcium wafer! Don't take that customary pill on Saturday night—let a Stuart Calcium wafer help Nature do its magic work for you!

Stuart's Calcium wafers frequently clear away all impurities resulting from constipation and which keep the skin sallow or dull. They help to keep pores purged and the cuticle clean. Often you feel and see the difference from the very first day you take a tiny, sugar-coated Stuart Calcium wafer!

Don't take anything you have to double each time—take something you can cut in two each time.

Make This Test

A five-day test is sufficient to prove to you very conclusively the system's need for Stuart's Calcium wafers, and the decided benefit from the use of these little wafers. Your druggist has them—the test size for pocket is 10c. Or the family size, 60c

'Romeo and Juliet' Farce Feature on Radio

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor.

THE balcony scene in "Romeo and Juliet" will be staged as it has never been staged before when Fanny Brice and Henry Burbig do a comic version of the Shakespearean masterpiece through WJAS at 10 o'clock on the Philco Hour.

Milton Gross has written a hilarious burlesque on the romance of the two most famous lovers in history and Henry M. Neely, Philco's Old Stager, feels that he has chosen the perfect interpreters in Burbig and Brice.

Included in the program will be Miss Brice's new song "When a Woman Loves a Man," which succeeds "My Man," the song that made her famous.

Although the burlesque will occupy a prominent place on the Philco program, lovers of Gounod's opera will have the opportunity of hearing the most beautiful portions of the work, for Neely has worked the musical passages into the script, and Lois Bennett, soprano, will present the numbers.

We Now Present

From Uniontown, Pa., we learn that a youngster tremendously interested in Amos and Andy became frightened when he heard of the Kingfish's plan to get Amos' $125 for his bank. The child called the Uniontown chief of police and urged him to do something to protect Amos "right away."

Take that for what it's worth, but we know several persons who have taken more interest in Amos' money than they do their own.

REAL HAWAIIANS"

"Are the South Sea Islanders real Hawaiians?" asks Virginia West, 463 Rosslyn avenue, Springdale. They are. Their program originates every Sunday night in WJZ.

Jack and Tony average 750 calls an hour when they invite requests over KQV. That's a jingle about every five seconds.

"I mean the flute player there sitting on the empty chair," remarked a downtown radio maestro the other eve.

Mildred Hickson, pretty blonde information bureau at KayDee, has a sweet temperament to answer hundreds of questions daily. Not only is she expected to know all about Bach, Berlin, Tschaikowski, kilocycles, dials, heterodynes and whatnots, but about the weather, missing articles, the traffic laws and children's food. Omigosh, what a life!

Countess Olga Albani, soprano, and Julian Oliver, tenor, both Spanish, will sing on the Mobiloil concert tonight.

Commercial offices of WJAS soon will be within a floor of the studios at the Law and Finance Building.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

WCAE has issued a new rate card which includes the price of time on the air from one minute to an hour. A minute in the daytime means a $10 check, but after the shadows fall it's more than double—or $25.

Lost Lover Returns.

A lover who has been lost for many years returns to a sweetheart who, in turn, learned to adjust her dreams for lost love and hesitates to surrender those dreams for reality.

The story tells of the famous Miss Fair who was once quite a belle and still boasts a vestige of that beauty but whose lover went away and did not return. Miss Fair and her steadfast faith, her constant hope and her blue-misery have become a village tradition until he returns. Her heart is torn between accepting the returned lover or holding on to her misery.

"I Believe Herbal Flaxolyn Is the Most Powerful Formula For Promoting Better Health"

Says Popular Pittsburgh Doctor

DR. H. V. WALLS (M. D. & D. D. S.), PITTSBURGH, PA.

Dr. Walls was formerly an Associate Professor of Clinical Surgery. He attended the University of Paris and studied in Edinburgh, London and other European medical centers.

Tells Run-down, Tired-out, Constipated Folks, Who Find Things are Not Going Right, To Start Taking Natural Flaxolyn for a Short Time and See How Quickly Their Condition Improves.

If your cheeks need more robust color, if your body requires extra strength, extra energy and a greater vitality, many of the most reliable and sincere physicians now tell you to use Dr. Luntz's new vitaminized Herbal Flaxolyn formula at once.

Dr. H. V. Walls, well known to Pittsburghers for his health lecture work and his health talks over Radio Stations KDKA and WJAS, says: "It is my opinion, after years of examining rundown people of all classes, that there is no more powerful health tonic than the new vitaminized Flaxolyn.

"Flaxolyn acts upon stomach, liver, kidneys and intestines, thereby promoting a better state of physical health."

25 Years' Study Behind Flaxolyn

No one knows better than the discoverer of Flaxolyn what it means to be in a rundown condition.

As a result of overwork when he was a physician in Philadelphia, Dr. Luntz suffered a breakdown which seriously threatened his life. It was then that he determined to make a deeper scientific study of botanical medicines. After 25 years, he was able to present the new, highly effective herb tonic Flaxolyn, to the public.

Enjoy a Rapid Gain in Health. Get That Ruddy Complexion and Wonderful Reserve Energy! Try This Herbal Discovery Which Doctors from Every Corner of the Land Publicly Endorse

The tonic help which Flaxolyn brings you assists in replacing wornout body tissues. Muscles can build up more solidly. The nerves and the brain function more calmly and clearly. Internal organs strengthen. Blood becomes rich with red cells. The disease-fighting white cells, so important at this time of year, increase.

Dr. C. A. Dask, of Pittsburgh, Says:
"Flaxolyn whips the vital organs to normal action, relieves constipation condition naturally. Through Flaxolyn the body is immediately benefited."

BATTLE CREEK PHYSICIAN
Dr. A. W. Herr, of Cleveland, formerly physician at Battle Creek Sanitarium, says: "Flaxolyn has brightened the whole outlook on life for many of my patients."

Dr. Benedict Lust, of New York Says:
"I recommend Flaxolyn to those generally sick and ailing . . . and to those who seek new power and strength . . . Flaxolyn is certainly a natural remedy. I am using it in all my health work."

GUARANTEE OF RESULTS

Herbal Flaxolyn must bring you a satisfactory improvement by the sixth pleasant spoonful, or the druggist is authorized to refund your money on the return of the partly-used bottle.

Flaxolyn Corrects and Prevents

Flaxolyn contains nothing harmful, nothing drastic. It has proved extremely effective where constipation, liver torpidity, impaired digestion or kidney irritants cause undue tiredness, depression, headaches, unpleasant breath, coated tongue, pimply skin, backaches, dizzy spells, gas or pressure on the stomach, general weakness, sleeplessness.

Improve Your Appearance

Bright Eyes — Healthy Color

Not only do you feel better as Flaxolyn helps your body regain its vitality—you LOOK BETTER as well. The skin changes from a sickly color to that glowing, healthful ruggedness often described as "the pink of condition." Flaxolyn sweeps out the toxic poisons which cause dull eyes and blemished skin.

The healthful ingredients in Flaxolyn are approved by the highest medical authorities. Its herbal contents, known for generations, include Spanish Licorice, African Buchu Leaves, Mexican Sarsaparilla Roots, West Indian Ginger, Chinese Rhubarb Roots, Dandelion Roots and others.

Tear Out This Valuable Coupon

Health is the most precious possession in the world. Guard it as you would your life, for it IS life. With health you can conquer in the world of business, love or society. LET FLAXOLYN HELP YOU. Tear this out as a reminder, or better yet, ask any druggist in town NOW for the famous Flaxolyn formula.

Station KUKU, under the visionary guidance of Ambrose J. Weems, its stationary manager, will condense a week's broadcast into 30 minutes.

A bird sanctuary for cuckoos everywhere is promised by Raymond Knight, alias Ambrose J. Weems, who is Atlantis's own radio announcer, the holder of countless diction medals, and the superlative voice of KUKU.

The Radio Guided Theater of the air is now running a series of mystery thrillers entitled "The Face on the Grandfather Clock," following the adventures of Dolly Grey, the heroine; the Green Monster, the villain; Clare de Vere, the villainess, and Fetlock Soames of the Lost and Found Department of Scotland Back Yard.

The Kiddies Komfort Bureau of KUKU presents bedtime stories for hook-eyed kiddies by Uncle Ambrose. These fairy tales are true stories of untrue people. Other features include Mrs. Pennyfeather's Personal Service for Perturbed People, 57 varieties of orchestra in one, and the incorrect time.

Lines That Slenderize

Pattern 1838

Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

Every line of this frock is effective in attaining a slender appearance. The long, pointed bodice line, the pointed skirt yoke and the front pleats combine to create a charming model that is the last word in Fashion. The inserted sleeve puff is new and very smart.

Flat crepe fashions this frock, with vestee and sleeve trimming of contrasting crepe. Combinations of black and green, brown and beige, blue and grey or green and flesh, are delightfully attractive. Rows of stitching add a chic touch.

May be obtained only in sizes 18, 20, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 40 inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model. The pattern has ample and exact instructions. Yardage is given for every size. A perfect fit is guaranteed.

Patterns will be delivered upon receipt of FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped or stamps. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

The NEW WINTER FASHION BOOK is FIFTEEN CENTS, but only TEN CENTS when ordered with a pattern. Address all mail and orders to Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

UNSCRAMBLE THESE ANAGRAMBLES

DAILY ANAGRAM PUZZLES

TRY your hand at this fascinating game of Anagrambles—the game that is taking the town like the crossword puzzle craze took the whole nation for a ride through the dictionary.

The game is quite simple. Merely change the following words by the addition of the single letter indicated. Do not omit any letter of the original word. The letter may be inserted at the beginning of the word, anywhere within the word, or at the end. Thus, the word "pate," by the addition of the letter "l" becomes either "pleat" or "plate." The word "drag" may be changed to either "grade" or "raged" by the addition of the letter "e."

The original word must be changed in meaning by the commentary letter. To change "mine" by adding "d," to form "mined," would be incorrect. Rearrange the letters of your word to change its meaning, not its tense or number. Take a pencil now and write in your newly formed word in the spaces provided.

"You know how Marjorie does get certain set ideas. Imagine it—she tried to tell me that all bread is alike."

"And then I said 'It's quite clear, Marjorie, that you haven't tried the new Mother Hubbard Bread. When you have, I am sure you will change your ideas about bread entirely'."

And that is just what is happening everywhere. Women are changing their ideas about bread, ever since the new Mother Hubbard—the perfected loaf—was announced.

No other bread is quite like Mother Hubbard for the perfection of crust, slicing, texture, taste, toasting-quality. In Mother Hubbard alone these, and other important features, have been brought to so high a degree of perfection that we call it the perfected loaf.

Get Mother Hubbard Bread at your dealer's today. You will agree that it is, indeed, the perfected loaf.

The end of a "noble experiment"

Bennetts, Inc., is through!

FOUR months ago we looked Pittsburgh over---and said to ourselves, "Here's a great big town with hardly any men's wear shops of the ultra-smart type."

"What Pittsburgh needs badly is a fine shop devoted to men's wear at its finest. It looks almost as easy as if we had found a town of over a million people without a talking picture palace."

We didn't have the least doubt about it. We fitted up the place in a grand manner. We left nothing out. We did the thing right.

"Pittsburgh is waiting for a fine shop like this," we said.

We were wrong! Pittsburgh wasn't waiting for us.

Now, what was the trouble? Were not Stein-Bloch clothes fine clothes? Were not Michaels-Stern Rochester Clothes fine clothes? They are featured by the first shops in every town. Was there anything wrong with our Stetson Hats—Borsalino Hats—Fownes Gloves? Was the quality of our ties, shirts, or other furnishings not the best? There are none finer anywhere. Then what was the trouble?

We made a big mistake. We ran a store that looked too good. We went the limit on quality instead of realizing that Pittsburgh is a "price" town.

We should have paid more attention to so-called popular price ranges---limiting the quality to the limit of the price. We wouldn't have had the finest things in the world, but we would have been better guessers on the question of making money.

The very smartness, the high-hat quality of the new BENNETTS idea scared people away!

One thing led to another --- and money got low. We went to friends. They were very pleasant about it, but the "net" was, "I wish I could help you." We tried new financing. No luck! So there is only one thing to do. Just fold up our tents and step out into the night. We're lost! Let someone else try it now. We're through!

But before we turn over the key to the good landlord, it is going to cost us a pretty penny. We know we can't go out of business without a financial "headache." So we're going to take our medicine --- as bitter as it is.

Some of the things in our store are half of what they were. Plenty of things at one-third off. Everything at a good, worthwhile saving and a saving which you actually get---and not simply read about in the paper.

Thursday morning at 9, Bennetts, Inc., Wood at Fifth Avenue, will begin the business of going out of business. Bennetts will take what they can get and "a good time will be had by all!"

CHURCH URGES NEW POLITICAL PARTY

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

WE ARE planning a companion league for our association against the existence of masters of ceremony. The tentative title for this new group is, in a word, the society for the suppression of Authors whose Heroines are invariably very beautiful. What we yearn for most these days is the heroine who owns freckles, bushy eyebrows, the nose of Cyrano and thick ankles.

This reminds us (and it is the only reason we wrote this item) of the romance of the Pennsylvania Railroad yards which was allowed to pass from the public eye. She was a cleaner and he was an oiler. Each day she brushed all the dust from the day coaches while he went from wheel to wheel (railroad language) oiling things. She was 38; so was he. Her name was Julie.

One day a few years ago she happened to gaze out of a window of the dingy day coach and whom should she see but the oiler, we hope. Romance! He proposed. She accepted. He changed his mind. She filed a $50,000 breach of promise suit.

Her lawyer insisted that the oiler really owned $50,000 to pay for the breach she charged but that is neither here nor there. The suit, we believe, has been forgotten. At any rate there has been no trial and public interest is hardly tense. A great drama has been allowed to flicker out.

THEY gave a reception at the Young Men's and Women's Hebrew Association the other night for Boris Glagolin, famed Russian sojourning in Pittsburgh.

One speaker praised Glagolin the actor.

Another sang the praises of Glagolin the producer.

But Glagolin appreciated none of this; he doesn't understand English.

The passenger agents for railroads are gentlemen who learn about human beings sooner than most of us. If they are tempted to doubt the honesty of this human race, their temptations are swept away every now and then by persons who usually sign themselves "Conscience Stricken." Frequently a customer who stole a ride or forgot to hand in his ticket so many years ago will make the proper redress.

An unusual case presented itself this week to Joe Taggart, agent for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. A well-dressed woman of perhaps 55 years came to Mr. Taggart's office and told him this story:

"Twenty-five years ago my son and I took a B & O train from Pittsburgh to Atlantic City. My boy was small for his age and I lied to the conductor. I was able to buy a half-fare ticket for him.

"My conscience is bothering me now, although that was many years ago, and my son is grown and a reputable young man. I've come here to pay the rest of that fare."

Ben Avon Y. W. Holds Meeting Today

The Ben Avon chapter, Y. W. C. A., meets this afternoon in the Ben Avon United Presbyterian Church. Miss Alice McGirr, of Pittsburgh Carnegie Library, will speak on "Adults' Books and Children's Books."

S.S. ILE DE FRANCE, Feb. 5.

LINDY'S lake kinder sobered up and bunches of us began drawing a dividend on our passage money by being directed to where the dining saloon was for the very first time.

I see by a delayed American paper that Mr. Coolidge is going to print the history of the United States on a single rock. Well, I could print the history of the present results of this disarmament conference on the head of a pin and have room enough left for the chorus of "Yes, We Have No Bananas."

See you in person Thursday.

Yours,

WILL.

Chickie's Attendance at Dance Is the Start of a New Life for Her

CHAPTER I.

SHE was the only child they had. They were old-fashioned, these two. Often they looked at her, then at each other. Their eyes filled with tears.

"Chickie" — the father called her that. Sometimes at night she would go in and sit on his bed, patting his big hand, telling him with a hundred airy affectations all the news of her day; asking favors, naming little gifts that he might bring to her. Now it was that Mary, her dear, dear chum, got a new wrist watch—much smaller than hers.

"And I was just wondering, Jonathan darling, if you could have half an inch taken off mine. Think you could, cutie-cute?"

She called him all funny names like that, pinching his long mustache into a knot, leaning over him and laughing all the time.

Jonathan Bryce listened and chuckled, his whole body tingling with love.

"That Chickie of ours!" he would say to the mother afterward. "That Chickie!"

And she felt as though threads of gold were cast from his heart to hers because of this last child of theirs.

"Ah, God is good to us," she murmured. Whenever they talked of Chickie the mother said this quite loud to make sure that God would hear.

Ever since Chickie's sister had died she did this. She had an idea that God was always hovering about, listening, that He liked praise and because of it would be kind to them now. He would leave them their joy in Chickie. He would remember the wound burned red and ever living in their hearts.

That once already they had knelt beside a narrow bed and felt their little thing—their dear child thing—grow cold within their arms. And saw the tiny hands relax; the little face turn gray and still. Oh, they knew it all—and the ache that comes to dwell forever in the thought.

Like an Angel
Sweeter Than a Prayer To Her Father

Only Chickie was left them. They poured out their heart's love on her. Too much so, perhaps, for it was almost an anguish to them.

Like the time she made her confirmation—the white dress—the white veil. She kept her eyes down, her hands joined and walked so neatly. In the dim church her gold hair was a halo.

Jonathan strained forward in the pew—drowned in a warm tide of emotion.

Like a young angel—sweeter than a prayer, . . .oh, that's what she was—that Chickie of his—he ached with love.

At these times a superstitious fear stopped him short, like a knife cleaving into his bone. What if something were to happen to Chickie?

He felt that he would rip out his veins and empty them of blood all in a moment rather than any hurt to her.

She was sixteen—a bright, capricious thing. Pretty and flippant, but sweet as a song.

She was at the age to see adventure in the merest trifles—always tingling with some delicious excitement, whispering some vivid secret. Even so little a thing as passing a group of boys on the way from school.

She and her great chum, Mary Blake, walked along together. When Chickie drew near the corner where the young boys stood with their hands thrust in their pockets, her eyes danced. She pinched Mary's arm—all in a flush, saying, "Hurry. Oh, heavens! Mary, let's rush! The nerve! They're just staring!"

Mary blurted hotly, "I'll not hurry an inch. Don't be so silly! You give me a pain, Chickie!"

Her First Dance
Wild With Excitement at Thoughts of Affair

"But Arthur was there. Did you see him, Mary?"

"Well, I should throw a fit because Arthur Sontag stands on the corner!"

Chickie, pink to her temples, still conscious of the dozen lifted eyes, felt herself floating along in a dream. She felt sorry for Mary. Mary was asleep. Mary was a stone. Mary did not walk airly joyous as she, Chickie, did.

She had come now to a vivid hour. The time of her first dance. Arthur Sontag was to take her.

They had argued about it for days, these two, the mother and father. Should they let her go? So young, just sixteen, but she wanted it so. Why, she would just die if they said no. So it was decided.

And Chickie, wild with excitement, went about in a continual fervor. Suddenly, now, she grabbed Mary's arm "Mary, suppose I should be a wall flower?"

Mary shrugged with a little hint of contempt, adding sharply, "Oh, Lord, I didn't suppose you'd worry about that!"

"But were you ever a wall flower, Mary?"

Mary's fine, intelligent face flamed. She remembered hasty and embarrassed flights to the dressing room. She remembered sitting in the dance hall in an attitude of waiting, a strained smile on her lips, glancing about as though expecting any moment a dozen partners to arrive.

Gets New Dress
Chickie's Radiance Excites Her Mother

"Oh, I generally manage to have a dance or two."

"But the very first time, how was it then? Why, you needn't look so superior, Mary. I'm not the only one to worry. I nearly died today. Dolly Bacon had that little Stella Brown in a corner and was telling her just how to make a hit. She said, 'Now all you have to do, Stella, is just say every funny, idiotic thing that comes into your head, and be sure to keep laughing all the time.'"

Mary considered this advice, mindful of the enviable popularity of Miss Dolly Bacon. She commented tartly. "Well, it proves what I've always said: men aren't worth bothering with! I wouldn't degrade myself trying to please them."

Chickie burst out laughing.

They reached the steps of Chickie's home—a little yellow cottage with peaked roof, set back a little so there was a small garden with a border. On the left was an ell. Through this window, now golden with the sun, they saw Jennie Bryce and she was sewing.

She was making Chickie's dress, soft thing of blue with little silver flowers worked into the fabric. She had been sewing on it for days, loving the stitches, her heart growing young with the work.

The two girls watched her in silence. Then Mary said, "I suppose your dress is most finished, Chickie?"

"Come in, Mary, I'll try it on——"

They did this every afternoon, Mary standing aside and giving hypercritical suggestions — the mother, plump, uncertain, pushing her spectacles back on her nose — excited because Chickie was so radiant — her eyes all shining so.

Dad Feels Old
Could Not Keep Daughter Little Forever

Finally the night of the great adventure came. Jennie was in a flutter. Now and then she bit her lips.

"Chickie, dear," she pleaded in her agitation, "stand still or I can never find the clasps"——

"But, Jennie darling — for pity sakes, won't you hurry? I'll be late! The dances will all be gone. Oh, mother, inside of me is just all jumping! Oh, I don't know what to do!"

Suddenly she remembered Dolly Bacon's tried and tested formula for bringing the young male to his knees. She began to think of all the funny, idiotic things she had ever heard.

Jennie caught a forgotten thread. "There," she sighed, stepping back from the bureau, her plump, gentle face rosy with pleasure. "Ah, well—quick—let your father see——"

Chickie gave a little gasp of joy, forgot the rule for making "hits," entranced at her own image in the mirror. She drew her hands together in ecstasy. "Mother! Do I really look like that? Oh, heavens!"

She ran in and stood before her father's chair—nervous—waiting for the glow to light up his face.

He put down his paper, surveyed her with rejoiced but astonished eyes.

"Chickie! Why, how grown-up you seem—I'll be blessed!"

"Oh, Jonathan angel, if you only knew how perfectly gorgeous I feel!" She laid her soft cheek against his, running her fingers through his hair. "I feel all springs—all full of bubbles. Hurry—you come to the door with me"—

He went reluctant. He watched her running down the steps with this young Sontag. He heard her laughter ripping back—caught the kiss she blew to him. He leaned on the knob—suddenly heavy and old, oppressed with a sense of loss.

"She's not a child any more," he said to the mother when they two sat alone in the sad, quiet that night.

"No," Jennie answered softly. "We had no right to let her go."

Jonathan Uneasy
Would Keep His Child From Life

He gave no answer, but sat with his arms folded over his newspaper.

Later when they lay awake listening for her key in the door, he said abruptly, "I wish it was a son we had—"

Jennie trembled with the shock. She repeated, stunned, "A son? Why?."

"It would be easier with a son—"

"What do you mean?"

"Well—things aren't like they were when you were young, Jennie—"

"But, Jonathan—"

For two hours he had lain there tormented by his imagination. In his excitement, he sat up in bed, shaking.

"But I won't have it, Jennie! I tell you, I won't have it! Chickie'll not carry on—"

Jennie sat up and faced him, pale with fright. Suddenly she gave a little gulping laugh. "Why Jonathan—poor fellow. You must be crazy!"

He grew red and sheepish. "Just the same, Jennie—I see plenty to make me worry."

Her hand went down in quick comfort to his. After a long pause, she said: "Yes, Jonathan, but we can't keep her from life, can we?"

He slid back on his pillow, stirring uneasily. His child—yes? He would have wound his great arms hard about her—keep her from life!

And she was running into it—reaching out white, eager hands that beckoned—that called in rapture: "Hurry! Come!"—heart glad—senses quivering.

Not a Wallflower
Told She Is Prettiest Girl On Dance Floor

Off to her first dance—and with Arthur. Why, Mary would have given an eye to be hurrying down the street to the school auditorium with Arthur Sontag holding her arm.

She took quick, short steps, giggling, saying between times, "I'm so nervous—oh, Arthur, if I'm a wallflower I'll die!"

"You? Well—any old time!"

"You're sure I won't be?"

"Well, am I?"

That lifted her up. They sailed into the dance hall, wrapped in a cloud of music. She was laughing all the time.

When the first dance began she had her programme filled "And names all over the back, Arthur! Think of it!"

"Well, sure!" More softly: "Say—you're the prettiest girl on the floor!"

The blood rushed in a hot tide to her face. She kept her eyes down. "You're silly, Arthur."

"But you're pretty, Chickie!"

He kept looking at her until all the little springs inside began to bubble.

"Say, you're prettier than ever—" Afterward he scratched names from her programme and put his own in their place.

In the fifth number, the popular Dolly Bacon passed. She was dancing with Bert Otis. They were the same height and had their cheeks touching. Chickie looked away and then back, just in time to see Dolly raise her face and carelessly take a kiss Bert Otis gave.

"Oh!" she gasped.

"You got that, Chickie?"

"Oh, no! Dolly got it!"

Suddenly she was confused and glanced at him startled. He was looking down at her with blue, piercing eyes—with eyes that seemed to flash right

FIRE CHIEF, AID HURT IN CRASH

Battalion Fire Chief John Callahan, and his aid, Harry Birch, were reported recovering in St. Francis Hospital today from injuries suffered last night when a fire car in which they were riding crashed into a pole at Liberty avenue and Main street.

Birch, swerved the machine to avoid hitting another which had turned in his path, and it skidded and struck the pole. Callaghan and Birch, hurled from the automobile, were picked up by a motorist and taken to the hospital.

Prisoner Called From Jail By Second Death

NEW PHILADELPHIA, Ohio, Feb. 5.—Roy Davis, who last Wednesday was released a week from Tuscarawas County jail to attend the funeral of his son, Billy, 7, meningitis victim, at New Marshfield, was called home by the death of his brother, Arthur Howard Davis, 28, whose body was found along the canal, west of this city, where he apparently had died last night of epilepsy. The youth's father found the body.

CHILDREN GIVE AIR PROGRAM

The kindergarten chorus from the American Avenue School made its debut on the radio yesterday afternoon, soloists, story-tellers, bell ringers and all.

More than a dozen children, under the direction of Ella R. Boyce, director of kindergarten schools in the city, presented a program through the University of Pittsburgh studio and over KDKA. It's one of the weekly programs which is bringing actual school routine into the homes of radio listeners.

The youngsters were between four and five years, and they gave parts of the regular kindergarten curricula. Their teachers, Misses Elizabeth McFarland and Margaret Wood, led them in children's songs. Accompaniments were the piano, jingle bells, wood-clackers and one young man had a tiny drum.

Camera Question Box

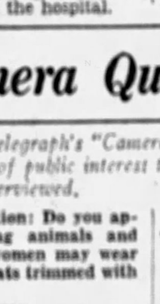
The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: Do you approve of killing animals and birds so that women may wear fur coats and hats trimmed with feathers?

LOUIS POMRENKE, North Side, clerk: "The happy days I spent on the farm are recalled by this question. I can picture the cows, horses, chickens, rabbits and my faithful dog. Those pets meant much to me. To see any one of them killed so that their fur or feathers could be utilized for clothing would have brought sorrow to me. No, I do not approve of killing animals for their skins."

Louis Pomrenke

MRS. LILLIAN SEDDON, East End, pianist: "Birds and animals are dumb, aren't they? Well, then what's the matter with giving them a painless death? Their beautiful coats of fur and feathers are not seen or appreciated in the wilderness. They are seen and appreciated while being worn by a woman. That's the answer. A sacrifice must be made to bring beauty into the world."



Mrs. Seddon

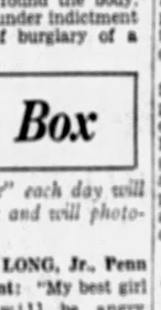
D. W. FIELDS, East End, adjuster: "I've often wondered why women, old and young, won't restrict themselves to cloth coats instead of stealing the warm coat of an animal that needs it more than the women do. Of course, the women pay for the fur, but are they giving the birds and animals a fair deal? Most certainly not. There ought to be a law against killing animals for their pelts."

D. W. Fields

CHARLES H. LONG, Jr., Penn Township, student: "My best girl will be angry with me if I say 'No, I don't approve,' but a man should have something to say on this question, so here goes: I can see no justice in slaughtering the happy birds and animals in order that vain women may clothe themselves in outlandish apparel. Another thing, our friends of the bird and animal kingdom are loved by those who understand them."

C. H. Long, Jr.

RUTH COLEMAN, Aspinwall, stenographer: "I admit it's tough on the animals but women must appear well clothed. Let me also add that women are not the only offenders. How about our modern sheik all wrapped up in a camel hair coat and looking like something that has been rolling around on the floor of a barber shop? Birds do not enter into the question as there are very few feathers being worn this year."



Miss Coleman

FLORENCE BEEBOUT, East End, pianist: "I admit that fur coats cost fur-bearing animals their lives but it's worth it. I don't want to appear hard-hearted any more than any other girl, still I can find some reason for wearing fur coats. They are both warm and beautiful. A lot of men are not innocent of wearing fur, either. If a human want is satisfied by the wearing of furs and feathers then everything is explained away."

U. S. NEEDS 'LIBERTY,' HE SAYS

Religious, Social, Political Freedom Would Be Aim, Pittsburgher Declares

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—The formation of a new political organization, the Liberal Party, for the purpose of re-establishing religious, political and social liberty in this country, was proposed last night by Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute, of Pittsburgh, at a meeting of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

The Lord's Day Alliance, the Anti-Saloon League and the Ku Klux Klan were among the organizations named by Col. Church to be fought by the proposed new party.

"It would aim," he said, "to extirpate all those organizations that are holding liberty in bondage, and it would disperse all those political groups of churches that are endeavoring to enact their religious and moral tenets into the laws of the land."

Prohibition is not the only infringement of liberty to be fought by the new party, Col. Church said, adding that the program of the churches whose political groups are at work in Washington plans the suppression of tobacco, boxing, public dancing, horse racing, bridge when played for a stake "and every joyous pastime that would make Sunday a day of happiness."

SCORES PURITANISM

Herbert Hoover and Alfred E. Smith, he said, first would have been whipped and then hanged by the Puritans. From the day the Pilgrims came to this country in the Mayflower, he declared, "the American people have suffered pain, anguish and imprisonment from their attempts to dictate the rules of life by sectarian laws."

The Wickersham commission missed a chance of leadership when it failed to condense its report on prohibition in the single word "repeal," said the speaker.

"It is an obligation resting upon our conscience that public opinion shall be so encouraged that it will force the churches and their dictatorial program of public morals out of politics and effect the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and all the laws that support it," he said. "We say repeal, for the time has long gone by when the people would accept a compromise on wine and beer, and when repeal comes, the control should be left to the states, as former President Taft has so wisely advised."

OLD PARTIES FAIL

The aim of the new party could not be accomplished by the Republican party, said Col. Church, who declared that while he has been a member of that party it now stands "on shifting sand, in an atmosphere of hypocrisy and fanaticism, promising everything and accomplishing nothing, typified by the Great God Borah."

"In such a situation there is no hope of rescue for our humiliated country except to form a new party," he declared.

As far as prohibition is concerned, he said, the first appeal should be made to the Supreme Court to throw out the whole legislation on the question of a quorum, on the question of inserting a statute in the Constitution itself or on the question of concurrent power. At the same time, he said, the new Liberal Party should pursue legislative methods to attain its ends.

Churches which have established political groups are the most dangerous forces, he declared.

"These political groups of the churches stand arrogantly and pitilessly in support of prohibition and of all the evils that have come from prohibition—the murders of the innocent and the guilty, the invasion of homes without warrant of law, the listening in at the telephone, the snooping of hired spies, the corruption of the public service, the increase in crime, the spread of drunkenness among young and old, and the cry for more and more prisons," he said.

Lumber Dealers To Begin Sessions

Several hundred retail lumber dealers of Western Pennsylvania are in the city for their annual convention, today and also tomorrow. Tomorrow night the delegates and their guests will be entertained by the Wholesale Dealers' Association of Pittsburgh, in the Keystone Athletic Club.

There will be a reception and dinner, followed by a smoker. E. H. Stoner, of the wholesalers, is chairman of the committee in charge.

FATHER SMILES ON ELOPERS

Paternal blessings today fell upon Mrs. Ethelinda David Ruble, the "kidnaped bride," but the blessings were not complete. The bride of 24 hours and her husband, George Ruble, of Library, were still seeking the forgiveness of her mother, Mrs. Anna David.

The eloping bride won a smile of approval from her father, Evan David, and grandfather, Ellis Jones. Over the telephone David wished the couple "happiness ever after."

While Ethelinda and Ruble were being united by Alderman George Anderson in Pittsburgh, the police were seeking Ruble as her kidnaper.

Ruble, an admirer of several years, had called her from a meeting of the membership committee of the Library Baptist Church and whisked her away in his auto.

Immediately reports spread that Ethelinda had been kidnaped.

These reports were set at rest when Ethelinda called her father with the news that he had a new son-in-law.

Ruble, young barber, plans to take his bride to Cheat Haven, Pa., to introduce her to his parents—but not before they try again to win the forgiveness of the bride's mother.

DRY VIOLATORS SENTENCED

The first three jury trials at the two weeks' special session of the United States District Court, charging violations of the national prohibition law, resulted in one acquittal and two convictions. Nine other defendants in liquor cases entered pleas of guilty or no defense.

The verdict of acquittal was in the case of J. H. Peterson, of Penn Township, charged with possession of material designed for manufacture of liquor on his farm, Baltsburg road. The defendant testified he had rented his farm to Philip Lamontte for a chicken farm, and had no knowledge of contraband on the property.

Joseph Rodgers and William Thomas, both convicted, were sentenced to serve jail terms of four months and three months, respectively. Joe Wallace, a co-defendant with Rodgers, was acquitted on binding instructions by the court.

Charles Miller pleaded guilty to having possession of two 1,000 gallon stills and a large quantity of moonshine whisky in a mine on his property in Jackson Township, Cambria County, and was fined $400. Frank Ross, of Pittsburgh, was sentenced to serve four months in the Beaver County jail, when he pleaded guilty to possessing a 250-gallon still and possession of moonshine liquor.

Earl Kramer and Felice DeLuca were each sentenced to serve 30 days in jail for liquor violations. The others were fined sums ranging from $200 to $450.

Senate to Hear Washington's Warnings

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5—George Washington's warning against "entangling alliances" in his farewell address will be read to the Senate on February 22 by Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan.

The Michigan Senator, author of "The American Tradition," a treatise against the League of Nations, was appointed by Vice President Curtis to read Washington's address, an annual custom of the Senate on the birthday anniversary of the Father of His Country.

$60,000 ASKED AFTER FALL

For injuries claimed to have been suffered from a fall into a sidewalk chute, Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, of Braddock, asked $60,000 damages from George Ladas, owner of property at 932 Braddock avenue, Braddock, in a suit in Common Pleas Court, joined in by her husband, William Brown.

The suit averred that Mrs. Brown, while walking along Braddock avenue February 29, 1928, fell into the chute in front of the Ladas property because of the worn and defective condition of the cover, injuring her spine and suffering other serious injuries.

Obituary

Sister Mary Cronin.

Funeral services for Sister Mary Inez Cronin, 70, of St. Joseph's Convent, Seton Hill, Greensburg, were held this morning in the convent where solemn high mass was observed. Burial was in the convent cemetery. Sister Mary Cronin died Monday in the Pittsburgh Hospital after an illness of two years. She had been a nun 53 years and for the last five years had been at St. Joseph's Convent. She was born in Maysville, Ky., but spent most of her life in this district. She taught in the parochial schools of Pittsburgh for many years, being a teacher of music.

Berkenbush Funeral.

Funeral services were held this morning for Charles F. Berkenbush, 32, of 414 Kilbuck street, Glenfield, who early Sunday was fatally injured by an automobile while walking near his home. The funeral services were held in St. Mary's Church and burial followed in St. Mary's Cemetery. Mr. Berkenbush was a life-long resident of Glenfield and was engaged in business as a contractor. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Virginia A. Pfaff Berkenbush; a daughter, Miss Virginia Mary Berkenbush, two brothers and three sisters.

Cook Funeral.

Funeral services for Joseph Elliott Cook, 47, who died yesterday at his home, near Rehoboth Church, Rostraver Township, will be held tomorrow. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Cook, pioneer residents of the township, where he had lived all his life, being active as a farmer and stock raiser. He leaves two brothers, John B., at home, and Robert J. Cook, of Rostraver Township, and three sisters, Miss Matilda, at home; Mrs. B. B. Smith, of Connellsville, and Mrs. D. M. Watkins, of Pittsburgh.

George T. Miller.

Funeral services for George T. Miller, husband of Mrs. Lillian Miller, who died Monday at his home in Emsworth, will be held tomorrow afternoon at his home. Mr. Miller, a well known pianist, was affiliated with the West View Park Amusement Company for several years. Besides his widow, he leaves a sister. Interment will be held at Highwood Cemetery.

MEN, 87 AND 40, HANG SELVES

The coroner's office today was investigating the deaths of two men who were found hanging in their homes last night.

Fred Yost, 87, of 2470 Charles street, was found hanging in his home by his daughter, according to the coroner's report. The aged man had used a necktie for a noose.

The other, Anthony Kolezynski, was found suspended from a hat rack in his one-room home in the rear of 317 Patton street, Wilmerding, the coroner was informed. A neighbor who had not seen Kolezynski for a day summoned Police Capt. Richard Butler, who forced his way into the house and discovered the body. Kolezynski was said to have been drinking.

Firm Gets Order For Boat Capstans

The American Machine and Engineering Corporation of Pittsburgh has received an order to furnish and deliver eight heavy-duty steam-driven capstan units for installation on the two modern all-steel towboats for the Vesta Coal Company. The towboats are being built at Jeffersonville, Ind.

JURORS TO GET ARSON CASE

Arguments were to be made today and the jury was to consider the arson case against Samuel Benjamin, butcher, of 5170 Butler street, which has been on trial in Criminal Court before Judge Ambrose B. Reid.

Benjamin was on the witness stand in his own defense for three hours, giving his version of the explosion of powder and gasoline which wrecked his store and dwelling March 27, while he and his family were away. The state had shown that a dead man, never identified, found lying in the hall after the blast, had in his pocket a check for $500 made to "cash" and signed by Benjamin.

Benjamin said he made out the check the day of the explosion to give to a man to whom he owed the amount, and said it was placed in the cash drawer at the end of the day, as the man had failed to come for it. Police testified they found the cash drawer locked after the fire and explosion. Attorney Louis Little argued the case for Benjamin and Assistant District Attorney Earl R. Jackson for the state.

TOWNSHIP HAS CASH SURPLUS

The Elizabeth Township Board of Commissioners at its regular meeting passed an ordinance, No. 59, on first and second reading fixing the tax millage at seven mills on each dollar or 70 cents per hundred dollars valuation and providing appropriations out of same as proposed at the previous meeting by Commissioner D. C. Muse. The millage for 1929 was seven and one-half.

The township auditors report showed receipts from all sources of $49,594.01, disbursements of $48,525.66 and cash balance on hand of $1,068.35. Resources, $59,276.68, liabilities, $3,509.35, and net worth of township, $55,767.33.

SCHOOL WIRING CONTRACT LET

The Board of Public Education late yesterday awarded a contract for electrical work on the Taylor Allderdice High School, Shady avenue, to the Fort Pitt Electric Company, low bidder, for $42,807.

The award followed a long controversy between the board and electrical contractors over the contract for the school wiring. Several months ago the award was held up when several members of the board charged that "an apparent conspiracy to raise prices on school construction work in Pittsburgh existed among electrical contractors."

The charges were the signal for a controversy between contractors and the board, which ended yesterday when the board made the award after admitting "temporary defeat."

The action was taken, it was explained after yesterday's meeting, in order that the work of building contractors, who started last October, would not be hampered.

It was announced that the board will continue its fight to secure free and open competition among electrical contractors in bidding on school work.

PAST OFFICERS TO BE HONORED

The past presidents of the Pennsylvania Society, Sons of the American Revolution, will be installed as life members of the board of management at a luncheon meeting to be held tomorrow noon in the William Penn Hotel.

The past presidents to be honored are: Gen. Albert J. Logan, Albert A. Horne, Thomas Stephen Brown, Omar S. Decker, Dr. Wickliffe C. Lyne and Rulef C. Schanck, of Pittsburgh. Others will be E. C. Bonniwell and Walter Gabell, of Philadelphia.

Voice of a New Life In Her Heart

"Oh, Arthur!" she whispered, not knowing what to say, because of the strange, half-frightened joy that caught her.

In a hurried interval she stopped Mary, "Isn't it heavenly!"

Mary threw back softly, "He's crazy about you—Chickie—"

Chickie's pulses raced.

They walked homeward slowly—arm in arm. As they neared Chickie's street they paused. About them the city lay asleep—a vast, pulsing body, quiet under its purple robe—behind them the whispering darkness of the park.

The night moved about them softly, her breath sweet with unuttered song. Far off and hushed the stars chimed in a dim, golden symphony.

"Have a good time, Chickie?" They stood close together in the dark. She felt his eyes, that had suddenly become so beautiful, fastened on her.

"Oh, Arthur!" she raised her face, half knowing that it was near to his, and trembled: "Did you?"

They were staring at each other. She saw his eyes. He answered, "Say! say, you're sweet!"

Lowered his head ever so little—a quick, light brush of his lips on hers—half afraid.

Chickie's eyes closed. She felt that flowers dropped about her face—soft petals stained red and sweet about her mouth.

They said nothing. Her eyes were moist. She wished to laugh, but was afraid that she might cry.

Chamber of Commerce Data Discloses Big Increase In Building Operations

Great increase in building operations in Pittsburgh during the last few years is shown in a report submitted yesterday by H. W. Correll, statistician of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce. It is disclosed that 3,519 private dwellings and 97 duplexes and apartment houses have been erected since 1926.

In that period, 5,138 private garages were built, as contrasted to 24 new commercial garages. Today in Pittsburgh, there are 27,354 privately owned garages and 214 commercial.

SQUIRREL HILL LEADS

The Fourteenth Ward led the city in home building, with a total of 664. Close for second place in home construction was the Nineteenth Ward, which boasts of 597 new dwellings. There were no dwellings built in the First and Second wards in the downtown district, although the congested Third Ward has five new homes. The Nineteenth Ward leads the city for private dwellings, with a total of 7,508, but the Fourteenth Ward leads in private garages, having a total of 4,246 with the outlying Eleventh second, with 2,306, and the Nineteenth a third with 2,232.

Pittsburgh now has 106,133 private dwellings, 1,955 duplexes and double duplexes; 1,368 apartments, 27,354 private garages and 214 commercial.

Figures of the values of dwellings have not yet been brought to date at the city assessor's office, but those available show that in 1927 there were 44,740 dwellings valued at $1,500 to $3,000 each; 16,186 valued at $3,000 to $6,000 each, and 51,688 with valuations set at over $6,000 each.

GARAGE RECORDS

Noticeable in the report is that the Fifteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth Wards have no commercial garages. But the Fifteenth has 1,191 private garages; the Twentieth, 1,009; the Twenty-third, 223; the Twenty-fourth, 575, and the Twenty-fifth, 479.

There are no duplexes in the Second and Twenty-third Wards, but there is no ward in the city without an apartment. The Fourth leads with 194, and the Seventeenth is last, having but five. The Thirteenth and Fourteenth have a total of 201. Squirrel Hill alone got 14 since 1926.

Density of population is greatest in the Third Ward, according to the report, where there are approximately 83,261 men, women and children to the square mile. But there are only 3,526 families in the ward while the Fourteenth, with a population of 23,111 per square mile, the number of families totaled more than 7,638.

Bellevue Store Man Dies From Injuries

John Zimmer, 73, of 65 Sheridan avenue, Bellevue, for many years proprietor of a confectionery store, died yesterday in the Suburban General Hospital from injuries believed to have been suffered January 4 in falling against a counter in his store. An autopsy ordered by the coroner showed death due to a fractured skull.

DOCTOR CITES CHILD NEEDS

Attention to the individual underprivileged child, rather than to the masses, was stressed by Dr. C. C. Houck yesterday in his address to the weekly meeting of the South Hills Kiwanis Club.

Dr. Houck offered the suggestion to the members that they should act as sort of "fraternal fathers" to some underprivileged child in an orphan asylum, home or in their neighborhood rather to mass groups. In this manner, he said, much more good could be accomplished in the club's underprivileged child work.

Among other features of the meeting was the awarding of the door prize, donated by Gus Anderson, and which was won by Rhodes McCaskey. President Fred Aiken acted as chairman of the meeting.

Crafton Debates Police Protection

Changes in the method of patroling police beats at night and the possible addition of a motorcycle officer for night duty, were considered by Crafton Borough Council at its meeting last night. Council was stirred to action as a result of the recent holdup of the V. L. Birchard drug store, 47 Station street, when $600 cash loot was taken.

Building permits were granted for the erection of four new dwellings expected to cost a total of $35,000 to complete. President T. J. Fitzpatrick presided at the session.

Lives in Scotland, Hunts Brother Here

The Missing Persons Bureau has received a letter from John Peattie, of Blantyre, Scotland, asking for information concerning his brother, Arthur, who, he says, came to Pittsburgh, 39 years ago. No word has been received from him for several years, the letter states and his relatives are anxious to learn whether he is still living.

Robot Starts, Stops Autos By Voice

Did you ever order an automobile to stop?

Maybe you did, but the chances are 10 to 1 that it did not obey until you put your foot on the break pedal.

A man in Pittsburgh ordered a car to stop, and it did. Then he ordered it to start, and to back up; it obeyed.

H. P. Davis, vice president of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, sat in his office at East Pittsburgh yesterday and telephoned orders to a robot, which governed the action of an automobile in a Broadway show.

The robot which took Davis' orders, about as large as a cigar box, takes vocal orders. It worked in the trunk mounted behind the car.

Plans Divulged as Rival Concern Asks for Permit; Interference Is Charged

Plans are being made by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company to establish a local group and party bus service from Pittsburgh to nearby points.

This developed before the Public Service Commission when J. B. Fisher, general master of transportation for the railroad, appeared to offer formal objections to Examiner W. E. West against the granting of a group and party certificate to the McKeesport Transit Company.

The McKeesport company desires to inaugurate such a service in connection with its bus line operating between Turtle Creek, East Pittsburgh, Wilmerding, Wall, Braddock and McKeesport. Such service was objected to by the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company now enjoying such a privilege.

It was testified by Michael W. Stypula, of Wilmerding, who is secretary of the McKeesport concern, that his line has four buses, is about to buy a fifth, has a property worth $40,000 and an indebtedness of about $6,000.

The McKeesport Transit Company proposes to charge 50 cents a mile for operating group and party service, while the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company charges a minimum flat rate of $8 an hour for the service and as much as $15 and cannot go beyond a 50-mile limit without asking for a special permit to do so.

In his testimony, Mr. Fisher said the Pennsylvania Transit Company, a subsidiary of the railroad, would shortly ask the Public Service Commission for permission to operate a group and party service.

The McKeesport company's plans would interfere with the railroad's passenger business, it was testified.

KLINE AIDE ON 'HILL' FIRED

While the Kline political ax is swinging right and left, notice was served in Quarter Sessions Court of one cut that is to be made affecting the mayor's own political machine. The head of Deputy Constable Isadore Feldman, brother of City Assessor Harry Feldman, Kline boss of the Fifth Ward, is to fall.

Constable Earl R. Sams, Negro, went into court through Attorney Ralph H. Smith, secretary of the Malone for mayor committee, and asked for the appointment of Carl Rubenstein, 31, a chauffeur, of 2200 Center avenue, as a deputy.

"You have seven deputy constables in the Fifth Ward now," interposed Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park. "I am here to see if there is a necessity for another deputy. The district attorney's office is discouraging the appointment of 'roving constables'."

Attorney Smith explained that three of the Fifth Ward deputies did only special work serving landlords warrants, and informed Judge Harry H. Rowand that Feldman was being asked to tender his resignation to Sams. Rubenstein was appointed.

3 MEN SOUGHT IN HOLDUP

The East End District was being combed by police today for three bandits who looted the cash register in the P. W. Butler store, at Hillcrest and North Atlantic avenues, of $50 after holding J. P. Flynn, the manager, at bay with a revolver yesterday.

Peggy Butler, a clerk, who saw the bandits drive up in front of the store, feared a holdup, donned her coat and ran into the street for aid. She brushed by the trio as they were about to enter the store.

Unable to secure assistance, Miss Butler returned to the store a few minutes after the robbers had left.

CHIEF TALKS ON FIRE LOSSES

Fire Chief Richard Smith, speaking on "Causes of Fire" before 300 watchmen, janitors and building superintendents at the first meeting of the fire prevention school of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, last night, stated that the 1929 fire loss in this city amounted to $1,461,334.04. Eighty-five per cent of fires result from carelessness, he said.

Although this was an increase of $300,000 over the loss in 1928, the 1929 damage was kept down $1,000,000 below that of two years ago. In 1929 salvage squads of the department saved Pittsburgh merchants and householders more than $323,555, he declared.

He was introduced by Fred C. Schatz, assistant manager of the Joseph Horne Company, who presided.

In stressing that fire prevention work can accomplish much to bring the fire loss lower, the fire chief said most of the heavy damage by fire today results because of delay in sending an alarm to firemen.

"We are beaten before we even start out from the station house," declared Smith.

In an analysis of the fires of last year, he mentioned that 21 persons lost their lives, other than firemen, and 106 civilians suffered injuries, and that the disruption to business was a loss that could not easily be computed, as it would run into millions.

Further, that of the 3,825 alarms sounded in 1929, 2,545 were for building fires and 1,280 for automobile, grass and rubbish blazes. Altogether, there was a total of 3,654 fires, of which 3,552 were confined to the starting point, according to Chief Smith.

George E. Clarkson, manager of the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council, gave a brief address on safety measures and stressed the work the council is doing among local industries and schools. Donald J. Howard was secretary of the meeting.

Auto Kills Husband, Widow Asks $10,000

Mrs. Caroline Strasser, of Homewood, asked $10,000 damages from Richard G. Hoffman, of Wilkinsburg, for the death of her husband, John L. Strasser, in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court. Strasser was waiting for a street car at Penn and Linden avenues December 19 last and was struck by Hoffman's automobile, suffering injuries that resulted in his death in the Pittsburgh Hospital January 8 last, the suit alleged. A capias was granted against Hoffman, with bail fixed at $750.

PATRICIA PITT'S COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburgher Weds Today In East

AND here's another day in February, supposed to be one of the dullest in the year, masquerading as Lady Bountiful with diverting social events and news for everyone.

First of all I want to talk about that interesting wedding taking place in New York today that of Elizabeth Armstrong, daughter of the Frederick Scatles Armstrongs of Park avenue, Gotham, and Benjamin Randolph Shriver, son of the Van Lear P Shrivers of Sewickley Valley.

And the wedding is taking place at 4 o'clock in St Bartholomew's Chapel with the Rev. Dr Roelif F Brinckerhoff, rector of St Thomas' Church, as officiant.

The bride who is being given in marriage by her father, is wearing a lovely gown of ivory panne velvet fashioned with a long, sweeping court train, and trimmed with rose point lace. Her veil of tulle and lace is arranged with a head-dress of rose point and orange blossoms. And she is carrying orchids and lilies of the valley.

Suzanne Armstrong, sister of the bride, is maid of honor and Mrs. Reginald H. Fullerton, of New York, matron of honor. And the bridesmaids are Marjorie Kimball, of Pittsburgh; Mrs F Meredith Brown, of Montreal; Mary Todd and Frances Miller, both of New York.

And Van Lear Perry Shriver is his brother's best man and Charles Bell and Reginald R Church, of Pittsburgh; Reginald H. Fullerton, of New York; Samuel E. M. Crocker, Jr., of New York, and J. Bennett Walker, of Pittsburgh, are ushers.

And after the wedding this afternoon there is going to be a reception at Sherry's.

During the last few days ever so many entertainments have been given for the bridal party. On Monday Frances Miller, daughter of the A. J. Millers, of the Park Lane, gave a luncheon at Pierre's for the bride. And among the guests was Marjorie Kimball, daughter of the G. Cook Kimballs. And Monday night the Francis de N. Schroeders, of New York, gave a dinner at Pierre's in honor of the bride and bridegroom of today and their bridal party. And last night the Armstrongs gave a dinner for their daughter and son-in-law and the wedding party in the Club St. Regis.

And after the wedding trip did you know that the Shrivers would make their home in Pittsburgh.

FROM St Petersburg Fla comes news of much entertaining in the Pittsburgh colony. On Saturday evening Miss Romaine Clark gave a dinner for 12. On Monday night she gave another dinner, in honor of the Julian Kennedys, of Pittsburgh, of course, and the John Kennedys, of East Aurora New York. Bridge followed the dinner. And yesterday she gave a luncheon bridge honoring Mrs J N Pew, of Bryn Mawr.

MORE and more betrothals are being announced prior to June weddings. The latest engagement I know of is that of Edith Crawford, daughter of Mrs Charles Sumner Crawford, of South Fairmont avenue, and the late Charles Crawford, to Clarence Howard Vant, of Ithaca, N Y., and Pittsburgh.

AND I want to remind you of the annual dinner dance for members of the Rolling Rock Hunt which will be the event of Friday evening in the Pittsburgh Golf Club. And the committee in charge of arrangements includes Mrs Frances Burke Rodgers, Mrs Theodore F Smith and Jane Allderdice. Richard King Mellon is master of the hunt and other officers are Malcolm McGiffin, president; A Rex Flin, vice president; Herbert A. May, secretary-treasurer. The colors of the hunt, blue and scarlet, will predominate in the decorations at the dinner.

THERE are to be quite a few weddings this month and on the evening of February 15 Miss Margaret Patterson, daughter of Mr and Mrs. William H Patterson, of Crafton avenue, will marry Neil C. Reed, of Syracuse, N. Y., in St. Andrew's Episcopal Church. The Rev. J. Reginald Moody will officiate.

Miss Patterson has named her bridal party. Her maid of honor will be Miss Ethel Courtright, of Chicago; the junior bridesmaid her sister, Miss Betsy Patterson. Miss Clare Fassinger, of Pittsburgh, will be bridesmaid. The small cousin of the bride-elect, Alexander E. Patterson, Jr., of Chicago, will serve as ring bearer. The best man, Webster Rice, of Philadelphia, is a former schoolmate of the bridegroom at Syracuse University. Another schoolmate Alfred Cuthbert Martin, of Pittsburgh, and William Marvin, of Whitehall, S. C., and Theodore Peasley, of Cincinnati, will be ushers.

The organist will be Earl Collins, a fraternity brother of the bridegroom, and the soloist will be Mrs. Mildred Cunningham.

Following the wedding a small reception will be held in the home of the bride. Saturday she was honor guest at a dinner in the University Club at which her father was host.

ARRANGEMENTS have been made by the nurses of St Joseph's Hospital for a dance to be held February 17 in the Hotel Schenley. The general chairman of the affair is Miss Anna J. Miller.

MRS. JOHN O'HARA ANDERSON, general chairman of the endowment fund benefit the night of February 10 in the Alvin Theater, under the direction of the Smith College Club, has appointed Mrs. Mahlon E Lewis chairman of tickets. Mrs Lewis will be assisted by Mrs Thomas C. Buchanan, for the Beaver valley; Mrs John Church, for Rosslyn Farms; Miss Margaret Vance, Greensburg; Miss Margaret Davidson, Coraopolis, and Mrs. Frederick Hufnagel, Sewickley.

And Mrs S. Murray Rust is chairman of patronesses, assisted by Mrs. Kenneth Cunningham and Mrs. J. G. Chalfant.

COURT EAST LIBERTY, No. 905, Catholic Daughters of America, will hold a reception and card party on February 14 in the ballroom of the Rittenhouse. The chapter will meet tonight to discuss plans for the affair.

THE Poale Zedeck Sisterhood will hold a cabaret dance next Wednesday evening in the Schenley Hotel. The general chairman is Mrs. Morris Cohen, who is aided by Mrs. I. Klein, Mrs. C. J. Weinberger, Mrs. Robert Colnes, Mrs. Ben Marcus and Mrs. Bertha Wolf.

THE Rev. Dr. Samuel M. Laing will address the Sarah Sloan Scholarship Club at its luncheon in the Congress of Clubs Monday. Mrs. William L. Stone will be soloist. Mrs. E. B. Heyser is taking reservations.

Business, Professional Club Of Wilkinsburg Hears Pageant Read

MRS. CHESTER F. JOHNSTON, chairman of drama at the Congress of Clubs, read her pageant, "Seven Ages of Woman," before the Wilkinsburg Business and Professional Women's Club last night. It was the semi-monthly dinner meeting of the club and was held in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel. During the business session plans were discussed for the benefit card party to be held in McCreery's, February 18, and also for the club's part in the celebration of National Business Women's Week, March 8 to 15.

Both national and state officers have been invited to attend the inter-club friendship party March 29 when Miss Lutie E. Stearns, of Milwaukee, will be the speaker. The Pittsburgh and the Wilkinsburg B. P. W. clubs have received invitations from the Wheeling Club to be present at a banquet February 20, which will be addressed by Lena Madesin Phillips, former national president.

OFFICERS have been elected as follows by the Western Pennsylvania Woman's Auxiliary to the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers: Chairman, Mrs. Newell G. Alford; vice chairmen, Mrs. Frederick Crabtree and Mrs. S. A. Taylor; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Max von Bernewitz; recording secretary, Mrs. Charles R. Fettke; treasurer, Mrs. Robert M. Black. Mrs. Howard N. Eavenson and Mrs. A. E. Holbrook are to be delegates to the annual meeting of the National Auxiliary in New York February 17 to 21.

TOMORROW afternoon Dr. Frederick Mortimer Clapp, head of the fine arts department of the University of Pittsburgh, will give an illustrated lecture before the Twentieth Century Club under auspices of the music and art committee, of which Mrs. Jacob Simpson Payton is chairman. The subject of Dr. Clapp's lecture is the famous "Book of Hours," by Jen Fouquet. A series of lantern slides specially made by the Lumiere process in natural colors will be shown. The committee for the day includes Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Howard Noble and Mrs. James P. Cassidy.

MRS. L. A. HUBACH heads the list of hostesses for the luncheon which the Congress department of drama will give tomorrow, to honor Fritz Leiber, the Shakespearean star. The other members of the committee are Mrs. R. J. Gibson, Mrs. G. W. Seaman, Mrs. J. L. Rodrigues and Miss Helen Irwin. Mr. Leiber, who will give a talk after luncheon, will share honors with Virginia Bronson.

Plans have been completed for the bridge and bake sale which the department of education will hold on Saturday. The proceeds will be divided between the scholarship fund of the department and the mortgage fund of the Congress.

WHEN the Outlook Alliance holds its annual observance of American Music Day in the Congress of Clubs tomorrow, Mrs Louis Young, Henrietta Meyer Bodycombe, Mary Redmond and Phyllis Wagner Miller will present a program consisting entirely of compositions by Pittsburgh women. Mrs. Young will sing four of Othelia Averman Vogel's songs, Mrs. Vogel accompanying; Mrs Bodycombe will play from her own "Early American Suite"; Miss Redmond, accompanied by Miss Hulda Lefridge, will give violin compositions of Mrs. J. P. Den Hartog, and Mrs. Guido and Mrs. Wagner will sing several of Mrs. H. C. Harnish's songs for soprano.

MRS. LOUISE HOGE HANCOCK, violinist, will feature the program of entertainment to be presented this evening before the South Hills Unit No. 156 American Legion Auxiliary, in the post rooms, West Liberty avenue. She will be accompanied by her mother, Mrs. G. Ira Hoge. The program will also include a lecture on television, with motion pictures under auspices of the Bell Telephone Company. Mrs. J. M. Connor is chairman of hostesses.

* * *

AN exhibit of work done by Pittsburgh's sightless citizens will be made on Monday evening in the lobby of the Pitt Theater when Phi Sigma Sigma Sorority holds its benefit theater party. The proceeds of the affair will be used for a scholarship at the University of Pittsburgh and for the scrority's national project, Rainbow Camp, where underprivileged children are cared for.

FINE WOOLEN FABRICS WILL FEATURE SPRING CLOTHES

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—All kinds of materials are being fleeced out of their popularity. Which is just to tell you that we may not be wild this spring, but we certainly will be wooly. The introduction of fine woolens at the beginning of the autumn season apparently has proved so successful that this season will see frocks of woolen fabrics, as well as suits, coat-frocks and ensembles greeting the welcome rays of the spring sun. The new woolens are even lighter, finer and more supple than those introduced last season, whether that is a symptom or a cause of their sustained popularity, we do not really know. Smart little tailored frocks of light woolen with delightful little touches to soften their severity will, we think, be liked this season. Several houses are showing coat-frocks, and many are wondering if they will attain any medium of popularity this year. The coat-frock seems to be shown year after year, but does not seem, somehow, to find its way out of the atelier's shop into the street, in any great numbers, although it is an attractive and exceedingly practical garment, especially becoming to the figure that boasts slim, straight lines.

WE SHOW today a new version of the coat-frock as created by Martial et Armand and shown in their recent mid-winter collection. A lightweight English wool in black is used for the body of the garment and for the capes at either shoulder. Vertical set-on bands, through which the belt is passed, gives a Norfolk effect which is pleasingly new. The little lingerie vest is of ecru linen with fluted ruffles at the edge. The two nice little capes do not quite meet in the back, being separated by a vertical band similar to those in front.

THE same establishment is responsible for the little tailored frock prophetically named "My Favorite." It is also of a lightweight woolen mixture. It is red with an almost imperceptible design in the weave. The peplum-like bodice is belted at the natural waistline and attached in one piece with the pleated skirt. A matching woolen braid frayed along one edge to simulate fringe, borders the neckline, cuffs and the very pleasing scarf collar.

REICH ACCEPTS YOUNG PLAN

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—The Reich federal council today accepted the Young plan for reparations payments by a vote of 48 to 6. Twelve members abstained from voting.

While the Young plan was meeting with favorable action in the federal council, otherwise known as the Reichsrat, or upper house, a bitter debate was proceeding over the measure in the Reichstag.

Foreign Minister Julius Curtius, who headed the German delegation to the last Hague conference on reparations, fought valiantly for acceptance of the plan over the protests of a strong opposition. Some of the opposition members charged the plan failed to remove from Germany the stigma of war guilt.

"Every government renounced war guilt," Curtius said in answer to this criticism. "We have never concluded an agreement based on war guilt."

In spite of strenuous opposition, the measure is expected to pass the Reichstag.

The federal council also accepted the separate debt agreement concluded between Germany and the United States.

7 Dead in Rumania Election Warfare

BUCHAREST, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Furious clashes between political opponents have taken a toll of seven dead and 30 seriously wounded so far in the present election campaign in Rumania, it was estimated today. The latest incident in the campaign was the slaying of a barber named John Moldavianu today. Moldavinau's throat had been cut by someone wielding a razor in a street fight. Basil Octavianu, Liberal leader and president of the Bucharest Law Association, ascribed the slaying to political motives.

Father of 4 Kills Wife and Himself

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 5.—(INS.)—William Barker, 58, a carpenter, and father of four children, shot and killed his wife, Ida Louise Barker, 36, as she lay sleeping at the Barker home near here today and then killed himself.

The second shot awakened the sleeping children, who found both parents dead.

School Children Bet Lunch Money On Horses

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—School authorities today renewed efforts to prevent gambling in the vicinity of schools.

Acting on the complaint of parents, police yesterday arrested George Glover who, they charged, was taking the bets of school children on horse races. Wagers of 50 and 75 cents, the sums representing the children's lunch money, were accepted, police charged. Glover was arrested as he sat in an automobile parked near the school.

Glover later was freed by Judge Alfred Erickson, who declared there was no evidence to show gambling. Police had been ordered not to molest the children, so there was no testimony as to what dealings, if any, they had with Glover.

Judge Erickson today was to pass on the evidence against Deinese Durak, charged with operating a speakeasy opposite a school building.

QUEBEC LIQUOR PROFITS BIG

QUEBEC, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The provincial treasury of Quebec was enriched today by $8,043,752 from the sale of liquor during the year 1928-29, it was shown in the eighth annual report of the Quebec liquor commission. To this was added $1,644,515 in revenue from seizures. It was the biggest year in the history of the commission.

The report of the commission showed gross receipts of $27,007,430 from sales, with purchases of stock, operating charges and other expenses totaling $9,629,059. Customs, excise and sales taxes paid to the Dominion government amounted to $9,334,61..

From 1927-28 the turnover to the treasury was $6,500,000 the previous record. Sales showed an approximate increase of $3,000,000 in 1928-29 over the previous year.

Meadville C. of C. Now 122 Years Old

MEADVILLE, Pa., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The Meadville Chamber of Commerce was 122 years old today. It is said to be the second oldest organization of its kind in the state, and the fifth oldest in the nation. The body was formed on February 5, 1807, as the association for the advancement of arts, sciences and industry, and has been in existence continuously under different names since that time.

Varicose Veins

If you or any relative or friend are worried or suffer because of varicose veins, or bunches, the best advice that anyone in this world can give is to get a prescription that literally hundreds of people all over the country are using with complete satisfaction.

Simply ask your druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Rubbing gently upwards and towards the heart as the blood in the veins flows that way. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. Emerald Oil is a powerful, yet harmless germicide, and results are guaranteed by its makers. You can get it at May and Liggett Drug Stores all over Greater Pittsburgh and all good druggists.

A NEW SIMMONS Inner Coil MATTRESS

Priced so everybody in the United States can have one

$19.95

Hundreds of thousands are flocking to the stores to see this marvelous new mattress

IT was a big revolutionary idea—the first mattress built with a heart of tiny resilient coils that could never pack down like hair or cotton.

Always buoyant and springy!

The first Simmons Inner Coil Mattress instantly became famous—the Beautyrest. Wealthy women, the first to possess them, gladly came forward and publicly gave their praise of them. Everybody longed to know this wonderful night's rest which those who had tried it told about.

But there were millions for whom this extraordinary comfort was unattainable.

Now the Simmons Company have produced a second inner coil mattress, as far an advance in comfort over cotton, felt or hair mattresses—but at a price that everyone can pay!

Here it is! Priced at only $19.95, springy, buoyant coils and all! Soft upholstery, lovely coverings, new colorings, tailored edges!

It is called the new Simmons "Deepsleep" Mattress. The moment you see it, you will know why nobody wants the old-style mattresses any more!

Try it on the Simmons Deepsleep Box Spring or the Slumber King Spring. The same store will show you all three! Simmons Company, New York, Chicago, Atlanta, San Francisco.

Beautyrest Mattress, $39.50 · Ace Box Spring, $42.50 · Ace Open Coil Spring, $19.75 · Deepsleep Mattress, $19.95 · Deepsleep Box Spring, $27.50 · Slumber King Spring, $12 · Beds, $10 to $60

SPRINGY, BUOYANT COILS buried in soft upholstery—this new Simmons "Deepsleep" Mattress can never pack down tight and hard like hair or cotton! Day after day it springs back smooth and buoyant, ready to cradle you afresh.

Discharged Maid Threatens To Disclose Secret

CHAPTER XXV.

EARLY Friday morning, as soon as Tom was out of the house Aline went over to Aline's house to tell her about Hilda.

She found her propped up against the lace-edged pillows of her bed drinking orange juice and nibbling toast and looking very fair and comfortable.

"What do you think of Sam Oliver?" Aline asked with a smile and a yawn when Lovejoy came in and sat down on the edge of her bed.

"I think he's very careless," answered Lovejoy tartly. "He left the stub of his cigar in my livingroom yesterday, and I had a perfectly terrible time trying to explain it to Tom last night. . . . I don't know whether he believed what I told him or not."

She was pretty sure that Tom had not believed her. Men who come to show certain materials usually aren't rich enough to buy half-dollar cigars for themselves—and she knew it.

"But that isn't the worst thing that happened," she said gloomily. "Hilda must have been peeking around yesterday afternoon just as you said she would. And last night she told me she wouldn't tell Tom that I had a man in the house drinking with me if I'd be nice to her.

She said 'You treat me right and I'll treat you right.' I think she's threatening me. Don't you?"

Aline laughed. "Of course she is. She probably wants some money from you, and this is her way of getting it."

She put one of her white hands under her pillows and drew her little gold-mesh bag from under them.

"Now don't let her get it into her head that you're making her this money to hush things up," she said, taking a $50 bill from it. "Tell her you're going to get a man and wife to work for you in the new house. Discharge her and give her this instead of notice."

Lovejoy took the bill.

Maid Discharged

"I once had a maid who did this very same sort of thing," Aline went on, draining her glass of orange juice. "And that's why I'm so careful about getting telephone calls and letters from my beaus here at the house now. It surely taught me a lesson. And that reminds me—Sam Oliver left town last night and I told him to wire me in your name this morning. You'd better skip along home or Hilda will get his telegram when it comes."

Lovejoy "skipped along" home in a great hurry.

Hilda was washing the breakfast dishes, singing to herself as she worked.

"A telegram didn't come for me while I was gone, did it?" Lovejoy asked her pleasantly. She meant to be pleasant and sweet with Hilda just as if she liked and trusted her.

Hilda nodded.

"The telegraph company telephoned the message a few minutes ago," she said, "I took it, Missis."

"You took it!" Lovejoy's determination to be pleasant and kind vanished into thin air. "Why, what right had you to take my telegrams over the telephone?—You get into that room of yours, pack up your things and get out of this house just as fast as you can! Do you hear me?"

Hilda took her wet reddened hands out of the dish-water and turned around to face her.

"Don't you talk to me like that, you bad woman!" she said stolidly. "It's you that ought-ta be throwed out of this house instead of me. You with a good husband, carrying on with not one man, Missis, but two! Don't you think I don't know all about you!"

Threatens to Tell

Lovejoy began to feel sick and dizzy with fright.

"I told you that telegram was telephoned to this house," Hilda said. "But it wasn't. It was brung here, and I got it!"

She nodded her big flaxen head solemnly.

"I got two of them letters that you're always waiting for," she added. "I got them where you won't get them. At my girl friend's house, all locked up. . . . I think I'm going to show them to Mister. He ought ta know what's going on. He ought-ta know how you're doing him!"

The shiny linoleum-covered floor of the little kitchen seemed to be slipping away from Lovejoy's feet. She tried to tell herself that she wasn't in any real danger—that the letters were Aline's, and it could be proved that they had been written to Aline.

"Hilda," she said desperately, holding to the edge of the table for support, "Hilda what would you say if I told you that those letters weren't written to me? What would you say if I told you that that telegram that came this morning was not for me but for one of my women friends?"

"I'd say you was lying something fierce," Hilda replied promptly and simply.

"Listen," she said after a little pause. "Listen. It ain't only letters and telegrams I know about. I know about the man that telephones you right here at the house sometimes, and I heard you call him up the night Mister went out to play cards. I heard you call him 'Steve' on the telephone."

Lovejoy gasped.

Steve's Initials

I guess that's who sent the telegram this morning, too," the girl went on. "It was signed with just the first letters of his name—'S O.' But I guess that was the man you call 'Steve' all right. I guess I ain't so dumb I shouldn't know that!"

Lovejoy couldn't speak for a moment.

Sam Oliver—Steve Ogilvay, she was thinking. . . . Why the two men had the same initials! And if Hilda showed Tom that telegram Tom would be sure to think it had come to Lovejoy from Steve Ogilvay. Nothing ever would make him think anything else.

"Listen to me, Hilda," she said. "What is it you want from me? Why is it that you're acting like this with me? I've always been nice to you, haven't I?"

"Making me stay in on Saturday night when you knew I wanted to go by the Scandinavian Club to dance! Was that bein' nice to me?" asked Hilda sullenly. "And just now telling me to get out of your house! Throwing me out like I was a tramp—Well, I'm going!"

She started for the door on her big feet with their thick ankles. But Lovejoy stopped her.

"Wait a minute, Hilda," she said. "Maybe I haven't been nice to you, but I meant to be. I've always liked you—and I want to be nice to you now."

She took Aline's $50 bill from the pocket of the sweater she was wearing.

Tries Blackmail

"I want to give you this," she said. "I know we never can be friends after this morning. I know you'd rather get another job. But you take this—and you give me the telegram and the letters that you have. Won't you?"

The girl shook her head once more.

"No ma'am," she said flatly. "Not for a little money like that. I been saving up a long time so I can go back to the Old Country and see my folks pretty quick. You give me two more bills like this one and I give you back your things."

Lovejoy tried to be calm. But once more her anger flared up . . . To be held up like this by a girl who had lived in her house for weeks! A common ignorant girl who couldn't even speak English!—to let a girl like Hilda outwit her!

"You know that what you're doing to me is called 'blackmail,' don't you?" she asked furiously. "You know I could have you put into jail for stealing my letters, too, don't you? —Now you go and get them and give them to me this instant or I'll phone the police!"

Hilda walked into her own room.

A moment later she came walking out of it. She had on her hat and coat.

"You get out of my way," she said when Lovejoy tried to stop her. "I'm going straight down to Mister's office, and I'm going to show him all the things I've got—and I'm going to tell him such things about you!—You bad woman."

Mother Struggling to Maintain Home, Stirs Fay King to High Praise

By FAY KING

FATHERS who have died, or deserted a family, leave a hard task for mothers who work much and support growing children.

A mother who, out of her meager wages, tries to maintain a home, educate her sons and daughters, and at the same time see them happy, has in store many heartaches, which are not appreciated by the children until years afterwards.

Her children long for luxuries they see children with fathers have. They want pretty clothes and cars, and good times beyond the power of their brave mother to provide.

They even think she does not appreciate what they must do without.

Alas, if they only knew how every mother thinks that the best is none too good for her children.

A Woman's Scream Sends Noel and Georges to Rescue

IT WAS but the fraction of a second that Lillian and I stared at each other as I cried out my sudden discovery that the old woman in the bungalow was an impostor. Then we both went into action. I dashed for the door and Lillian, as she followed me, issued a quick command.

"Phil! Telephone the manager and have him rush some men up to that roof bungalow. Noel come with us. We'll send in one of the men from the hall outside."

She uttered the last words in the hall, and she, Noel and I, pausing only to send one of the guards inside, raced up to the roof, not stopping for the elevator. There was no light upon the roof and none in any of the bungalows. Lillian put her hand upon my arm as we neared it.

"Don't knock," she said. "Try the door noiselessly. If you're right, the impostor isn't there now. Did you notice where the light switch was?"

"Just inside the door," I whispered.

"Can you reach it with the door just slightly ajar?"

"Yes."

"Then don't open it any farther than you have to, switch on the light and draw back."

I went to the door and found that the knob turned easily. I followed her directions implicitly and the next instant the little bungalow blazed with light. But there was neither sound nor visible movement, and cautiously we made our way into it and looked around. No one was in sight, the bed was unoccupied and a hasty inspection of the other rooms showed the place to be deserted.

Lillian turned to the door. "We'll have to let them know about this," she said, "and yet we might upset everything by butting in. Madge! What!"

She did not finish the sentence but sprang to my aid as did Noel. I had gone to the portion of the wall behind which I had heard the scratching during the time I had interviewed the supposed tenant of the place. I was fumbling along it, and finally found the spring which I was sure was there. It swung open revealing a fair-sized closet space in which lay something which chilled me with fear.

It was the inert figure of a woman bound and gagged.

"Dead?" Noel whispered fearfully as we lifted her out of the space and laid her on the couch.

"No," Lillian said authoritatively, "only fainted. Give me a knife, Noel, and Madge look for some restorative. Bring a pan of cold water."

I brought the water immediately, and by the time she and Noel had removed the gag and cut the woman's bonds I had found a restorative which I knew was potent. I prepared it and held it in readiness, while Lillian threw water in the woman's face, and Noel chafed her hands.

"She's coming 'round," Lillian whispered in a moment. "I think she can swallow and talk." She raised her eyes from a close inspection of the woman's throat. "She hasn't been kept gagged all the time. Can you swallow?" She bent closer to the woman whose eyes had opened and were looking at us with a fierce imperative appeal even as she nodded an assent to the question.

"Let her sip that, Madge," Lillian directed and drop by drop I administered the restorative. It was but a few seconds more before the old woman spoke, even as some men sent by the manager came crowding into the room.

"Don't wait," the old woman whispered. "The man—dressed like me—looks like me—gone down over the roof—hiding—quick!"

Lillian turned to the men. "One of you go for a woman to take charge here," she said crisply. "The other stay here until she comes. Come—"

Noel and I rushed with her down the stairs, past our own floor to the one on which the "tiger trap" was located. There was no question now of fearing to "butt in." Somewhere between us and the "tiger trap," a malignant and resourceful desperado lurked.

"We'll go to the room next to Princes Georges' and knock softly," Lillian said as we came to the last step of the stairs. "Perhaps we can get away with it."

Our knock was not answered at once. But a few seconds after we repeated it, Dicky came to the door and opened it. He was collarless, his hair rumpled, his clothing disheveled and he was bleeding from a cut on his chin. I saw that and I wasted no time in a solicitude which I knew would be unwelcome to him.

"There's a man loose," I said, and before I could finish he had taken my hand and raced with me into the next room in which the furniture was all tumbled over. There had been a desperate struggle. We saw that. Prince Georges and Harry Underwood were also bleeding from slight cuts upon their faces. But three powerful men, trussed as if for baking, their malignant eyes gleaming like those of feral animals, were evidence that their slight wounds had not been in vain.

"There's a man loose," I repeated. "He impersonated the woman in the bungalow. We just found her gagged and bound."

With a bound, Harry Underwood seized one of the bound figures and jerked it forward.

"Tell me where that man is," he said, "or you'll be shoveling coal in hell in the next 30 seconds."

The man seemed to slump together in Mr. Underwood's powerful grip.

"He was to have been here," he said, and there was every appearance of plausibility in his tone. "That is the reason we slipped up. One more man would have turned the trick. I don't know where he is. He was to have come down from the roof. Perhaps he fell off. It's slippery up there."

The explanation was a plausible one, but someway it did not ring true to me. Why, I did not know. It was intuition, not my reason, which prompted my cry.

"Harry!" I called. "He's lying. I know it! The man who gagged that old woman was too clever to fall. He didn't mean to come here. He——"

Mr. Underwood had the man's throat in his hands.

"Tell me the truth," he said between his teeth.

"He was to get in the girl's room," the man began.

"The balcony!" Prince Georges said with an oath, and the next instant he and Noel were outside and we know that they were running lightly up the fire escape.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Trifles, Light as Love

MARRIAGE, like colonial furniture, may be old-fashioned and not always comfortable, but, somehow, nobody has ever invented anything to improve on it.

Before smoking and golf were introduced, murder was the favorite morning pastime and most popular outdoor sport.

There was simply no outlet for a man's excess energy, inhibitions and complexes, except fighting.

It is almost as hard for some men to get along with only one flirtation a season as it would be for them to get along with only one white evening tie.

A man is not getting middle-aged until he gives up polo for golf and cigarets for a pipe, and prefers rubber heels to French heels on a woman around the house.

When love, like liquor, is highly diluted and passed around indiscriminately, it loses half the flavor, all the bouquet, and most of the kick.

A man loves a woman only as long as she is lovable; but a woman is supposed to go on automatically loving her husband until the judge tells her to stop.

The girl with sex-appeal may get almost any man on her list; but it's the woman with emotional appeal who gets his name on a marriage certificate.

The modern girl hitches her wagon to a star-job or a star-career—and then looks around for a husband to act as a parachute in case the star should fall.

The less a woman talks about anything, the more a man suspects she knows about it.

A Lothario prides himself on the number of his conquests; but it is far easier for a man to fool one woman after another than it is for him to go on fooling the same woman forever.

NOT SO DUMB

By HELEN KLUMPH

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Dulcy is an adorable blonde, always helping people—but usually into trouble. A serious quarrel with Gordon, her fiance, results from her determination to help him put over a business deal. Over his protests she goes to the train with him to meet Forbes, a financier, and invites him and his family to her house for a week-end. Gordon finds, to his horror, that she has a new butler who is an ex-convict, and that she has also invited an utter stranger named Van Dyke.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"DULCY!"

Gordon's tone was the grim, purposeful one of a man who is taking his life in his hands, and knows that he'll probably drop it. Dulcy stood framed in the doorway, her soft, blonde hair a halo around her head, an expression of deep contentment on her face.

"Dulcy! Who is that man you have invited here?"

Dulcy was almost too innocently sweet as she answered. Mr. Van Dyke was one of the Van Dykes, she explained, a man anyone would be delighted to meet. She had met him herself just that afternoon, at one of the neighbors', and though he had many invitations for the week-end he had accepted hers.

Gordon was impressed, but still troubled.

"But having that stranger here with Forbes—how do you know it's going to—"

Dulcy waved his objections aside. Any business man, she was sure, would be delighted to be in the company of Schuyler Van Dyke. Why, Mr. Van Dyke had interests in railroads and mines and all sorts of things, much more important ones than that old artificial jewelry business of Mr. Forbes—except, of course, to a woman just getting dressed. Besides, he was wonderfully entertaining. He knew lots of parlor games and played the piano beautifully.

"Really, Gordon," she told him earnestly, "you'd never think he was of such good family, he is so clever."

Gordon Objects

Gordon was weakening, even before Dulcy edged into the hollow of his arm and planted a kiss on his cheek. She was trying hard to help him, he reminded himself. Maybe it wouldn't be so bad to have a big man like Van Dyke in the house, to impress Forbes, though he couldn't just see how he and Forbes would get a chance to talk business, with a stranger around.

"You shouldn't have asked him, Dulcy," Gordon made one last attempt to exert some authority. "With Mr. Forbes coming. You know how much it means to me—to us. Why, we can't be married this year if this deal with Forbes doesn't go through."

"Darling," Dulcy slid her arms around his neck and drew him close to her. "You just leave Mr. Forbes to me. And cheer up; I've got a real surprise for you."

Gordon looked at her aghast, but Bill, long accustomed to his sister's ways, could treat the new development with philosophic calm.

"One thing Dulcy has never learned," he observed, "is the difference between a surprise and a shock."

Even Dulcy, to whom all was well with the world as long as Gordon was with her and there wasn't actually a bomb bursting underfoot, realized that the situation was growing tense.

"Somebody else, besides Van Dyke?" exclaimed Gordon, ominously.

"What are you trying to do, solve the housing problem?" asked Bill.

"Just wait, Gordon; don't get so excited," she urged. "Vincent Leach is coming," she concluded, with pride.

And at that moment, Perkins, now letter perfect in his part, although he announced guests as if they had been trains, bellowed, "Good evening, may I take your hat and coat? Will you step this way?"

Dulcy was glad to see the newcomer. Bill looked slightly seasick, and Gordon could have posed for an illustration entitled "Just before the battle, mother."

"If Dulcy were a man, she'd flirt with a prize fighter's wife," murmured Bill, and Gordon replied that he doubted whether she could have found, anywhere in the land, anyone he'd less rather see than this new guest.

Vincent Leach had a mincing walk, and his hands were as restless as an interpretive dancer's. His manner suggested that he, alone, was carrying the world's great thoughts about with him.

He followed the butler upstairs, and it was several minutes before Gordon could trust himself to speak. Dulcy fussed with the flowers and said nothing.

"Dulcy!" he said at last. "Who is this man, and why have you asked him here?"

Dulcy Gives Reason

Dulcy, as usual, had a perfectly good reason; perfectly good, that is, to her. It is probable that Dulcy could have found a good reason for inviting a night club hostess and a troupe of trained seals, if a sudden whim to do so had possessed her.

"You and I met Mr. Leach at Mr. De Mille's last week," she reminded Gordon. "He's the big scenario writer. And there's a secret about him," she went on, mysteriously, and rushed off to fuss with a bowl of lilies.

"You might put one of those lilies in Gordon's hand; he'll be ready to be laid out in a minute," Bill suggested.

Gordon was fighting a losing battle with his temper. He had to ask her to stop fussing with the flowers. And he had to ask with mounting annoyance why on earth she had asked this man, whom she now recalled as a terrible bore, to the house when Forbes was going to be there. He was willing now to grant that it was all right to ask Van Dyke, but this pest!

Dulcy came over and curled up on his lap, and put her head on his shoulder. When she was like this, he could forgive her anything. Softly she confided to him that Vincent Leach and Angela Forbes were interested in each other.

"You mean Forbes' daughter? I thought she and Bill—"

Dulcy dismissed that with a wave of her hand. That was all long ago, she explained, and Bill meant less than the dust to Angela now. And it was important for Angela to have a good time. Dulcy had fixed it so that she and Vincent could see a great deal of each other over the week-end. Maybe they would really fall in love with each other!

"Like you and me, Gordie," she cooed, planting kisses on the tip of his ear, his chin, the deepening furrow in his forehead.

Gordon Is Silent

It was all perfectly clear in Dulcy's mind, and she tried desperately to make Gordon see her point of view. But the more she explained, the more silent and suspicious Gordon became. He loved Dulcy, desperately, tremulously. He was crazy to marry her—and sometimes he wondered if he wasn't.

But Dulcy was convinced that in playing Cupid and promoting a match between Vincent and Angela she was putting over a master stroke of diplomacy. They would always be grateful to her because it happened in her house, and sentiment, if nothing else, would lead Mr. Forbes to feel kindly toward her, his daughter's benefactor. He would want to do something for her. Then she would let the cat out of the bag, tell him she wanted more than the proposed sixteen and two-thirds per cent of the new company's stock for Gordon's business. It was all very simple.

Gordon leaped to his feet in alarm, abruptly dumping Dulcy to the floor. Like a caged animal, he paced up and down the room.

"Gordon darling, don't be upset," she pleaded with him. "I know they should marry. It's a woman's intuition."

Suddenly Gordon stopped, his face livid.

"And it's my intuition that the whole thing is wrong," he exploded. "You promised me you wouldn't interfere if I let you bring Forbes here, and now what have you to greet him? An ex-convict for a butler! A golf fanatic! An idiot of a scenario writer who proposes to make love to Forbes' daughter under your very roof! What a setting for my business with Forbes! Well, I'm not going to play the fool, no, sir!"

He caught up his bag and stamped out of the room without a single backward glance. He didn't even seem to hear Dulcy crying.

And she could only stand distractedly watching him through her tears. He'd never come back to her, never!

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The 'Coming Out' Tea

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have received an invitation to a "coming out" tea. This invitation reads that "Miss So and So will be home on Wednesday from two to four." Is it necessary to send an acceptance to such an invitation? And if so, how should it be worded? MAY.

IT is not necessary to send an acceptance to such an invitation, unless it is so requested on the invitation. Apparently there was not, on your invitation, this request. When you go to the tea you leave your cards, and, if you do not plan to go, you send your cards so that they arrive on the day of the debut.

Using the Doctor's Title

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Your services have been a great help to me and many others with their problems. Now I come to you with mine.

1. Why does it disturb me so to hear my woman friends and acquaintances say "Doc" this or that of my husband or his friend who chances to be a man of justly earned degree—be he dentist, doctor, minister? I have discussed this with one whom I consider a friend, but to no avail. She says that the men do it, so why can't the ladies.

2. When introducing my husband to a woman whom I have just met, or in fact any woman, am I correct in saying "Mrs. Black, may I presented my husband, Dr. Smith?" Oh should I just say "Mr.?" U. H.

HOW thoroughly I agree with you! I, too, consider this abbreviation of title one of the thoroughly inexcusable details or manners or lack of them. I don't know exactly what you can do about this—people who are so ill-mannered as to address a doctor in this rude manner are difficult to show this kind of thing. But I can understand how deeply this bothers you and annoys you and embarrasses you. I wonder why people will think that such informalities are smart or funny or friendly. It goes with the back-slapping type of so-called friendship, a misplaced idea of comradeship.

Poor manners, too, though not nearly as rude, is the use of the title "Doctor" without the last name. Don't you dislike that, too? It is like saying "Mr." with no last name. "What do you think of that, Doctor?" should, of course, be, "What do you think of that, Dr. Browne?" The last name should be used with the title.

2. Since your husband is a doctor you should use the title, although usually it is not necessary to add the name. However, if it is necessary, in case the woman does not know that your husband is a doctor, then you would say, "my husband, Dr. Smith." In any case, you would not say "Mr."

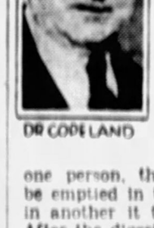
How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Treat Your Stomach Right, Let It Rest!

IF the stomach could think and tell us its story, it would be most interesting. I am sure it would move us to sympathy.



DR COPELAND

One of the things a stomach must resent is being kept always at work. After a heavy meal, or a light one for that matter, the stomach needs a rest.

Much energy is consumed in digestion and the stomach has hard work to do. It takes time for digestion, also. In one person, the stomach may be emptied in three hours, and in another it takes five hours. After the digestion of one meal has been completed, before putting anything else into the stomach, give it a period of rest.

When you finish a meal, consider it finished. Do not dump something more into the stomach in half an hour. Three or four hours, at least, should pass before additional food or a second meal is eaten.

If good sense could only govern our habits of eating, how much suffering we might save ourselves. We would live longer, too.

There is no end of ills which come from overeating and neglect of the digestive tract. Indigestion, dyspepsia, heartburn, bloating of the stomach, colic and other troubles, bring much suffering. Constipation is probably the most widespread of any ailment of man. Fermentation and auto-intoxication set up their poisons in the system to make us miserable. All these symptoms occur because we have mistreated our stomachs.

Nature is long suffering and forgiving. But there is a limit to what it will endure.

Diet is of paramount importance in keeping the stomach in good condition. Eat what you like if it happens to agree with you.

Those who have dyspepsia, or other minor troubles of the stomach, should eat sparingly of starches, sugars and fats.

Most dyspeptics can eat the green, fresh vegetables, toast, raw oysters, soft-boiled eggs, baked apples and prunes. Milk is also a food that can be taken by most people and nobody will ever starve if he can drink milk. It is the one perfect food for anyone.

Irregular eating, all sorts of emotional tendencies like fear, worry, anger and the like, tend to upset the stomach.

The stomach of a full-grown adult holds from two to three pints. Those who drink and eat in excess are almost sure to produce a dilation of this organ; it loses its natural shape and size. Then there is likely to be constant fermentation and much discomfort for the victim.

Are you treating your stomach right?

2 MINES CLOSED BY STRIKE

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Feb. 5 —The Franklin and the Glendale mines of the Valley Camp Coal Company, subsidiary of the J. A. Paisley interests of Cleveland, were down yesterday with 600 miners on strike.

The National Miners Union, which is contesting with the United Mine Workers of America for control of the strikers, reported that not a single miner entered the workings.

The strike followed the announcement of a 6-cent an hour cut on the part of the company and the installation of a company weigh boss on the tipple. Pickets are on duty.

URGE BARRACKS IN WAYNESBURG

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Feb. 5 — Establishment of state police barracks in Waynesburg was given impetus when Maj. Lynn G. Adams, commander of the force, appeared before borough council to explain the proposal. He arranged a conference with members of the council and the county commissioners tomorrow evening.

The state police are anxious to have the barracks established here because of Waynesburg being located on two trunk highways leading to the West Virginia state line.

Autoists Warned To Get Licenses

More than 170,000 applications for renewal of automobile drivers' licenses mailed out by the State Bureau of Motor Vehicles, were undelivered because of faulty address, Paul C. Wolff, secretary of the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh, said today. Wolff said this condition may deprive many motorists who have changed their address since last March of the right to drive their cars after the first of next month. Motorists who have not received renewal blanks may obtain them from the automobile club headquarters either downtown or in East Liberty, Wolff said.

DANDRUFF

A Sure Way to End It

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this just get about four ounces of plain ordinary liquid arvon from any drug store (that is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring, use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft and look and feel a hundred times better.

EVERY RIGHT THINKING YOUNG MAN LOOKS FORWARD TO MARRIAGE

Young Austrian Mine Worker Lays Bare His Problems in Confidential Letter— Now Published With His Consent.

"When I met your representative about two months ago he spoke to me of the World Medicine Co. I was in the depths of despair. I was in love with a fine young lady and she had promised to marry me if I had worked hard, saved my money and we had almost enough for a home. Something would have been happy for both of us except that that winter I had caught a bad cold working in the mines. Before I knew it I was hawking and spitting all the time and I knew that catarrh had taken root in my system. I coughed up black mucus and, what was worse, I swallowed part of it. My stomach was poisoned and I grew weak. Gas would form on my stomach after meals and I would swell up and I had to take physics every night to get my bowels to move. I lost fifteen pounds in weight. My breath was foul and I knew I was repulsive to the girl I loved. I could not urge her to marry me when I was in that condition. I tried ... of ordinary American medicines but none of them seemed to do me any good.

"Your representative explained to me how World's Tonic is made from plants and herbs grown in their natural state, and brought from different parts of the world. That is why it is especially beneficial to Europeans like myself as well as Americans. On this account I decided to try it. The first bottle brought me results which were truly surprising. My system was toned up and thoroughly cleansed. Gradually the catarrh poison healed. After about three weeks of using World's Tonic the hawking and spitting left me. My breath became clean and I realized I was free from catarrh. After that I gained in weight and strength. Three months after I had that first talk with the World's Medicine representative, we had a happy wedding. Catarrh has never troubled me since. We have a fine house with a big strong baby boy in the cradle. I owe it all to World's Tonic."

World's Tonic is on sale at Dunn's, Mey's & Liggetts, Mayflower, and other modern drug stores. (A-72)

Plane Burns, Fliers Rescued From Sea

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 5 —(AP)— Two men were rescued 15 miles off Cape Florida yesterday after they had escaped from their burning airplane.

The men were Alonzo Green and John E. Pinder, both of Miami. They were rescued by the yacht Mary Susan II, bound for New York. The men were picked from the sea while they swam about after the burning airplane had sunk. They attributed the blaze to engine trouble while trying to take off after being forced to descend on the water.

Girl Near Death In Auto Accident

CUMBERLAND, Md., Feb. 5.— Miss Gertrude Harris, 22, daughter of Dr. Edward Harris, physician, is reported near death at Allegany Hospital from injuries received when an automobile in which she was riding with William Dundee, 28, crashed into a pole. Dundee is in the same hospital with a cut in the neck.

Seven years ago Dundee's two sisters were members of a party of five drowned in Wills Creek when the automobile in which they were riding crashed through the Narrows Bridge railing.

Bride of Bowser Hurt in Collision

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Feb. 5.— Mrs. Sarah Bowser, bride of Charles W. Bowser of Dormont, Pittsburgh, assistant football coach at the University of Pittsburgh, was painfully injured in an automobile collision here. A car driven by her husband was struck by another machine and she received lacerations of the forehead and leg by flying glass. Mrs. Bowser was treated at Mercy Hospital.

Mr. Bowser resigned his coaching job at Pitt last week to become head football coach at Bowdoin College next fall.

Gas Fumes Fatal To Man Ill Week

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Feb. 5— Solomon Marks, 58, who had been in a coma for a week at the Youngstown hospital, died from effects of gas fumes. He was found unconscious sitting in his room with a gas jet turned on. He came to Youngstown 22 years ago from Franklin, Pa.

Water Line Breaks Under Slag Dump

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 5 —A large force of workmen will be needed to repair 1,000 feet of piping as a result of the breaking of a 14-inch water main of the Westmoreland Water Company at Haydenville, near here. As a result of the break, which occurred 40 feet beneath a slate dump, consumers were without water for several hours.

NO EXTRA COST

GASOLINE

MADE BETTER

THAT GOOD GULF GASOLINE is now Anti-Knock quality —400° F. end point — at no extra cost. This Anti-Knock quality stops the knocks in the new high compression motors and greatly improves motor efficiency.

The 400° F. End Point gives instant and complete vaporization to the last drop — many motorists may not know what 400° F. End Point means but every motorist can tell the difference in his car between the new Good Gulf Gasoline and the ordinary gasoline with 437° F. End Point.

Ordinary motor gasoline may be loaded with Anti-Knock Chemicals, but the heavy non-burning ends remains to retard engine performance . . .

This combination of high anti-knock properties and volatility (the 400° F. End Point) makes the new Good Gulf Gasoline the equal of many premium gasolines and far superior to all non-premium fuels. There is but one better gas—GULF NO-NOX MOTOR FUEL AVIATION GRADE (374° F. End Point.)

Remember there is no extra cost for this new Good Gulf Gasoline.

PITTSBURGH UPHELD AS HOCKEY TOWN

REFERENCE to Pittsburgh as a poor hockey town by one of the club operators in the major ice league gets a rise out of Frankie Frederickson, manager of the local team.

Frankie Frederickson

"It is not a poor hockey town, nor a poor sporting town in any respect," declared the Buccaneer leader. "I have been here long enough as a player and manager to learn that it is one of the best cities on the map. Give the fans of Pittsburgh and vicinity a spacious rink such as other places boast and they'll turn out for hockey games in numbers that will compare very favorably with the attendance anywhere else in the major circuit.

"And while I am on this subject I want to say that the transfer of our games during the closing part of the season is not to be construed as a reflection on the attitude of our home patrons. They have always been fair, loyal and true to us, and have given us splendid treatment at all times. I want them to know that we appreciate it. The transfers were made merely for business reasons, to salvage as much as possible at the tail end of an unfortunate season."

FREDERICKSON says the report that Buffalo may get the local franchise next year is not likely to prove well-founded. "As a matter of fact there is no certainty that we'll move at all," he added. "If the owners could only see a little daylight ahead, a promise of a beter rink, there would be no thought of a shift. Even if they could be assured of the Town Hall's being completed by the winter after next they'd take a chance and stick through another lean season to wait for it.

"Under the right conditions, hockey's future here would be as bright as it is anywhere else, and in my opinion that means the most roseate future that can be seen for any sport in existence. Hockey is gradually taking the play away from basketball in some sections. I believe that in 10 years it will be almost world wide in its scope, spreading through England, France, Germany, Sweden and Norway and possibly into Australia. No one need worry about hockey's future. The game is only beginning to grow."

THE big sports dinner to be given in Pirate Hall, William Penn Hotel, tomorrow night by the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, probably will be the means of bringing Pitcher Burleigh Grimes and the Pirate management together for a contract conference.

Burleigh is to be one of the speakers at the banquet, and will bring as his guests from Minerva, O., a party of five friends, including Hap Myers, former National League outfield star, who was among Grimes' teammates on the Brooklyn club.

Burleigh Grimes

IN all probability the spitball ace will take advantage of his presence in the city to have a talk with Vice President Sam Dreyfuss and Manager Ens, of the Pirates, who also will be among the speakers at the dinner. A conference was to have been held here before President Barney Dreyfuss left for Florida but Grimes was unable to come to Pittsburgh at the time. If the pitcher and the management do not get together tomorrow night, Burleigh may remain over for a confab on Friday.

THE National League schedule as made public today, following the American League slate published yesterday, gives the pleasing assurance that the world series next fall will be played in baseball weather and not under conditions better suited to football. Also the title games will not interfere with the gridiron season to as great an extent as in the past.

As the schedules show, the season in the two major leagues, with the starting time moved forward to April 15, will close on Sunday, September 28. This will make it possible to open the world series on Tuesday, September 30, or on Wednesday, October 1, at the latest, indicating that it will be concluded before the date on which it was only getting under way last fall. If it is begun on September 30, it will be the earliest series opening on record except that following the curtailed season of 1918, when the first game was played on September 5.

PITTSBURGH fans have every reason for feeling satisfied with the manner in which the schedule makers treated the Pirates. The Bucs, as usual, because of having no Sunday games at home, are given more Saturday events on their own grounds than any other club, getting 15 of these, in addition to all three holiday numbers.

The program will also afford the Corsairs a good chance to establish themselves in the pennant running early by getting away to a good start, as they will be privileged to play at home in 29 of their first 44 games.

JACK (KID) BERG holds the distinction of being the only foreign fighter in the lighter classes who drew a capacity house at Madison Square Garden, New York, this season. The Garden reports nine sell-outs since it opened the indoor season on October 11, and one of them came on the occasion of Berg's bout with Tony Canzoneri on January 17, the receipts totaling $84,000. Al Singer led them all as a drawing card, as no fewer than four of the nine sell-outs were registered at shows in which he was a main-bout principal. He drew $94,680 with Abad, the largest gate of the Garden season, $66,360 with Zazarino, $51,000 with Loayza, and $50,000 with Nebo. McLarnin and Goldstein drew $87,750, Scott and Von Porat $85,560, Carnera and Peterson $60,000, and Paulino and Von Porat $47,000.

Jack Berg

RUMORS of a shake-up in the National League's staff of umpires for the approaching season were confirmed by the announcement from yesterday's meeting of the magnates in New York that Bob Hart, Barry McCormick and Pete McLaughlin, old regulars on the corps, had been dropped.

Ted McGrew, of the American Association, Robert Clarke, of the International League, and Mike Donohue, of the Texas League, have been appointed to take their place. The step ought to help. Some changes have been needed for a long time, both to replace the weaker members of the staff and as a warning to arouse a few of the others.

STIFF DEFENSE OF SENATORS STOPS LOCALS

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Rookie Night was observed at Duquesne Garden last evening as the Pirate icemen bowed in 5-1 defeat to the Ottawa Senators and saw their winning streak of one consecutive game broken in several places.

Twenty-one-year-old Wallie Kilrea, who spent last season helping the Philadelphia Company sextet to win the local amateur title, participated in the scoring of four of Ottawa's goals, and Bud Jarvis and Cliff Barton, youngsters who helped the Port Arthur team to win the 1928-29 Canadian amateur championship, teamed up to register the tally that saved Pittsburgh from a shutout.

Kid Wallie, who made his debut as a pro here several weeks ago, but whose activities on that occasion were limited to the wearing of a uniform and warming the Ottawa bench, made his local supporters somewhat uncomfortable after some 10 minutes of play in the first period when he came in fast to bat Bill Touhey's rebound past Goalie Miller for the first Ottawa score.

WALLIE KILREA STARS

The youngster's work was fully appreciated, no doubt, but local fans evidently thought that his manner of greeting old friends was hardly in good taste, for they gave him the "chill" rather than a cheer.

When the second stanza was 10 minutes old, Wallie repeated his act, taking a pass from Joe Lamb and again rustling the mesh in the rear of the Corsair cage. Eight minutes later, he showed his appreciation of Lamb's big-heartedness by feeding Joe a pass which enabled the latter to score.

By this time local fandom was beginning to warm up to its "prodigal son." Wallie's second successful scoring effort got him about three cheers, two of which were from his mates, and his third won him some applause which might have been regarded as loud had it not been that the caustic comment tossed at the Pirate defense men was much louder.

GETS BIG OVATION

After three minutes of play in the last period, Wallie, not at all satisfied with the reception accorded him, topped off a great performance by scoring an unassisted goal. And then, because the situation was entirely out of control insofar as the Bucs were concerned, the local fans thawed out and gave Kilrea the big ovation that he deserved.

Bill Touhey was the only invader who succeeded in stealing the spotlight from Hero Wallie even for a moment. He beat Miller with a tricky, shoulder-high shot early in the second period after sifting through the Pirate defense without assistance.

N. L. TO OPEN ON APRIL 15

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Although the draft of dates shows some entirely new departures, the National League schedule for 1930, given out for publication today, runs true to tradition in allotting to the Pirates the biggest number of Saturday engagements.

As previously announced the major leagues will close their seasons one week earlier than last year. The races will begin one day ahead of the starting date of the last campaign. The season will start April 15 and will close September 28. The Senators and Red Sox will open in Washington one day in advance in honor of President Hoover.

REDS FIRST FOR BUCS

Pirate followers will be interested in the early phases of the Buccaneer schedule. The Freebooters will jump off in Cincin-

YESTERDAY'S EXPLANATION: THE REMARKABLE CASE OF PHINEAS P. GAGE—This strange case is a noted one in the annals of medical science. While young Gage was working as a laborer on a railroad, he accidentally tapped a stick of dynamite with a crow bar, which was blown completely through his head, entering under one cheek and coming out almost squarely at the top of his skull. He did not lose consciousness and was not knocked down, but walked three miles to a farm house and up several flights of stairs without aid. He recovered quickly and died a natural death 13 years later. The skull and crowbar, together with full information about the incident, are on exhibition at the Harvard Medical Museum, Cambridge.

REDS OBTAIN M'WEENY IN SWAP

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Adolph Luque, veteran pitcher of the Cincinnati Reds, was today traded to the Brooklyn Club for Douglas McWeeny, a big right handed pitcher. There was no cash involved in the transaction, the Brooklyn Club announced.

Neither Luque nor McWeeny had an impressive record last year. Luque, the only Cuban player in the major leagues, won five and lost 16 games, while compiling a record of 2.38 runs per nine inning game, while McWeeny won four and lost 10 with an earned run record of 2.86.

Luque has been with the Reds since 118, when his contract was purchased from Louisville. He is 39 years old.

McWeeny pitched good ball for Brooklyn in 1928, geeting an even break with 14 games won and the same number lost. He is 31 years old.

TILDEN LOSES NET MATCH

CANNES, France, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Big Bill Tilden, American tennis champion, was beaten today by E. J. Peters, sixth ranking British player, in one of the biggest upsets ever witnessed on the Riviera. The match was decided in straights sets at 9-7, 8-6.

Tilden attributed his downfall to overconfidence and failure to keep his mind on the game.

"If I played negligently," he remarked, "it was because my mind was on bridge."

He seemed not greatly perturbed over his defeat.

Hunter Is Pressed In National Event

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The national indoor tennis championship came close to losing its outstanding favorite and drawing card yesterday as Frank Hunter, America's second ranking star, was pressed by Frank Bonneau, a comparatively obscure New York southpaw. Hunter finally won by scores of 6-4, 3-6, 1-5, to reach the quarter final round.

Hunter's next opponent will be Eugene McCauliff, lanky ex-Fordham stylist, who reached the quarter finals ahead of the field. Julius Seligson, of Lehigh, former intercollegiate champion, defeated Kenneth Appel, of South Orange, N. J., 6-0, 9-7. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, who is looked upon as Hunter's chief rival, polished off Ed Burns, New York, 6-4, 6-4.

Wallis Is Thrown From Horse, Injured

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Mitchell Wallis, noted horseman of Racine, Wis., received severe injuries about the face and head yesterday when he was thrown from a horse.

Wallis' mount refused to take a hurdle and the rider was thrown against a tree. He suffered a broken jaw bone, a broken cheek bone, lacerations about the face and injury to one ear. The Wisconsin sportsman came here to spend the winter.

MACK STOPS SANGOR

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Eddie Mack, Detroit welterweight, and Joe Sangor, of Milwaukee, bid the long list of knockout victims here last night when the latter's seconds threw in a towel in the 6th round of their scheduled 10 round match. Sangor was on the floor when the towel was tossed in.

MANY NOTABLES TO ATTEND BIG SPORTS FETE

Attorney Joseph N. Mackrell toastmaster for the sports writers' dinner tomorrow night, looked at a most impressive lineup today and decided to warm up a bit more. So Joe will go to the bull-pen again to get an edge for the big doings to be staged in Pirate Hall of the William Penn Hotel.

The toastmaster night has a great array of talent those to respond to toasts representing many sports and professions. Men of the clergy, Mayor Kline, lawyers, educators, baseball chieftains, diamond performers, football coaches, grid stars and men of other walks will sit on the dais from which they will be introduced by the toastmaster. And Joe is apt to present a score or more of others whose faces will not be at the speakers' table.

GRIMES TO ATTEND

Burleigh Grimes, star pitcher of the Pirates, gave the dinner plans added zip last night when he wired the committee from Minerva. Grimes not only expects to be among those present, he has asked for reservations for five of his Ohio buddies and they have been taken care of, so that Burleigh's crew seem to be in for a good time.

Grimes, by the way, will be one of the speakers, and Burleigh knows how to put his stuff across. All of the talks will be short, but there will be a lot of them and those in attendance are sure to be satisfied with what they heard and seen.

Dr. C. B. Quailey, the Oakland Alderman, and former Pitt halfback, will be on hand again with another full table of friends. This well-known sports booster will be surrounded by Tom Coyne, Joe Harris, Ed. Flaherty, Tom Flaherty, L. H. Rutherford, Johnny Ridge, Peter Lehany, Regis Lehany and John A. Freyvogel.

BUTLER FANS SET

Butler sports will be in a gay night. Bill Faust, a Butler newspaperman, will be in town with enough friends to fill a couple of tables.

John L. Hernon, general chairman, who is in charge of reservations, announced today that he would establish headquarters at Room 306, William Penn Hotel, tomorrow at 9 o'clock a. m. in order to take care of any sport lovers who wish to attend the feast. Reservations also can be made up to the hour of dining by appearing at the Pirate Hall.

World Ice Skating Crowns at Stake

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Titles in all three divisions will be awarded tonight as the world figure skating championships are held at Madison Square Garden.

In addition to free-skating in the men's and women's singles, winding up competition in those divisions, the mixed pairs' title also will be decided.

Ruth Offered A Job in Boys' Camp

With that thought in mind, A. J. Mirski, operator of a boys' camp at Tunis Lake, said today he would pay Babe Ruth $1,000 a month for two months to act as coach in baseball at the camp.

"Ruth wants $85,000 for a summer's work with the New York Yankees, but," said Mirski, "he might consider my offer, being as how the Yankees' owners haven't said anything about meeting his demand."

TRI-STATE LOOP FLOOR RACE TIGHTENS

By JESS CARVER

The rejuvenation of Ken Delehunty, who starred for three years as a forward at Westminster and then started off the present campaign by not being able to get the ball through the hoop with the aid of a ladder, has boosted the championship stock of the Titans to such a peak that the rest of the Tri-State Conference is all but ready to give up the ghost.

Ken Delahunty

Delahunty signalized his return to form by throwing five baskets against Bethany Monday night. Not only was he dropping 'em with devastating regularity but his floor game, passing and cutting, was of high order.

Westminster, with Delahunty in the lineup and Rice, O'Donovan and Crowell functioning as they do, is as powerful a team as there is in the district, and with its attack speeded up a trifle, capable of giving even Pitt a serious ball game.

RACE DRAWS CLOSER

The Conference race tightened further last night as Duquesne nosed out Geneva at Beaver Falls, Bethany came back and beat Thiel, and now, with the Bisons, Dukes and Covenanters practically neck and neck, and close to the flying heels of Westminster that any little mishap or break in the stride of the Titans, and they'll slip from the top Geneva, by taking Westminster tomorrow night, can grab off the lead for the time being.

West Virginia continues its Eastern trip, which has been none too successful so far, by taking on the Army at West Point tonight. Waynesburg is in Meadville for a contest with Allegheny. Wash-Jeff opens a three-game jaunt through the eastern section of the state by playing Bucknell at Lewisburg, and Marshall and Fairmont complete the evening's card with a setto at Fairmont.

BOWEN RUNS TONIGHT

Pete Bowens opens his well-filled indoor running campaign tonight in Newark, competing over the 500-yard distance in the Newark A. C. games. He will don the spikes again Saturday in New York, when he will participate in the famous "Millrose 600," feature event of the annual Millrose A. A. carnival.

In tonight's race, Pete will have for an opponent Ray Barbuti, star of the United States Olympic team, who is to make his debut as a board track sprinter.

DUKES TRIP GENEVA

Chick Davies' Dukes pulled out in the last five minutes of a thrilling battle at Beaver Falls last night to set down Geneva's passers, 26 to 23, tossing another surprise package into the muddled Conference race.

Joe Vernon, sub center, and Ganzy Benedict, ailing captain of the Bluffite forces, shouldered the task of bringing the Red and Blue colors through to triumph after a gallant stand by the Davies machine against seemingly insurmountable odds and left the visitors apparently out of the race.

Trailing by three points with the final half slowly edging past the midway mark, the Dukes had overcome this lead when Snabs Parry hooked in a beautiful basket on a fast rush down court and then negotiated both ends of a multiple foul committed on the same play. Manning, a sub forward for the Covenanters, deliberately and foolishly pushed the Homestead lad as he let the sphere fly for the hoop and the resultant shots gave the Dukes a 30-19 lead.

Striving desperately to bridge that one point gap Coach Ken Loeffler's proteges forgot their defense in a wild sortie for the opposition's basket.

First Benedict and then Vernon twice sifted through, rushing the leather up to the backboard and shoving in the points which assured victory.

Manning heaved one sensationally over his head and Montgomery clipped in a clean shot from near the foul line in the tying thrust of the Geneva troupe only to have the final gun give the verdict by a three-point margin to the Buffites.

The lineup:

Duquesne—26		Geneva—23
Benedict (C)	F	Montgomery
Lubic	F	Hacket
McGregor	C	Ransom
Stephens	G	(C) Friedman
Parry	G	Martin

Score by periods:

Duquesne	13	13	26
Geneva	12	11	23

Substitutions—Duquesne, Vernon for McGregor; Geneva, Fair for Martin. Manning for Hacket.

Field goals—Duquesne, Benedict 3, Lubic, Stephens, Parry 2, Vernon 3; Geneva, Montgomery 3, Hacket, Ransom, Manning, Team fouls—Duquesne, 8 out of 8; Geneva 7 out of 11.

By JULIUS LEVIN

The Goldensons will make an attempt to get back in the running for the second half championship of the Allegheny County League tonight when they entertain the Duquesne Lafayettes, defending titleholders, in the only league fray on the schedule.

The Duquesne Lafayettes are operating without the services of their veteran coach, Ed. Minnick, who is seriously ill in the McKeesport Hospital. The Lafayettes, winners of the first-round title, are eager to retain their laurels without the trouble of playing a post-season series. To accomplish this they must capture the second-round title.

VERONAS IN FRONT

The champions face stiff opposition in the J. J. Veronas, who have shown in their games so far that they have one of the best clubs in the tristate district. The Veronas have a lineup composed of veteran basketball players and are going to prove a tough quintet to defeat this winter.

Both the Goldensons and Lafayettes are determined to win tonight and fans across the river are anticipating a tough battle from start to finish. Another defeat for the Goldensons will all but ruin their chances of winning the right to meet the Lafayettes in the championship playoffs.

Minnick's club took a one-sided victory from the Allentown passers last night when the Duquesne Lafayettes won, 42 to 22. In a second County League contest, the Veronas tripped Charleroi's Lions, 24 to 15.

KNICKERS TRIUMPH

The Knickerbockers downed Y. M. H. A., 29 to 23, in the West Penn circuit, and Potter Title and Trust defeated Pressed Steel, 40 to 29, in the C. & I. circuit. The Baptists won from the Methodists, 36 to 25, in the Crafton Church League. The lineups:

Lafayette—40		Allentown—22

BAKER, TRIPPE SWEAR OFF EACH OTHER

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

"I don't want any more of that guy!"—Words and music by Sergt. Sammy Baker and Joe Trippe.

The two doughty welterweights who put up their second great scrap at Motor Square Garden last Monday night chorused the above few choice words as they were paid off following the grueling battle.

Bobby Young

If they never meet again in a business way it will be too soon for both.

Paraphrasing the immortal words of Stanley Ketchel and Billy Papke, when they were in their prime, the sentiment of both Baker and Trippe is that they would be a couple of foolish fellows to continue fighting each other.

TOUGH ON EACH OTHER

"All we do is murder each other—and it's not doing either one of us any good," was their joint comment.

"I don't see how a fellow like that Trippe gives me such a tough fight," the veteran Baker declared. "However, he does, and that's that. I've beaten him twice now and that's enough. I'm through with him."

Then up spoke Vince Plunkett, manager of Trippe, to say:

"Trippe thinks he won both fights, and there are a lot of fans who will agree with him, but Baker got both decisions. What's the use of continuing the war any farther? They're both too tough against each other."

The Garden management concurred in the sentiment of the boxers and their managers and will split up the combination. When boxing is resumed at the Garden in the middle of March following the shutdown for the food and airplane shows after next Monday night's Jackie Rodgers-Benny Schwartz card, both Trippe and Baker will be brought back, but against different opponents. Each has established himself as a card here.

Trippe conceded weight to Baker in each of their bouts. He scaled 142 pounds on Monday against 146½ for Baker at 3 p. m., and Baker probably was heavier at ringtime. Trippe can come in at the junior-lightweight limit of 140 pounds and he will be matched against foes in that class when he returns here.

SHOW GROSSES $7,000

Monday night's show grossed a little less than $7,000 at the popular prices of $1, $2 and $3 and under the new seating arrangements. There were aproximately 1800 general admisions at $1. Under the old setup of seats, with only 700 available at $1, it is estimated the gate would have gone more than $12,000. Baker dragged down 30 per cent and Trippe 20 per cent, minus the State tax.

There were more people in the Garden for the show Monday night than at any time since the Jack Zivic-Lew Tendler fight five years ago, when, with ringside seats selling at $5, the show grossed more than $15,000.

Bobby Young, of Duquesne, who handed Ken Hargraves that bad lacing in the eight-round semi-final, returned last night to Detroit, where he has been making his home and fighting headquarters for the last two years, but he will be back to box Battling Gizzy, his original opponent at the Garden, either in the same arena or elsewhere in a main bout shortly. Bobby is an orphan and contributes to the support of two younger sisters and a younger brother in Duquesne. He works in the Ford plant at Detroit, in addition to boxing. His knockout punch in either fist against Hargraves came as a pleasant surprise to the fans and he will be welcomed back—but not by Hargraves.

Between Rounds

Promoter Francis Fiore has completed his card for the Moose Temple Friday night with the signing of Joe Fink, of McKees Rocks, to box Danny Russell, of Braddock, in the semi-final. He has Tiger Joe Randall and Larry Madge in the main bout, Georgie Chambers and Billy Flanagan in the second bout and Paul Balint and Johnny Montabano in the opener.

Frankie Stevens, of Syracuse, has been signed as the opponent of Paul Firpone, of Cleveland, in the window bout at Erie Friday night. Jackie Murray, of the Hill, will meet Joey Coffman, of Buffalo, in another 10-rounder.

Vincent Hambright and Bobby LaSalle box at Cincinnati tonight. Tommy O'Brien and Kaye Brown meet at Springfield, Ill., and Sammy Martin and Henry Falgiano at Sioux City, Ia. Matty Mario and Battling

FIGHT RESULTS

Doctor clash at San Francisco.

Joe Sekyra and Charley Beranger, heavies, box the windup at the Arena, in Philadelphia, next Monday night. Young Jack Thompson and Paulie Walker meet in the semi-final.

Tommy Loughran is training in Philadelphia for his bout with Fortie Charles on the Shaffery Shott card at Miami, Fla., February 27.

Mickey Somers, New Castle 130-135-pounder, still is laid up with forearm's and will not be able to box for a couple of weeks, according to his manager, Eddie Weygand. The illness forced Mickey to withdraw from a match with Gene Moretti at McKeesport last week.

PRIMO CARNERA CLEARED

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Primo Carnera, the huge muscle man from Italy, was just a big bogey man and not a conspirator.

This was the consensus of the Illinois State Athletic Commission yesterday after it had finished an investigation of Carnera's 47-second knockout of Elzear Rioux, the French-Canadian woodsman from Montreal, in the Chicago Stadium punch bowl last Friday night. Rioux, the commission decided, was scared into a half faint at first sight of the tremendous bulk of the Italian giant and did not deliberately take a "dive."

Because of Rioux's unsatisfactory showing, however, he was fined $1,000 and suspended indefinitely.

ROBINSON RELIEVED AS BROOKLYN PREXY

FORMER CHIEF TO REMAIN AS PILOT

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—As a result of a settlement reached yesterday after three hours' discussion by the National League, the Brooklyn club has a new president and keeps its old manager. Frank B. York was named as president for a term of two years and Wilbert Robinson, for 15 years manager of the team was re-engaged in that capacity under a two-year contract.

For three years Robinson has been president, manager and a member of the board of directors. He resigned as president and as director, York immediately assuming the presidency. The director to take Robinson's place will be named by Joseph A. Gilleaudeau, secretary and a member of the present board of directors, who represents the heirs of the late Charles H. Ebbets.

YORK IS ATTORNEY

York, the new president, is attorney for S. W. McKeever, vice president and treasurer, who has been opposed to the retention of Robinson as manager. A vacancy on the board of directors which has remained unfilled on account of the failure of the two factions to agree will be filled by a man to be named by John A. Heydler, president of the National League.

"It's all right," was Robinson's comment after the announcement of the settlement. Representatives of both warring baseball factions seemed relieved when an agreement had been reached.

For hours the presidents of the other clubs talked behind closed doors, all representatives of Brooklyn having retired to enable the league to discuss the matter and find an answer. The other club owners stipulated before they undertook the problem that their finding must be binding on McKeever and York on one side and Gilleaudeau and Robinson on the other. When the Brooklyn Club Roster was published, no manager's name was listed.

DREYFUSS RE-ELECTED

Manager Robinson returned to his plantation at Dover Hall, Ga., going to Clearwater, Fla., later for the opening of the spring training season, February 23.

The Brooklyn peace agreement was the principal business of the meeting. The approval of the schedule was only a formality and Barney Dreyfuss was re-elected vice president without opposition.

OTTAWA TOPS BUCS, 5-1

after five minutes of the last period had elapsed. Jarvis carried the puck up center ice and, planning to capture his own rebound, he slammed the puck against the boards near the cage as he reached the Senators' defense. Barton, skating up the right lane, snared the disc when Goalie Connell, in clearing, pushed it into his territory. A quick pass to Bud enabled the latter to shoot from directly in front of the invaders' net, and Connell had no chance to save.

LOCALS OUTCLASSED

Play was fairly even in the first stanza, but the local skaters were completely outclassed in the second 20-minute session. Their efforts were so feeble that the crowd handed out some raspberries, and Manager Frank Frederickson handed out some torrid oratory in the dressing room.

Hib Milks was moved to center and Gordon Fraser to defense in the final canto and with Milks, Herb Drury and Jarvis playing leading roles, the locals finished in good fashion.

The visitors' defense was exceptionally strong, and nine out of every 10 Pirate thrusts were broken up before they reached the last blue line. King Clancy and Alex Smith were towers of strength in the Ottawa backfield, and their forwards gave them great support. The lineup:

Pittsburgh—1.		Ottawa—5.
Miller	G	Connell
Blackmun	D	A. Smith
Milks	D	Clancy
Fraser	C	Lamb
Darragh	L. W.	H. Kitrea
Lowrey	R. W.	Burton

Scores—Pirates, Smith, Drury, White, Jarvis, Barton, Masters; Ottawa, Gagne, Cox, Tenney, Starr, W. Kitrea, shields and Connell.

Referees—Goodman and Dinsmore.

First period—W. Kitrea (from Starr), 9:16. Penalties—Lamb and MacKinnon.

Second period—Tenney, 7:00; W. Kitrea (from Lamb), 10:42; Lamb (from W. Kitrea), 18:02. Penalty—Smith.

ANOTHER FIS' BATTLE

BOSTON, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The Boston Bruins took a wild and furious hockey game from the Detroit Cougars by a 3-to-1 score here last night, and then entertained 12,000 excited spectators with one of the most thrilling fist battles ever staged in the National League.

The players were quitting the ice when Eddie Shore, burly Boston defense player, and aggressive Rusty Hughes, of the Cougars, exchanged right-handed swings. After the referee separated them, Shore aimed several blows at Goodfellow, a Detroit forward. When Referee George Maillnsor interfered the Boston player punched at him.

TORONTO BEATEN, 3-1.

MONTREAL, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Les Canadiens of Montreal gained two points last night in their race with Montreal's Maroons for the top of the International group of the National Hockey League by defeating Toronto, 3 to 1.

AMERICANS WIN, 3-1

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—For the second time in two years, the New York Americans ended their season's National Hockey League rivalry with the New York Rangers on even terms, taking the final game last night by 5 to 3. It gave the teams two victories apiece for the year.

St. Louis finished second that year, winning 78 and losing 58 games, for a percentage of .574. The club hit for .264 and fielded .949.

Bobby Wallace, one of the greatest of the oldtime players, was at shortstop for St. Louis in its first game. Jesse Burkett and Bill Bradley, two of the great hitters of their time, also were in the lineup.

and tribute to the local magnate, and the league kept up its progressive work by settling the controversy on the Brooklyn club through a compromise that allows Wilbert Robinson to remain as manager for two years at least and elevates Frank B. York, a capable man, to the presidency.

When League President Heydler appoints a fifth member of the Robin directorate he will end a deadlock that has been keeping the Brooklyn club weak and hurting the entire league. Uncle Robbie will now be able to give his undivided attention to the playing interests of the team, and with the right kind of support and backing, which he was denied during the controversy, he may be depended upon to bring about a great improvement in Dodger conditions.

Wilbert Robinson

IN RULING that there was no frame-up, finding that Elsear Rioux merely was scared into a half faint by Primo Carnera's great size, and fining Rioux $1,000, with an indefinite suspension, for his diving act, the Illinois Boxing Commission has only helped to give the Italian giant some further advertising. There'll be a greater rush than ever now on the part of gullible fans to see the bogey man who is so big that he frightens opponents into submission without hitting them. Newark, N. J., gets the next circus tomorrow night. And still no protection or reimbursement for those who should be given first consideration—the patrons. The thousands who paid to see a real fight when Carnera and Rioux met received nothing for their money, the same costly experience they have when a boxer ends a bout in an early round by losing on a foul. The only reimbursement they get now is the fining of Rioux, which does not return their money to their pockets.

MRS. HARRIS AIDS JOE'S COMEBACK

By JOHN COWAN
Staff Correspondent

FRANKLIN, Pa., Feb. 5.—Up here in Venango, where baseball fans are as numerous as the ice cakes in the Allegheny and their vision is as clear as the limpid waters of French creek, they are crowing just now about the marvelous comeback of Joe Harris. Six months ago, when the surgeons over in Oil City were whetting their scapels for a major operation on the popular first baseman, known in every big league town, there was some doubt as to whether Joe ever again would get nearer the diamond than the bench. By some it was feared that he would take up a golden harp and lay aside forever his bat and glove.

But one there was who had a different vision. Mrs. Joe, who is one of the most attractive homemakers in Franklin, declared that all the old player needed was a rest at home, a little sunshine and the call of the umpire. Mrs. Joe brought him back from the Oil City Hospital, nursed him along for six weeks, read him the news, recalled his past victories and today is proud of her work.

The sunshine has come. Joe is preparing to leave for Florida and the Franklin fans are waiting for the announcement that soon again Joe Harris will be back in training.

St. Goddard Keeps Dog Derby Lead

OTTAWA, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The third and final 33 1-3-mile lap of the first annual Ottawa International Dog Derby today found Emile St. Goddard, of The Pas, Man., a heavy favorite to capture first prize money of $1,000 and possession of the Chateau Laurier Challenge Cup.

St. Goddard, winning both of the first two laps, had an advantage of 20 minutes 25 second over Earl Brydges, of Cranberry Portage, Man. St. Goddard has covered the first 66 2-3 miles of the 100-mile race in total elapsed time of 5 hours 17 minutes 20 seconds.

Sport Vignettes

"Well, well, well! Haven't seen you for years. How ya been?" . . . That was a familiar greeting at the local baseball writers' banquet at the William Penn Hotel last year, and it will be repeated at this year's feed tomorrow night . . . It's the one big annual get-together gathering of the sportsmen of the past and present generations, and if it did not serve any other purpose this one would be sufficient . . . Grafton Duvall reports one of the most interesting studies he has noted recently was Honus Wagner drinking in Fritz Leiber in "Richard III" at the Alvin Monday night . . . A tough baby, this guy Primo Carnera, the traveling box car . . . Max Schmeling reports he saw little Franz Diener knock him out with one punch in the stomach in the first round of their first bout in Europe, last April . . . Primo claimed a foul. Recently he couldn't stop Diener in a return bout of 10 rounds in London . . . Did you ever stop to wonder what makes an athlete great under fire? . . . Take the case of Howard Harpster, for instance. He was a quarterback in a million. They called him the quarterback with the mind of a coach . . . Never made a mistake on the gridiron and always had the opposition up in the air by pulling the unexpected . . . How did he do it? I asked him one day . . . He said he worked out all of his stuff in advance . . . He'd sit and ponder over situations and figure out what to do under given circumstances . . . Back in position for a punt and a bad pass from center goes over his head . . . Should he fall on the ball or try to recover it and run with it? . . . Critical situation in or near the end zone . . . What to do and how to do it with a drive halted and the going tough . . . He did his thinking before he went on the field and didn't have to stop when the situation presented itself . . . Seemed as if he did the right thing instinctively . . . But behind it was a wealth of thought . . . There's a lesson for athletes in all lines . . . Don't be afraid to use that thing that adorns your neck . . . It's not there to be employed merely as a hat rack . . . Often the difference between a champion and the nearest contender is only that between the fellow who uses his head as well as his brawn and one who gets by on brawn alone . . . James (Red) Mason's new fighter, formerly Louie Sposita, is being billed as Al Capone, NOT of Chicago.—HARRY KECK.

GROVERS BEAT WAYNESBURG

GROVE COITY, Pa., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Grove City, largely through the fine work of Raplenovic, a substitute, came from behind in the second half to defeat Waynesburg, 46 to 34, last night. Waynesburg led at the half, 21 to 18. The lineup:

Grove City—46.		Waynesburg—34.
Fegley	F	Avery
McCahan	F	O'Connell
Reeves	C	Smith
Slavodinsky	G	Utena
Ryan	G	White

Grove City scoring: Field goals—Raplenovic (sub for Reeves), 5; Fegley 4, Slavodinsky 4, Reeves 3, Burns (sub for McCann) 2, McCann. Free throws—Fegley 4, Raplenovic 2, McCahn, Reeves. Waynesburg scoring: Field goals—Avery 5, Smith 2, Patch (sub for O'Connell) 2, O'Connell, Utena, White. Free throws—Avery 2, Utena 2.

BETHANY TOPS THIEL 43-42

GREENVILLE, Pa., Feb. 5.—A field goal, which swished the net in the last five seconds of play by Rush, gave Bethany a thrilling 43-to-42 victory over Thiel here last night.

The Bisons staged a game uphill battle to nose out their triumph and at the end of the first half were trailing on the short end of a 28-18 score. The lineup:

Bethany—43.		Thiel—42.
Baker	F	Morris
Rush	F	Wardle
Telfair	C	Frampton
Dannbroder	G	McCloy
Flading	G	Bell

Field goals—Baker 3, Rush 5, Telfair 5, Dannbroder 4, Flading, Morris 2, Wardle 5, Frampton 4, McCloy 5, Bell. Fouls—Bethany, 13 out of 20; Thiel, 8 out of 9. Referee—Dan Dragus.

MOUNTAINEERS SET DOWN BY TEMPLE, 35-29

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Temple University scored a 35-to-29 victory over the West Virginia Moutaineers in a fast, rough contest on the small Temple floor here last night.

Despite the fact that Glenn, West Virginia forward, was the outstanding man on the floor with 14 points to his credit, through five field goals and four fouls, the local cagers played a superior brand of the floor game. Godfrey and Bonner led the attack for the victors, the latter with six goals and the former with five baskets and two out of three fouls. The lineup:

Temple—35.		W. Virginia—29.
O'Brien	F	Devlin
Godfrey	F	Glenn
Bonner	C	Bartrug
Wearsking	G	Ratcliffe
Fitch	G	Plaster

Substitutions—Fox, Lepera, Field goals—O'Brien 2, Godfrey 2, Bonner 4, Fitzpatrick, Doyle 2, Glenn 5, Bartrug, Lepera 2. Fouls—Temple 7 out of 12; West Virginia 5 out of 10. Referee—Smith.

M'VEY BEATS THOMAS

SHIKAT TRIUMPHS

LEIBER AS SHYLOCK COMES INTO A NEW VENICE WITH RICH ROBES

By GEORGE SEIBEL

THAT rapacious loan shark of the Rialto, old Shylock, bewailed his daughter and his ducats at the Alvin Theater last night, as Fritz Leiber played "The Merchant of Venice" with more vigor and muscle than any actor since Richard Mansfield. It was Mansfield's idea that Shylock is no senile and doddering old man—that he had been portrayed as such mainly because of Henry Irving's physical limitations. Leiber agrees with Mansfield in this his Shylock could compete vocally with Cantor Rosenblatt and could carve his pound of flesh without the assistance of a surgeon.

George Seibel

Leiber's Shylock is consistent, dignified, impressive; he does not aim to be sympathetic, and does not mind seeming odious. In other words, it is a dramatic Shylock. George Arliss dispensed with the scales and did not sharpen his knife upon his sole, but Leiber adheres to the letter of the text and does not sacrifice one point.

Around this malignant and vengeful figure he has built a new Venice, for this is the Chicago production from the Civic Playhouse where Shakespeare has found an American Bayreuth.

It is a Venice rich in color and full of Byzantine and mosaic suggestions in its architecture. Without resorting to the ingenious tricks of the Arliss production here is a Venice that does not impede the progress of the action which moves swiftly along waits being few and short.

'telligent Emphasis

company, the best repercompany that has given Shakespeare here in a long time, reads the lines with intelligent emphasis, which is where most of the actors nowadays fall short.

On the other hand there is little spontaneity except on the part of Marie Carroll, who plays Jessica not as if she had learned her lines but as if they came to her. Miss Carroll's work was the best next to the stars—it had naturalness and charm.

Vera Allen was the Portia, and delivered the "quality of mercy" speech with adequate power—but it would gain greatly if she put into it some emotion calculated to move Shylock that being her purpose in delivering it.

Virginia Bronson as Jessica gave her role the required humorous flavor, and elicited the heartiest laugh of the evening by a bit of unexpected business in the last act.

That last act by the way, showed what can be done with Shakespearean comedy when the actors let themselves go. It becomes positively hilarious and rollicky.

Shakespeare is treated with too much reverence in modern productions. He would have preferred to see the actors find new meanings, rather than adhere to the moss-grown traditions that have come down from Betterton.

And Rich Costumes

Like the scenery, the costumes of this production are new and magnificent. The Venetian state must have collected taxes much more efficiently than Chicago, for its rich robes are the most opulent that any Shakespearean repertoire company has brought to Pittsburgh in a long time. Even Shylock could afford a gorgeous green velvet gabardine for the trial scene.

Somehow that colorful garment symbolized the whole production. Here is Shakespeare presented with a fresh spirit—intelligently presented, neither ultra-modern nor slavishly traditional—the poetry not garbled nor the text mutilated.

And in the midst of this production stands the man, Fritz Leiber, who has arisen to give us assurance that the great line of our tragic mimes, from Cooke and Forrest to Booth and McCullough, has not died out. All honor to his valiant fight.

ALVIN TO GET WAR PLAY MONDAY

Seats go on sale tomorrow morning at the Alvin box office for the engagement, commencing next Monday night, of the famous war play, "Journey's End." "Journey's End" shows a group of men, English soldiers in a front line dugout in France during the few days wherein they are waiting for a great German attack that they know will come and overwhelm them.

"The Vagabond King," musical play, returns to Pittsburgh for an engagement in the Nixon next week. Paul Keast will be seen in the leading role, that of Villon, the vagabond poet.

Radio mechanics are busy in the Pitt installing apparatus for the broadcasting from the stage next Monday night of excerpts from the play, "The Ghost Train." Manager George Sharp has the distinction of being the first manager to broadcast a play from any stage, the occasion being during his 29 weeks' run of "Abie's Irish Rose" in the Pitt back in 1923.

League to See Big Game Films

The presentation of motion pictures of Africa big game by Frederick B. Patterson will feature the meeting of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Izaak Walton League, which will be held Monday evening, February 10, in the Carnegie Music Hall, Oakland. Of chief interest in the films will be a reel showing 26 lions at play.

Money paid for rent is gone forever. Money invested in a home is money saved. The home of your dreams may be advertised today in the Classified Section.

Tries Movies

Bernice Claire, well known to the stage, has the leading feminine role in "No, No Nanette," which is coming to the Warner.

Walter Winchell On Broadway

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.

I DRAMATIZED our little love affair,
You were the star and I the leading man.
Our theater? Well, that was anywhere
We chanced to be—no place was under ban.

The critics who we thought were once our friends
Were caustic with their comments on our art;
Poor critics with their futile scratching pens,
I pitied them will all my actor's heart.

The play went on—a strong, romantic hit,
I posed and strutted as all actors do,
But I could see you hedging bit by bit—
It seemed your part did not appeal to you.

One night the stage went dark—the show was closed—

—Don Wahn.

THE NEW VERSION

WILLIAM BOLITHO, the distinguished essayist, has just discovered that Broadway's fascination lies in its heartlessness, which recalls this overheard criticism on a columnist. The rags had just reached Times Square and a difficult-to-please reader was perusing a Broadway column. "How is Joe Blank's comedy today?" he was asked.

"I don't know was the reply, "I'm only up to his ninth paragraph.

THE RETORT NIFTY

Pretty Peggy Joyce, now in the hospital, was recently offered the leading role in a poor musical. The producer, a fly-by-nighter, called at Peg's place and said: I am certain your beauty and acting could save my show, which needs someone like you. But before giving you the job you will have to promote $10,000 for me to produce the piece."

"Listen to me, sweetheart," cooed the Only Peggy. "I've lived too long to begin taking partners in my racket."

UNCOMMON SENSE

DAVE, the Blue Room man, whose all-night restaurant is most famous of them all in the Incandescent District, cashed a check for a small-time politician and the "orphan paper" bounced back. When the phoney came in the next week Dave buttonholed him and groaned: "That's a fine thing to do to a pal!"

"Gee," was the reply, "you don't think for a minute I'd let an enemy have that on me, do you?"

TORCH SONG

How easily a thing goes wrong...
A kiss too short or a sigh too long;
Then comes a mist and a blinding rain
And the world is never the same again.

—A. Non.

IMAGINE

THE American Society of Authors and Composers managed to beat the radio and other users of songs by having a bill passed at Washington to protect their material, but they are stumped these days when it comes to combating a new enemy—the "100 Songs for a Nickel" peddler. The radio chains, it appears, must now pay a heavy royalty for using ditties, as do theaters and restaurants, according to their seating capacity. These moneys are split among the composers and it is a sane arrangement, considering the numerous abuses experienced by the lads who write the nation's songs.

Recently, in Chicago, a well-known music publisher, weary of the street hawkers who pirated the lyrics of the better tunes and sold them for five cents, paid police to beat them unconscious, hoping the nightsticks would remedy the situation. Two days after the first attack two gorillas confronted the publisher in his office, and holding guns at his sides, said: "We have a piece of paper here which gives us permission to use any song of yours we like. Won't you please sign it?" The bulldozed and frightened publisher signed it immediately.

When an exec. of the New York society which protects songwriters decided to complain to the police about the new "100-Songs-for-a-Nickel" racket he received a letter which read: "If you don't want to see your wife and children tonight or any other night, then go right ahead and beef to the coppers. We dare you!"

There has been no complaint.

GOLLY!

YOU hear the most amazing things about the enforcement agents and how they shoot to kill, but they have other tricks. In a federal raid at a Park avenue classy speakeasy the agents banged their way in and one of them noticed an attractive looking debutante hide a bottle under her table and another put a bottle of Scotch under her dress, holding it between her knees.

The agent ankled over to her, flashed his shield and demanded the hooch. She refused to be bothered—so he lifted her new style long dress and took it from her while the onlookers roared!

NEWSPAPERMAN STUFF!

Among other Park Row tales is this one concerning James Gordon Bennett, founder of the Herald, now the Herald Tribune. It was, they say, his rule that the article "the" was never to be employed in classifying a man. Frixample: J. P. Morgan was not "the banker" but "a banker." Nathan Straus was not "the philanthropist," but "a philanthropist" and so on.

The proofroom, however, subservient to the stringent rule, chuckled heartily one day before they passed on a reporters' story, which started: "William McKinley, a President . . ."

SLANGUAGE

SOME of the locals have their own slanguage for stud poker. A pair of queens, for instance, are "the Dolly Sisters"... Three jacks are called "Hart, Schaffner and Marx"... A knave is "Harry Richman"... A pair of 5s are a pair of "fimps"... Deuces and treys are "cooties" and "bugs"... A full-house is "Texas Guinan's"... A four-flush is "A Broadway Boy"... A straight (open in the middle) is a split week" and a straight (open at both ends) is a burglar's chance, and four aces are "a rush of blood to the head."

Winter Garden Has Soprano, Contralto

Dorothy and Eva Mayfair appear this week in the Winter Garden Roof. Dorothy's contralto, blending with her sister, Eva's, soprano, is heard in a number of popular selections. Dewey Bergman, conductor of the orchestra, will offer a new song number written by two Pittsburghers soon.

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 5.

FRED NIBLO sponsors the grim inside news that "the only people who have permanent jobs in the movie are the guys who change the name plates on the doors," But even they should be on the perch. You can't keep spelling names accurately forever. . .

Fred Niblo

This boy Bert Wheeler . . . . He tells the one about the man wearing quite a large boutonniere. A fem friend sniffed at the flower: "My, that's nice."

"Sure is. That's poison ivy."

"What!" frightened. "You should be thrown in jail wearing such a flower."

Wedding, Picture Keeps Cecil Busy

THE week that Cecil DeMille starts his forthcoming operetta, "Madame Satan," promises to be a busy one. His daughter gets married the same week. Cecilia De Mille. To a young Los Angeles business man. Well, if DeMille insists on beginning his picture that week he should be busy and no sympathy in the paragraph.

Cecil DeMille

Jean Hersholt wrote to a Danish licorice kumpny and requested a licorice order be sent to him. To his astonishment, an enormous package eventually arrived from Denmark enclosed in which was one hundred dollars worth of licorice! Danish licorice is really choice. It comes in long lengths and heavily thick. One peels a shoe-string length and consumes it with relish. But Mr. Hersholt freely admitted a hundred dollars worth of licorice defeated his best efforts. . .

Orange Ranch and New Car for Dale

Dale Fuller is one of the wise flick-ites. During Miss Fuller's steady working days, she plunked the weekly ante into the W. K. bank and in time purchased an orange ranch of sundry acres. The ranch has proved grateful and Miss Fuller basks in the prospect of continued comfort. She was not among those to toss their last shirt into the panic-y tumble of the stock market, some months ago.

Hence, all things considered, Miss Fuller purchased a new car. She drove to a studio 'tother day and there met a grease paint friend.

"That's a swell car, Dale."

She reckoned as how it pleased her.

"Then talk it up to all your friends," he begged. "It's one of the General Motors group and heaven knows I need to see thousands of them sold!"

Add flicker epigrams and credit Phil Evans: "As true as a producer's word."

I don't know what the audience's reaction to James Whale's outloud version of "Journey's End" will be, but last eve I went to see the British stage troupe now offering the play locally. Behind me sat two women who made much noise with candy during most of the first act. Their criticism of the second act was: "I wish he didn't drink like that." This, referring to the stellar character, Capt. Stanhope.

Dear heavens, and we are asked to love our neighbors as ourselves. . .

Jay Mills Offers Theme Song of 'Chickie'

The new melody, "Chickie, I Can't Forget You're Still My Sweetheart," the theme song of "Chickie," the Sun-Telegraph's serial story, will be featured by Jay Mills in the Enright during the week, beginning Friday, in conjunction with his stage show, "Topsy Turvy." Mr. Mills believes the song, written by himself and Dick Powell, will be a real hit.

Will Be Hostess To Mission Circle

The Ladies Aid Society, Bellevue Methodist Protestant Church will meet Friday afternoon in the church rooms. The hostesses will be Mrs. George McKissock and Mrs. William Cooper.

Surety Corporation Chooses President

Resignation of Joseph W. Ware as president, and election of J. Horace Shale, of Newark, N. J., to succeed him, was announced yesterday by the board of directors of the Pennsylvania Surety Corporation, with offices in the Wabash Building. Shale is a former vice president and general manager of the Commercial Casualty Insurance Company, of Newark.

This change, it was announced, was the first step toward a reorganization of the official staff and the financial readjustment of the affairs of the surety corporation.

Little Junior used to come in crying
....his hands got so
CHAPPED
...until another mother told me about Noxzema Cream

"I FELT so sorry for little Junior. His hands used to get so chapped and sore from playing out in the snow and cold he'd come in crying. But recently a neighbor suggested Noxzema. I tried it and it works like a charm—heals his hands wonderfully and protects them, too. Junior won't go out in the cold now until I rub his hands with Noxzema."

"I use it myself, too. It keeps my hands from getting red and coarsened when I wash dishes."

Mrs. R. Scher,
1473 Townsend Ave.,
New York City

This is not just one isolated case. It is typical of the good work Noxzema is doing in healing and preventing chapped hands for millions of children and grown-ups everywhere.

That's because Noxzema contains just the proper bland, soothing, medication to relieve the smarting and burning in 30 seconds—to restore the softening oils in dry, rough skin—and keep the tiny skin cracks antiseptically clean and promote quick healing.

Noxzema is a dainty, snow-white vanishing cream. It is not greasy or sticky and cannot stain or soil clothing. Get a jar today—your druggist has it.

February Regarded as Month of Declining Stock Prices.

ONE of the rather generally accepted theories in Wall street is that which holds up the month of February as a period of declining prices in the stock market. At least one commentator questions whether the old rule will hold true in the current month. He says: "Two arguments being used by those who think the rise has gone far enough are that February is a month full of uncertainties, and that in the last 20 years stocks have more often declined than advanced in February. We should not," he contends, "forget that there are 11 othre months in the year full of uncertainties and that what the market has done in past Fezruarys is no dependable guide as to what it will do in February, 1930." Certainly the situation thus far has tended to support his stand.

Rumors that a reduction in the present $8 dividend rate maintained by the American Locomotive Company on its common stock was being contemplated were quickly put down as unfounded by William H. Woodin, chairman of the company's board. The present dividend rate has been in force since it was raised from $6 at the beginning of 1925, a total of $18 including $10 extra having been paid in the latter year. Mr. Woodin, in spiking the rumors, said "there is absolutely no foundation for rumors that American Locomotive's common dividend will be reduced." The dividend has been paid regularly despite the fact that it has not been fully earned in any year since 1924. Net for the first six months of 1929 amounted to $2.24 a share as against 20 cents a share in that period of 1928, and $1.72 for the full year. But the company is in strong current position and has a large surplus.

JOHN N. WILLYS, of the Willys Overland Company, sees 1930 as "a mighty godo year for the automobile industry," judging by his remarks following a conference with President Hoover today. The extent to which his views have changed recently may be judged from the fact that he is now confident that production this year will run between 4,500,000 and 5,000,000 cars, though about two months ago he was not looking for output to run much beyond the 4,000,000 car mark. He believes, furthermore, that profits will be just as large as last year, for the reason that results will reflect among other things savings in overhead.

There has been a steady absorption of both General Electric and Westinghouse Electric in recent market sessions. Strength is attributed to the particularly bright outlook for these companies during the current year and also to the receipt of good-sized orders at this time. From the floor comes word today that one of the leading operators who was so successful in Radio not so long ago, was now actively engaged in the present move in General Electric.

REASON for the strength in Remington Rand was found in the company's report for the quarter ended December 31, last, showing more than $1 a common share earned in that period, which incidentally was the best in history. Although bookings in the past month were not as good as those for January a year ago, they nevertheless were ahead of December. An idea of the progress being made under the present management is found in the results for the first nine months of the current fiscal year when net income was equivalent to $2.60 a common share, compared with only 32 cents a share in the corresponding period of the preceding fiscal year.

Although final figures for 1929 operations have not been compiled, it is understood the United States Rubber Company just about "broke even" last year. Earnings in the first two months of the last half of 1929 indicated the company might cover its preferred dividend in the final six months, but subsequent developments proved so costly that they wiped out this profit. The company lost between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 on tires alone last year, this loss being largely made up by profit on footwear and mechanical goods. The company's showing is accounted for largely by heavy expenses entailed in consolidating manufacturing operations. The drop in the price of crude rubber during the latter part of the year and sharp falling off in original equipment business owing to the curtailment in automotive output.

Texas Net for 1929 May Show Decline

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—Because of the slump in sales experienced by the oil industry during the latter part of the year, the Texas Corporation's earnings for 1929 will probably not equal the record net of $55,845,073 in 1928, according to Eugene M. Stevens, president of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company, a director of the Texas Corporation. While the final audit has not yet been completed, Mr. Stevens said he felt profits before taxes would be well over $50,000,000.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The recent move toward higher levels was continued in the early bond trading today, giving support to the belief that the market had recovered from the effects of the heavy January financing and was again in a position to respond to buying support.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United states bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

RALLY SHOOTS STOCK PRICES UPWARD

Market Advances Despite Profit-Taking Flurries And Selling by Shorts

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Easier money rates and favorable trade news provided the background for another broad rally in prices in today's market, although flurries of profit-taking and short selling occasionally slowed up the advance. Ticker delays were again the rule as blocks of 5,000 to nearly 15,000 shares changed hands and started a buying stampede in certain stocks believed to harbor a large short interest. Scores of issues were marked up 2 to 8 points, and there was a scattering of 1 to 5 point declines.

Call money dropped from 4½ to 4 per cent as February 1 dividend and interest disbursements returned to the banks. Wall street felt rather confident that the Bank of England would cut its discount rate tomorrow, with opinion still sharply divided as to whether the New York Federal Reserve Bank would immediately follow suit or wait for a few weeks. In some quarters it was believed the cut in the New York rate might be delayed until just before the offering of the German international loan.

OUTLOOK BRIGHTER

From the automobile trade came reports that Chrysler's January shipments were 50 per cent above the same month last year, and a bulletin statement on the automobile outlook by John M. Willys, following his conference with President Hoover in Washington, the latest freight car loading figures showed a gain of 15,268 cars over the preceding week, but a drop of 63,853 cars below the same week of 1929. Crude oil production again declined sharply last week.

Iron Age reported that the general rate of steel output was now 76.7 per cent of capacity, with all but two producers doing 70 per cent or better. It points out that "in their extreme caution in November and December buyers underestimated their requirements after the turn of the year, with the result that these were immediately translated into orders. Now that this readjustment of demand to production has been made, the trade is more conservative in forecasting further improvement."

New York and Harlem, which has ben fluctuating over a wide range in the last two weeks, jumped 8 points in the early trading. Philadelphia Company advanced 7½, and Houston Oil 6. Gains of 4 to 5 points were recorded by General Railway Signal, Warren Bros., Brooklyn Gas, American Power and Light, American Water Works, Standard Gas and Electric, Westinghouse Electric and American Bank Note.

STEEL FLUCTUATES

United States Steel, which sagged to 182⅝ in the early trading, rallied to 184½, but met heavy profit taking around that level and backed up again.

American Locomotive sank 2¼ points to a new low for the year at 94¾, but rallied to 100 on President Woodin's denial of rumors that directors were contemplating a reduction or omission of the dividend. Several large railroad equipment orders were made public today. Simmons ran into further selling and dropped 3 points. Gillette Safety Razor also was heavy despite the denial of rumors that the production of the new razor and blades had been delayed.

Record Exports of Motion Pictures

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Exports of motion picture film from the United States in 1929 amounted to about 282,215,480 feet, setting a new record and exceeding the previous record in 1919 by about 9,000,000 feet, according to the Department of Commerce.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—New upturns in wheat values here took place early today, helped by Liverpool advances and reports that European continental reserve stocks of wheat are diminishing. Advices were also at hand that Liverpool quotations on wheat future deliveries are below the cost of laying down actual wheat there. Opening ⅜ off to ½ up, Chicago wheat afterward scored material gains all around. Corn, oats and provisions were likewise firmer, with corn starting at ¼ decline to ad. equal advance, and subsequently hardening somewhat.

DR. ELMER A. SPERRY

Dr. Sperry, prominent New York engineer and inventor awarded the American Iron and Steel Institute medal, one of two given by the institute in memory of its founder, the late Elbert H. Gary. He received his for a paper describing how to detect flaws in steel rails and bars.

STEEL OUTPUT GAINING

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade tomorrow will say:

The rapid recovery of the iron and steel industry in January reflected a snapping back of demand to a level in keeping with actual consumption. In their extreme caution in November and December buyers underestimated their requirements after the turn of the year, with the result that these were immediately translated into orders. Now that this readjustment of demand to production has been made, the trade is more conservative in forecasting further improvement. In Chicago, where steel ingot output has reached 88 per cent of capacity, additional increases in operations are predicted, but in other important producing districts the outlook for February is for a very gradual rise at the moment.

The general rate of steel ingot production, computed from telegraphic reports to the Iron Age, is now 76.7 per cent of capacity.

Mill bookings in January, not including unspecified contract tonnage, were much larger than in December, but fell short of those of the first month of 1929. The gain over December, in terms of a weighted average for 18 companies, was 45.5 per cent; the decline from January, 1929, was 13.25 per cent.

The quick rebound of production is indigated by blast furnace returns for January. With 19 stacks blown in and three put out, there was a net gain of 16, but two-thirds of the furnaces lighted were put into commission after January 19. On February 1 173 furnaces were producing at the rate of 96,755 tons a day, compared with 157 stacks making 88,250 tons daily January 1.

The late gains in furnace, however, did not prevent production for the eptire month from showing a loss compared with December. The automotive industry is increasing its production schedules faster than was expected a few weeks ago.

Prices show the mixed trend characteristic of transition periods. In some districts greater firmness is evident in plates and shapes. On the other hand, irregularities persist in sheet prices and wire nails have declined $1 a ton to $2.25 a keg. Cleveland or Pittsburgh. Concessions in semi-finished steel have been followed by a formal reduction of $1 a ton on billets, slabs and sheet bars. Wire rods have been shaded $2 a torr to $38, Pittsburgh. Scrap is stronger, with advances of 25 cents a ton in heavy melting grade at Pittsburgh, Chicago and Cleveland. The rise at Pittsburgh offsets the decline of a week ago. Furnace coke at Connellsville has gone up 10 cents a ton to $2.60.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Operations for the advance assumed large scale proportions on the curb market today. The ticker fell several minutes behind trading as shares were taken in large blocks. Upward progress was not easy, however, as profit taking appeared in considerable volume on advances, and few shares accomplished gains of more than a point or two.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

BUSINESS MEN WANT CUT IN ARMAMENT

Would Welcome Ensuing Lower Tax, But Desire Sufficient Protection

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.

The disarmament conference in London brings into focus again the age-long question whether business men in the aggregate profit from war.

Common observation in the last great war showed that there were numerous war-time profiteers.

War brings a quickening of the economic tempo and usually inflation, which is a subtle process of transferring wealth from substantial conservative hard working people to agile business adventurers. War time excitement benefits the speculators as a class at the expense of the investors as a class. It favors some common stockholders and tends to impoverish bondholders, owners of insurance policies, and savings bank depositors.

Attempting to speak for American business Merle Thorpe editor of the Nation's Business said that business wanted a happy medium solution of the question of armaments. He said that it welcomed a cut in order to reduce taxes, but wanted enough armament to assure security.

WAR TRADE RISKY

"Standing munitions firms like E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co." said that war [illegible] relatively unattractive because of the exceptional financial risks involved whereas peace business is more stable and enduring.

"We makers of munitions," he pointed out, "who survived the risks to life and capital are not among those anxious to repeat the experiment of war by preventing the establishment of permanent peace.

"I consider the calling of the London naval conference a long step in the right direction. Sentiment against war has always been strong, added to this sentiment now is the crushing burden of taxation and a disarrangement of all the orderly channels of domestic and international commerce. The conference has an excellent chance to achieve the high aim for which it has been called."

As the stock market emerges from the panic zone, Wall street will become articulate again. With a bias toward optimism, the average corporate and financial executive is silent when he cannot be cheerful. Accordingly, as Dudley Siddall pointed out in Plain Talk, "Bear news is no news." Companies like the United States Steel Corporation, however, which regularly publish an amplitude of data concerning current operations, let the objective statistics tell the prevailing story of success or set-backs without bias.

If more companies would follow the example of the Steel Corporation, the public would have a better opportunity to judge the course of the business cycle and would be less receptive to irresponsible rumors.

H. G. Wells described Chicago before the war as "that singular replase into barbarism."

Municipal employes, whose pay has been held up, are likely to concur in Mr Wells' view.

CHICAGO EXAMPLE

Irrespective of the special causes of Chicago's present financial tension, its status is a symbolic warning to the American people of what can come from local governmental extravagance and mismanagement.

Chicago's lack of funds does not mean bankruptcy, for its immense taxable values amply protect all outstanding obligations. But Chicago is short of cash because it is several years behind in collecting taxes, because of a prolonged fight in and out of the courts for reassessing all Chicago real estate.

Accordingly, the city is said to be nearly three years behind in collections, and on account of the uncertainty of the situation has found resistance to its earlier method of financing itself through the sale of tax anticipation warrants. The first reassessments were upset by the courts on technical grounds. It is believed that the next reappraisal on which taxes can again be collected, is several weeks or months off.

Meantime, the immediate future depends on whether the city administration will accept aid from the citizens' committee headed by Silas H. Strawn, lawyer and chairman of Montgomery Ward & Co., on its own terms. The committee had indicated its willingness to buy $20,000,000 of tax anticipation warrants to tide the city over its emergency.

Money casts its shadows over politics. Inability to stabilize the peseta and restore prosperity are considered the chief reasons for the retirement of Primo de Rivera as dictator of Spain.

DAILY TRUE STORY

The Gum Girl

AUGUSTUS GARSON meant well. He always meant well, so well that he succeeded in accumulating a great many millions. He did it with gum.

"Ah," you say. "Garson's Gum—to be sure. Billboards boosting Garson's Gum have hidden more country scenery along the highways than anything else."

Garson was thoroughly democratic. He liked to have his many friends call him "Gus," and he enjoyed telling about making up the very first batches of his gum by hand, himself, to sell at fairs and such places.

Then there was Susie Garson, his daughter.

Gus Garson would admit that other men had daughters, but that was about as far as he would go. He was positive that no man had a sweeter, more charming or more beautiful daughter, and he very much doubted if there was ever her equal. From this one could deduct that Garson was overly fond of Susie.

Susie was dutiful and loving. At the same time she often wished that her father were not quite so democratic. Susie yearned to get into the very inner circle of society.

Thus far she had not succeeded.

She had plenty of friends too many would-be friends, who always thought of her father's millions, and a few intimates who were "in the book," meaning that they were registered socially.

But she had never been invited at any of the affairs of the very highest of high society—not the snooty ones, but the really exclusive set.

Take Mrs. d'Artlan Simson, for example. She was the very head of high society.

e Meets Charmer

S... Garson had not been taken up by Mrs. d'Artlan Simson, or any in her small and most select circle. And Susie yearned to be taken in by them.

Susie had not fallen in love. Her father was sensible about that. While he admitted that no man could be good enough for her, still when she did decide to marry he would not interfere.

One day Susie, who was at one of her father's country places—a "private lodge" as big as a hotel in the Adirondacks—she mentioned that she had become acquainted with a charming young man.

"Who is he?" her father demanded.

"His name is Luke Dixon and he is visiting the Wetherbee boys at their camp."

"So? Well, the Wetherbee boys are fine chaps—any guest of theirs would be all right—tote him home to dinner some night," her father suggested.

When Gus Garson met Luke Dixon he approved of him at a glance. He was a fine looking chap without at all resembling a collar advertisement, and he was one of the few of Susie's friends who made him feel at ease in his own home.

When he asked Luke Dixon what his "line" was Susie blushed, but Dixon acted as though that was quite the proper thing to ask a guest.

"At present," Dixon explained, "I am a sort of office boy in the diplomatic service."

When Luke and Susie were alone he told her that he liked her father, and added, "But so wonderful a girl as you couldn't have any but a likable father."

Susie let Luke understand that he didn't give her any headache whatever when she looked at him, and when he had gone she told her father that she was afraid she was falling in love with this young man.

Now and then during the winter Susie saw Luke Dixon when he came to the city. Three times she met him in Washington.

Case of Real Love

Meanwhile came the time to plan the annual advertising campaign for Garson's gum. Gus Garson sat watching his Susie dancing one evening and he felt that no more beautiful girl existed. Then he had what was to him a swell idea. In his advertising campaign he wanted to put across something to the effect that gum chewing was quite au fait, only Gus worded it, "quite the swell thing to do."

Without a word to Susie he took one of her most charming photographs to his advertising man and gave instructions.

It was about this time, when Susie and Luke had a sort of te... ve engagement and each ad... ed to the other that it was a case of genuine love, that Susie certainly got a glorious shock of surprise.

She discovered that Luke Dixon was a nephew of Mrs. d'Artlan Simson.

Luke mentioned that he had told his aunt all about Susie. Luke admitted that his own income was pitifully small and that not only was he heir to his aristocratic aunt's fortune, but that she insisted on augmenting his income while he strugged upward as a cub diplomat.

Mrs. d'Artlan Simson was arranging for her annual ball. Luke Dixon was coming up from Washington for it. He would take Susie!

Susie was inexpressibly happy.

And just then something happened!

It seemed to happen all over the country—in every worthwhile weekly and monthly magazine—a page in colors—the best of the printing press art work—an advertisement for Garson's Gum.

A beautiful girl in evening dress was accepting from her hostess a stick of Garson's Gum.

And the beautiful girl was Susie!

Her doting father beamed—it was a wonderful idea, he believed.

Poor Susie!

At first she tried not to let her father know how crushed she was over it. Even when some smart columnist mentioned her as the "Gum girl."

Then Gus Garson accidentally overheard Susie on the telephone.

"But Luke—" Garson heard Susie cry in distress, and then—"You can't come up at all to the ball? What sort of business? Well I want details—what sort of diplomatic business? Luke, let's be honest with each other, your aunt has seen those advertising pictures of me and told you not to bring me, now isn't that the truth? I knew it, Luke, so let's call not only the dance, but the engagement off—I certainly mean it—listen—wait Luke, I can't marry you and ruin your chances for a diplomatic career by antagonizing your aunt—no, no don't come up, it won't do any good—good-by!"

Admits Error

Garson went to her. "I did wrong—I thought it was a fine thing to do—I'll call in every one of those advertisements—"

"It's too late, dad, and let them go anyway—I'm proud of you—gum making is honest, anyway!"

Luke Dixon arrived from Washington the next day. He had to appeal to Mr. Garson to talk Susie into seeing him.

"Thanks, Susie—and I am going to marry you just the same, but let's be diplomatic about it," he opened the brief case and produced a very much tattered old volume. It was an early history of New Amsterdam.

"The name used to be Zimson," Luke said. "Dutch. They came over with the Astors and those. Listen to this:

"'Just off the Bouwerie in Zimson's lane lived Jake Zimson, one of the first soap makers. He collected animal fats from Wm. Astor, butcher, and others, and made his soap in his back yard!'"

"I had just as soon be a 'Gum Girl' as a 'Soap Girl,'" he said.

"Well, I can get hold of a few thousand and my plan is to buy some cheap plant and make soap—put most of the money into advertising it. You know everybody knows the portrait of old Jake Simson, founder of the family fortunes—Aunt has his portrait in her home, a sort of shrine. All right—"

Susie began to laugh. "I'm ahead of you," she cried.

Luke grabbed her and kissed her, regardless of Garson's presence. "To see you laugh makes me irresponsibly happy," Luke said.

"But what—"

Business Starts

"Like this, Mr. Garson—get out advertising bill boards, a picture of Jacob Simson copied from the famous portrait that all the world knows—another picture of old Jake in ragged dirty clothes dumping grease into a huge pot over a fire in a yard—and then advertise:

SIMSON'S SOAP

The Aristocrat of Cleansers.

"Get that?"

They got it and they roared.

"You'll go far, young man, as a diplomat," Garson cried. "Give me that history book and go back to Washington. Don't let on that you were up here."

Gus Garson got his advertising staff ready. He bought a cheap little plant over in the meadows to turn out some product, enough to cover the law, as it were, and all in due time there appeared a flood of billboards as well as pages in magazines depicting Jake Simson making soap. "Simson's Soap" was well advertised.

A famous lawyer sent out detectives and easily learned who was making Simson's soap. He sent for Mr. Garson. Mr. Garson sent word for him to come and see him. He did.

He offered any amount of money for the plant and business; he made no bones of the fact ... Mrs. d'Artlan Simson wanted Simson's Soap speedily annihilated.

"They are calling her the 'Soap Lady,' and she cawn't stand that, you know," said the lawyer.

"Tell her," said Augustus Garson, "that Miss Susie Garson, the 'Gum Girl,' is really the sole owner of Simson's Soap," and this was true, because Garson put it in Susie's name. "Tell her," he went on to the lawyer, "that Miss Garson will be glad to have her call at our home here and discuss it."

"Absurd — impossible!" bellowed the great lawyer.

"Good day, sir," Garson said.

Mrs. d'Artlan Simson called on Susie Garson the next day. She wasn't haughty at all. She looked at Susie and said, "Come here, child."

Then she kissed her.

"I deserved it all—you are a smart girl. I am going to have another ball, I want you to come. I think I can prevail upon Luke to bring you," she said.

Simson's soap promptly disappeared from the market.

Susie went to the ball with Luke, and thereafter was quite a figure in that exclusive social set, as she would be, since she married the nephew of Mrs. d'Artlan Simson.

No One Should Oppose Lame Duck Amendment

The Senate has again passed the lame duck amendment to the Constitution.

Its purpose is to give us a Democratic government at Washington.

That purpose and this amendment ought not to be opposed by anyone. They ARE opposed by the Republican bosses, and have been successfully opposed by them for seven years.

What are "lame ducks" and why this amendment?

This year we are going to elect 435 members of the House of Representatives, an entire new House. We are also going to elect one-third of Senate, 32 out of its 96 members. We elect them in November.

Will this new Congress, fresh from the people, assemble in December to pass legislation?

Oh, no. The Congress that will meet will be the existing one, and it will go on legislating until the following March 4. The Congress we elect in November, 1930, will not assemble until December, 1931, 13 months later.

In the Congress meeting THIS December will be a large number of Senators and Congressmen—perhaps a hundred Congressmen and a dozen Senators—who are rejected by the people in the November elections one month earlier.

They are picturesquely called "lame ducks." They can still hobble around, however, drawing their salaries and passing [illegible] for a whole session after being fired by the people.

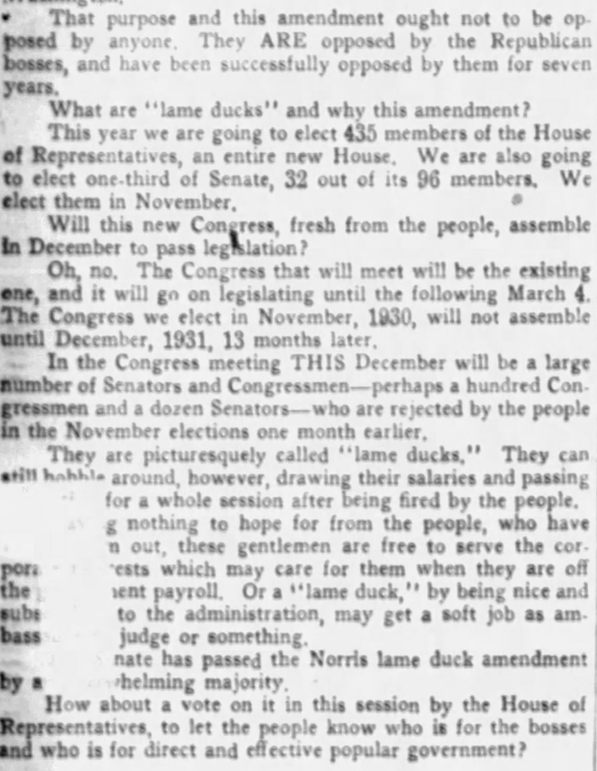
[illegible] g nothing to hope for from the people, who have [illegible] n out, these gentlemen are free to serve the cor- [illegible] ests which may care for them when they are off the [illegible] ent payroll. Or a "lame duck," by being nice and sub[illegible] to the administration, may get a soft job as am- bass[illegible] judge or something.

[illegible] nate has passed the Norris lame duck amendment by a [illegible] helming majority.

How about a vote on it in this session by the House of Representatives, to let the people know who is for the bosses and who is for direct and effective popular government?

A Fine-Looking Boy

But Why Should He Be Emperor?



HEIR TO HUNGARY AND AUSTRIA.

This good-looking youth, who claims from his father the Crown as King of Hungary and the succession to the Hapsburg throne, as Emperor of Austria, is called "Charles IV Otto von Hapsburg-Lothringen.

But for the great war which started with the killing of his relative, then heir to the Austrian throne, this boy in the natural course of events would have become King of Hungary, and Emperor of Austria, inheriting the 1,000-year-old crown of St. Stephen.

The blood of the Hapsburgs runs in his veins. And he is probably the best looking Hapsburg seen in many a generation. That is due to his extremely good-looking and devoted mother.

Doing her duty nobly, she added eight children to the Hapsburg line at a time when fate seems to have decreed that none of them shall ascend the throne.

In the Treaty of Peace as improved by Britain and France, this boy must remain an exile from the empire and the kingdom of his ancestors.

Probably he would make as good a king and emperor as any average accident of birth.

But just WHY should this handsome boy, or anybody else become Hungary's King and Austria's Emperor?

You would think that kingdom and that ancient empire got into enough trouble under the late Emperor, a feeble old man, in whose dotage the empire and kingdom drifted into a destructive war.

The proud mother of this boy, determined that he shall be king and emperor, devotes all of her energies and her small fortune to his welfare, but in vain, probably.

It is quite probable that in the friendly American city of Hollywood this youth of royal blood and handsome face might be able to make more money than any King of Hungary ever had.

He has a serious face, magnificent good looks. And the great lady stars would be proud to act and talk with such concentrated kingly and imperial royalty.

The boy's mother probably would resent that suggestion.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Where the North Begins

WE are indebted to Edsel Ford and the Detroit Times for a big night in the Michigan woods last Wednesday.

"Bugs" Baer

It was the suburban premier of Edsel's community theater at Grosse Pointe. The evening was complete when Graham McNameedrove up in a swallow-tail uniform that had refused to surrender at Richmond.

We were wearing a Tuxedo with the wrinkles radiating fanwise from the elbows. But Graham's swallow-tail was completed by the straws from the nest.

Edsel's new theater is at Grosse Point on Lake St. Clair, situated strategically to catch the sub-division trend of Detroit, Mt. Clemens or Toronto.

It is a beautiful little building financed by a mustard plaster on the community chest.

It will seat 600 with one foot in the aisle. We compliment Mr. Ford and his associates. But we cannot understand why the theater was named the Punch and Judy unless the title is a glorification of one of the world's earliest partnerships with the usual results.

Everybody was nice to the writer so nobody was hurt. It was the first time we had ever met 600 registered millionaires under such pleasant circumstances in which the letter of recommendation was not a complaint blank.

We missed the graduation class of ushers from Roxy's Theater and we also noted the lack of a retired Bulgarian general taking tickets at the door.

This is the first time we were exhibited as a celebrity on the hoof. We have always proceeded on the theory that a shrinking violet gathers no footlight bills. But when you are on the same bill with Fritzi Scheff, Elsie Ferguson and Tessa Kosta you begin to appreciate that the world has respect for gray hairs even on the barbershop floor.

Grosse Pointe is so far out in the woods that even the rescuing expeditions refuse to shine their shoes. The snow is 11 feet deep and the man who put up these no trespassing signs is now a title writer for Mack Sennett.

But the theater is a tribute to the indomitable spirit of the last frontier and we are going to send the blueprints to Commander Byrd.

Even though McNamee's swallow-tail depreciated real estate values by 50 per cent, Grosse Pointe is the most fashionable residential district in the world. Although a trifle puzzled over the spelling we attribute the spare e's to the automotive influence.

There's very little intrinsic difference in the makeup of those who WIN and those who WHIMPER.

Sloth and enterprise are the persistent divisors of society. Once in a while, nature short-suits an individual with congenital disabilities but, on the whole, maintains a very UNIFORM average in the basic quality of the human product.

Every man can't angle in the same pond and FILL his creel, but there are always OTHER streams in which a big catch can YET be made.

All fish won't rise to SIMILAR bait, but anybody who keeps casting and experimenting with lures will eventually find 'em tugging at his LINE.

YOUR tackle of original faculties is intact, but you've neglected to replenish initiative with the particular flies at which promotion and distinction are striking.

You are PHYSICALLY fit, but MENTALLY obsolete. You've lost track of trends and are sticking to traditional THOUGHTWAYS while competitive intelligence is speeding along STRAIGHTER roads to its objectives.

Edison made ten thousand attempts before he produced the incandescent lamp.

If it weren't for a few folk eternally dissatisfied with conditions as they inherit them, we'd NEVER work by new lights.

Now put on your hat, walk downtown and stand in front of the property your own savings could have bought when it sold at a DIME to a DOLLAR of its present worth, and hereafter speculate on the FUTURE.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

SHE was one of those pleasant, smart youngsters one meets in business nowadays . . . head waitress in the Biltmore Sweet Shop at Los Angeles. From the top of her shining marcel to the tips of her swift heels, she registered charming efficiency. She had that little knack of seeming to be your personal hostess, with only your particular need in mind. Over each table she bent in turn, gracefully warming a hurried, restaurant meal into a restful hominess.

"Nice kid," I said to myself, watching her as she paused for a moment in an empty alcove, "must be great to be as young and carefree as that. Nothing to do but look pretty and glad-hand 'em. Probably she'll be dancing her head off in another hour—"

Unconsciously I dropped envious eyes to the slender, chiffoned legs, the trim pumps . . . . all so different from the ugly, ill-fitting stuff I'd had to wear as a girl. Lucky— But what was the matter? Her foot was out of the pump. She was drawing it up, moving it in slow misery . . . . and through the sleek chiffon I saw a bandaged arch. For an instant, pain etched dark grooves under the pretty eyes, twisted the soft mouth into a scar—then, abruptly, she was off again like a bird . . . . every trace of personal problem erased from that trained, smiling face.

Morale. . . .that girl had it!

Fluffy little flapper, but behind that fluff was the disciplined resolution that sent the famous Six Hundred plunging into hell.

Rave at these modern working girls if you want. . . .snort at their frivolity, their extravagance, their impudence, recklessness and sophisticaton—BUT THE TRUTH IS, LADY, THAT MOST OF THEM HAVE TEN TIMES AS MUCH GUMPTION AND SENSE AS YOU AND I HAD AT THEIR AGE!

We were more innocent—maybe. But we were also a thousand times more helpless and spineless. Silly little cry-babies, running home to mamma for protection—

Show me any modern working girl who needs protection.

Petty individuals, thinking only of our own dreams and peeves—that's what we were.

These youngsters are more than individuals in spite of their seeming egotism. They've had something bigger knocked into them . . . a sense of The Game and their obligation to the rest of the Team—

"But they're doing it for their own selfish ends," you say. "They'd be fired if they didn't act that way."

It doesn't matter WHY they're doing it, as long as they ARE doing it. And it might have been better for a lot of us wives and mothers if we'd been fired if we didn't act that way."

Females capitalized frailty when we were girls, Mary. Ladies over 40 spent their leisure moments describing their operations. Having a baby practically pensioned you for life. A headache was a standing alibi for all kinds of laziness, cowardice, selfishness, bad temper and general cussedness.

Headaches are OUT in 1930. The girl who does your marcels takes your letters or your temperature, sells your stockings, brings your muffins or makes your movies may be feeling pretty blue, but does she show it? She does not. Her disciplined features have the enameled serenity of a French doll.

THE WORKING GIRL OF 1930—HERE'S TO HER! SHE'S THE GAMEST LITTLE GUY THAT EVER JOINED THE RANKS—AND SHE'S DOING MORE FOR THE HUMAN RACE THAN A MILLION NICE, REFINED, INNOCENT, LADY-LIKE GRANDMAS WHO TOOK TO WRAPPERS AND SMELLING SALTS AT THE FIRST SIGN OF GRIEF.

Text for Today Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear His voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation.—John, v:28, 29.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

2—THE MINUTEST ANIMALS.

AMOEBA belongs to an exceedingly large and varied phylum of minute animals, the Protozoa.

It is the simplest, the least organized member of the group. Most of the protozoa have definite and enduring shapes, and special organs such as lashes or vibrating hairs with which to propel themselves; usually they take food at some special point on their surface.

But amoeba presents in its nakedness the essential features of protozoan organization; for nearly all members of the group are invisibly small as far as the naked eye is concerned, and their structure is comparable to the structure of a single cell of the higher animals.

H. G. Wells

The protozoa, having for the most part unprotected surfaces over which their chemical inter-changes take place, are confined to wet or damp situations; they cannot exist in the absence of moisture (except as encysted or resting forms).

But nearly everywhere where moisture collects they swarm, and they may produce the most far-reaching effects.

The reason why such minute organisms can be so very important, both in the general economy of nature and to ourselves, is at first sight a paradoxical one. It is because their lives are so short.

To show how this may be, let us return to amoeba. We have seen how it is built, how it eats and grows; let us see how it increases and multiplies.

The commonest method by which most amoeba reproduce their kind is an extraordinarily simple one. It is like the multiplication of cells in one of the higher animals. When the creature has lived for a time and grown to sufficient size it simply pulls itself into two halves, each part getting half the nucleus and resulting fragments walk away and live free and independent lives of their own.

They wander about and nourish themselves and grow, and in course of time, when they are big enough, they divide in their turn. And so on.

This simple splitting, this tearing of oneself into two halves, is the chief method in which the protozoa multiply; is is, so to speak, their routine method of reproduction. They have other ways.

They may vary the monotony of continual splitting by a primitive kind of sexual union, or sometimes instead of dividing into halves they may chop themselves up into a greater number of bits, into a sort of living mince, each particle of which can grow into a new individual.

The time that intervenes between successive division varies in the different kinds of protozoa. In the larger species an individual may live for days or months before he feels the call to tear his body into living bits.

But in the smallest species the time is shorter; it may be as brief as an hour. Let us consider one of these short-lived kinds; let us start with a single individual and imagine that it has no enemies and all the food it wants. It will flourish and grow, and at the end of an hour there will be two.

At the end of two hours there will be four. At the end of three, eight. And so on, the number increasing ever more rapidly. At the end of 36 hours there will be two raised to the thirty-sixth power, which is sixty-eight thousand five hundred million—over 30 times the number of people in the world.

This at the end of a day and a half! Imagine that the creature was one of the smallest free-living protozoa, one of the monads that can only be clearly seen with the highest magnification of the microscope, this 36 hours' proliferation would be enough to form quite a respectable heap on a shilling.

Let the experiment continue. In another 36 hours the number will be squared — there would be enough to make heaps on seventy thousand million shillings.

In a week there would be a number so inconceivably vast that it would be waste of space to write it down, and the monads would together weigh many times more than the whole earth.

This is, of course, an impossible experiment. It is true that most protozoa are short-lived and that they tend to multiply at this rate, but under natural conditions their numbers are kept down by factors outside themselves, by limitation of the food-supply, by hungry enemies.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Broadway offers a distinct type of worldly lady as unmistakably New Yorkish as Times Square. She carries the mysterious air of the slightly declasse and is seen constantly with one of those porcine and glossy gentlemen with beady eyes and a gaudy limousine.

Her age is debatable—anywhere between 25 and 40—and her smile is like the ventriloquist's dummy—forced and mechanical. There is a certain slant to her hat, an extra red to her lips and when you pass her you are conscious of a nagging puff of exotic perfume.

Her elongated nails are lacquered the bright color of blood. She talks in mono-syllables in a voice just a shade husky. Strangely enough these are ladies with a code. They are purchasable. But only to a single buyer. And they are as secretive as the Sphinx.

Such creatures appeal especially to the "showy" type of man who is also a product of Broadway. He thrills over squiring about someone who inspires the query: "Who can that be?" Somehow he seems to feel he has become the hero of a whispering mystery.

These couples come into cafes to occupy the select tables. They are in the front rows at theaters. No one ever speaks to them or do they try to scrape up chance acquaintance. I have observed at least a dozen year after year. No one I have questioned knows them.

While the ladies live hard and dangerously, they are not of the gold digging sisterhood. They demand a certain income in exchange for their isolation but anytime the companionship becomes intolerable either may withdraw. Such liasons, however, have often lasted for years.

Tragedies that would prostrate an entire small town for a day cause only a momentary ripple along a single block in Manhattan. I was one of a crowd recently to see a man sway dizzily on the ledge of a twelfth story of a downtown building and topple with a sickening rush to the street. Twenty minutes later a group of messenger boys were actually skylarking on the spot where the body landed. A clerk in a corner drug store, upon inquiry, said he had "heard an ambulance" but knew nothing of the tragedy.

A bachelor on Riverside drive occupies a four-room apartment. The dining room has only a table and a chair, the bedroom a bed and dressing table and the living room a deep cushioned leather chair and a reading lamp. There are no pictures on the wall and not a room is carpeted. "I entertain no one and I hate possessions" is the tenant's explanation. He holds a responsible accounting job.

A cozy dinner place on East Forty-ninth street offers a homey little touch in napkins at each plate encased in old fashioned pewter napkin rings and a circular caster of condiments in the center of each table.

Some joker—and I hope he acquires a covey of warts—secretly purloined our family album several years ago. The next time I handed it to a visitor with a certain ancestral pride he burst forth into gales of laughter right in my face. The original photographs had been substituted for choice pictures of monkeys, chimpanzees and jungle apes. And one autographed "To Odd from Papa" was an orangoutang.

Speaking of monkeys, the most hilarious of all the New Year cards came from an artist and his wife. They were pictured, with actual reproductions of their faces, as two monkeys in a tree top. In a close huddle they were picking things out of each other's head. The caption read: "This is the kind of year we had."

* * *

For some reason I mentally tag people as four flushers who adopt a sort of apologetic attitude when you find them dining in modest tea rooms.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

DADS, do you give the young fellows calling on your daughters a square deal?

Isn't it true that only those with family connections which might assist in reaching profitable incomes are welcomed by you?

A young fellow must be more than just industrious, working for a small wage or salary, even though he may have good prospects.

You know how much it has cost you to give your daughters the opportunities and luxuries they now enjoy.

You realize that probably none of those with whom your girls associate could support them as you have.

You do not care to think that she would be willing to live on a less expensive scale in order to be with the young man of her choice.

How much did you have when you were married?

What were your prospects and advantageous connections?

No better than the men who call on your daughters, if you would admit it.

Your wife had to live economically, plan more carefully after she was married than she did before and perhaps your daughters are capable of doing as well on a small start.
